Reading Fair's Outstanding Farm Family A Second-Generation Honor

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — The farm is "a total family operation," according to Keith Treichler.

Fawnridge Farms is truly a family affair, as every member, even though it may be from long distance, helps to keep the operation running smoothly.

Treichler and his wife, Sue, are joined by Brandon, 21; Brett, 14; and Brittni Sue, 11, in the farming operation.

The family will be honored at Reading Fair's annual Outstanding Farm Family Awards Banquet Wednesday, July 24 at 7 p.m. at Virginville Grange Hall.

The award is given based on a point system. The family's level of Grange involvement, farm management, community, civil, and school involvement, and hobbies, sports, and recreation contribute to the points they receive for the award.

The Career Of Choice

Although it is a challenging vocation, farming is the lifestyle, and career, of choice for the family. "Even though I liked my other jobs, I found that if you grow up with farming, it's in your blood," said Keith.

"It is 365," said Sue. "The cows don't take a day off, even on Christmas morning. They are fed and milked before we open presents."

Accomplishing the farm work as a family unit helps to make the work more worthwhile, she said. "We just put away two weeks of hay and straw together."

Growing up on the farm has benefits for their children. "We always know where the kids are. They're out in the fresh air and are healthy," said Sue.

Farming 375 acres and milking more than 50 cows is not as daunting of a challenge when it is accomplished as a family, as evidenced in the Treichler family's experience. Parents Keith and Sue are joined by Brandon, 21; Brett, 14; and Brittni Sue, 11. They will receive Reading Fair's Outstanding Farm Family Award at the banquet next Wednesday.

Ag Council Hosts Summer Research Tour

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — About 70 members of the Penn State Agricultural Council toured the Penn State campus area Wednesday.

The day of presentations by faculty at the College of Agricultural Sciences gave participants the opportunity to learn about research programs under way at the university.

The Ag Council consists of legislators, organizations and businesses across the commonwealth that represent various aspects of farming.

This tour was the third such tour for ag council members, according to Bob Steele, dean of the College of Agricultural Sci-

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Ag Progress Days planners are getting ready to host between 40,000 and 50,000 people at the annual ag expo set to take place here Aug. 20-22.

This year's Ag Progress Days will offer several new events, including horse rides and unique field demonstrations, according to Bob Oberheim, in his 11th year directing the three-day show.

The National Quarter Horse Association (NQHA) will be on hand throughout Ag Progress Days to host workshops and teach such topics as saddle-fitting, horse-handling, helmet safety, and equine care. They will also provide between 25 and 30 horses each day for the public to ride.

According to Oberheim, the NQHA has presented equine ed-

State FFA Auction Raises More Than $10,000

of Quality Since 1895

PMMB To Consider Lower Premium

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Association of Milk Dealers (PAMD) is asking that a lower premium be paid to Pennsylvania dairy farmers.

The current $1.65 per hundredweight over-order premium mandated for Class I (beverage) milk produced, processed, and sold in Pennsylvania is threatening to drive buyers of Pennsylvania milk elsewhere, according to Earl Fink, PAMD executive vice president.

"We've noticed that premiums in surrounding states are quite a bit lower than in Pennsylvania," Fink said. "Some of our customers are considering going to other states. We're trying to head that off."

The PAMD has petitioned the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB) to consider decreasing the premium to no lower than $1.25 per hundredweight.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

FULL BUCK MOON, JULY 24

I SCREAM, YOU SCREAM…

Many consider July 23, 1904, to be the official date when the ice-cream cone was invented, and that the clever individual was Ernest A Hamwi The cone was introduced at the World's Fair in St Louis, Missouri, later that year, and the idea caught on Others recognize Italo Marchiony as the inventor, who developed a similar idea in 1896 for which he received a patent in 1903 Ice cream itself probably derives from the flavored "water ice" of 17th-century Italy English colonists brought the sweet frozen delicacy to America, where early settlers made ice cream in pewter bowls set in ice and salt The first commercial ice-cream factory opened in 1851

WEATHER PROVERBS

When the quail is heard in the evening, fair weather is indicated.

TIP OF THE WEEK

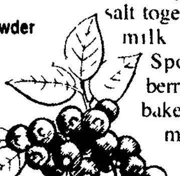
BLUEBERRY COBBLER

- 1/2 cup brown sugar
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1/2 cup water
- 3 cups blueberries
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 cup flour
- 1/2 cup white sugar
- 1-1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter, softened



Preheat oven to 375°F Cook brown sugar and cornstarch in water until thickened, about 5 minutes Add berries and lemon juice, spoon mix into a buttered 2-quart dish and set aside Sift flour, white sugar, baking powder, and salt together, blend in milk and butter Spoon over the berry mixture and bake for about 45 minutes

Makes 6 servings.

OPINION

Accountability Required

We learned that on Tuesday this week, members the National Cattlemen's Beef Association met during their summer session in Reno, Nev.

Just this week, we also took calls from beef producers and spoke to Lancaster Farming subscribers who expressed their concern about what's "really going on," according to a reader who wished to remain anonymous.

A Centre County beef producer noted that while he's receiving 22 cents per pound less for his beef than a year ago, directors of the association are prepared to spend $10-15 million in litigation to protect the checkoff, he said. All the while, noted the producer, the association is "inviting spouses and family to some rather expensive hotels" — at the cost of the producer.

It makes you wonder about the accountability of checkoffs. While we support the need to educate, inform, and advertise beef and other products to the consumer, why is so much being spent at a time when many ag industry retirees are losing their stock market invested retirement income, selling off the farm, or heading back to a second job in order to support their family?

And why do raw product suppliers in agriculture have to pay for any promotion at all? Why don't the processors and retailers assume those costs? (As an example: do the people who supply leather for car seats have to pay for auto advertising?)

The National Cattlemen's Beef Board points to a recent survey that said 68 percent of the producers approve of the Beef Checkoff Program. Who were these supporters? And what did 32 percent have to say?

In the June-July 2002 National Cattlemen, the official publication of the National Cattlemen's Beef Association, the "checkoff dollar," at $1 per head, is detailed in the 2002 Quarterly Report. More than $51 million in checkoff dollars fund beef nutrition research and information delivery.

But what, exactly, constitutes "administration" at $2.25 million per year? Why is $27 million devoted to promotion, yet another $5.8 million goes to "consumer info" (what does that mean?) and $1.85 million goes to "industry info?" More specific details are needed for those who pay the checkoff fee and for those who want accountability.

Beef producers should demand accountability for every single dollar spent. Where did that money go, every dollar of it, and why? A dollar a head adds up — it adds up to a kid's college tuition, a desperately needed new tractor, a few good heifers, a lot of things that directly impact farm profitability.

While we await the appeals process, once again we remind producers: you have to be involved. You don't have to simply go to a meeting. You have to be the director at the meeting. Because it is money — your money — they are spending. Find out what they are spending it on and why.

To Attend Manure Application Field Days

Three manure application field days sponsored by Penn State and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture are scheduled the week of July 29, 2002. The first is scheduled for Tuesday, July 30 and is specifically geared for commercial and private manure applicators.

Participation in the field day activities is required for those commercial applicators seeking certification. The second and third days are open to all interested parties and are on July 31 and Aug. 1. The first two events will be conducted at Greater Vision Farm in Fleetwood, Berks County. The third day will be conducted at the Buser Farm in Yorkana, York County.

The events will be highlighted by demonstrations and hands-on activities. The agenda includes a phosphorus index exercise, a soil compaction exercise, a manure application rate exercise, a soil pit demonstration, hand-held global positioning system (GPS) exercise, GPS on field equipment demonstration, and a variable rate application demonstration. If you are interested in GPS applications such as field mapping, record keeping, or GPS field guidance systems, this is a great opportunity to learn more about its potential and get some hands-on experience.

Five continuing education credits for certified nutrient management specialists will be available for those who attend the meeting. A fee of $10 to cover lunch expenses will be collected during registration. Participants are asked to bring a calculator. Preregistration is requested. To preregister, or if you have questions or need directions, contact Robb Meinen at (814) 865-2987 or rmeinen@das.psu.edu.

To List Your Farm On AgMap

Penn State has developed an interactive World Wide Website for Pennsylvania agriculture that helps consumers, farmers, and businesses find local producers of commodities and services. Called AgMap, the Website's address is http://agmap.psu.edu.

The site offers a searchable database that includes products grown or made around the Keystone State, allowing users to locate goods near their home, farm, or business. The site includes complete descriptions of these products and provides information about how to find and contact the growers and producers directly.

Pennsylvania is a national leader in agricultural production, with products ranging from apples to wood being shipped around the world. Yet many Pennsylvanians don't even realize what is being grown within a few miles of their homes, noted Rick Day, AgMap project director and associate professor of soil science and environmental information systems in the College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Local farmers may not be aware that the resources they need are available in the next county," he said, "and area businesses and consumers that use agricultural products might not know that what they need is available locally."

All that is needed to use AgMap is a computer with Internet access and a Web browser. Behind the scenes, Penn State's Land Analysis Lab and the cooperative extension global positioning program maintains a Web-enabled database that is linked to a geographic information system, letting users easily search for farms, farm products, and services based on how close they are to the user. The system has been designed to be extremely easy to use. The information included in AgMap comes directly from the farmers and industry. To enter information about their businesses, farmers just follow a few simple steps.

"We're confident that AgMap will be good for the state's agricultural industry," Day said, "and that farmers, other producers, and agricultural service providers will want to be on the map. It will improve direct marketing between producers and consumers and will help keep marginal operations in business."

AgMap allows users to search for agricultural services based on location, products, and service types. A consumer might find places off the beaten path that offer locally grown produce, trees, and other products at a low cost. For instance, if a consumer is looking for a farm to pick strawberries, he or she can visit the AgMap Website, enter a home location, and ask for a search of all strawberry growers within a 20-mile radius. AgMap will return a list of all the farms that meet the criteria — as well as a map showing how to get to the farms from the consumer's home.

In addition to helping farmers and buyers find each other, AgMap provides a communications network among agricultural businesses in Pennsylvania. This network allows producers to identify and contact other producers who offer similar products and services, which offers several benefits.

For market analysis, businesses can use AgMap to determine locations of competitors and to determine voids in services where new businesses might be successful. In emergency situations such as droughts, producers with products for sale will be able to find and contact other producers who need products. In cases of plant or animal disease outbreaks, producers will be able to contact similar producers to help determine how they are dealing with adverse conditions. For more information about AgMap, contact Rick Day at (814) 863-1615 or rday@psu.edu.

Quote Of The Week:

"If a man is called to be a street sweeper, he should sweep streets even as Michelangelo painted or Beethoven composed music or Shakespeare wrote poetry. He should sweep streets so well that all the hosts of heaven and earth will pause to say, 'Here lived a great street sweeper who did his job well.'"

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE HAPPY SINNER

Background Scripture:
Psalms 32; 51.
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 51:1-12.

I suppose there are two types of "happy sinners." One is like the prominent novelist who, out of curiosity, attended a revival meeting. "Are you saved?" one of the ministers asked him. "No," the novelist replied. "Well, do you want God to forgive your sins?" 'No," replied the novelist again, "I like my sins." The person who enjoys his sins is probably "happy" — for a time.

There is another type of "happy sinner," however, and the writer of Psalm 32 says, "Blessed is he whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered" (32:1). Actually, the term "blessed" is probably more accurately translated as "happy" — "Happy is he whose transgression is forgiven. . . ." This person is really quite different from the first type, for he comes to the point where, even if he once enjoyed his sin, he is no longer happy about it.

The higher and more enduring happiness is that of "the man to whom the Lord imputes no iniquity, and in whose spirit there is no deceit" (32:2).

The Psalmist is not content to cite a principle but grounds his teaching on his personal experience. "When I declared not my sin, my body wasted away through my groaning all day long" (32:3). The Psalmist had contracted some kind of illness and, when he says, "my strength was dried up as by the heat of summer," he is probably speaking of the high fever that accompanied his ailment.

The Weight Of Sin

You may ask at this point: Are you suggesting that the man's illness was punishment from God for some sin or sins the man committed? As clearly as I can say it, my answer is "no."

Obviously, that was a popular belief in some Old Testament times and it is illustrated in the Book of Job when his friends suggest that he must have sinned to bring this calamity upon himself. Job rejected that concept and, as I read the gospels, I find Jesus rejecting it, too.

Although I do not think God inflicts illness upon us to punish us for our sins, I do believe that the weight of guilt within us can be a barrier to health and recovery. Medical studies over the past few decades have tended to support that idea. Experiencing guilt can be a hindrance to the best drugs, therapies, and procedures.

This, I think, is what the Psalmist experienced. Some sin weighed heavily upon him, but he could not bring himself to acknowledge it and seek God's forgiveness. Finally, the Psalmist tells us: "I acknowledged my sin to thee and I did not hide my iniquity. I said, 'I will confess my transgressions to the Lord'". When he had made his confession, it was like a door opening in his body to let in the healing light of God. " . . . then thou didst forgive the guilt of my sin."

Where Healing Begins

Many years ago a woman came to me asking me to pray for healing. As I listened to her I realized that her life was consumed with hostility and resentment toward her sister. Finally, I told her I didn't believe there was going to be any healing possible so long as she held on to that animosity.

Whether because she relinquished her anger toward her sister or for some other reason, this woman experienced a considerable physical healing, too. Martin Luther was right when he said, "The recognition of sin is the beginning of salvation" (which in Greek means pretty much the same as "healing").

Someone has said that "The deadliest sin is the consciousness of no sin." Maybe we fail to acknowledge our sin because we don't know the great depth and breadth of sin. The Psalmist uses a variety of words to encompass this. "Transgression" is rebellion, deliberate sin. "Sin" means "missing the mark" or wandering off course. "Iniquity" is a distortion or perversion. "Deceit" is actually self-deceit, persuading one's self that something evil is actually good or vice versa. Regardless of the form of sin, the burden of guilt is a terrible weight to carry.

That's why the truly happy sinner is the one "whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered."

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
Report Supplied By USDA

After sharp gains the past couple of days, grain and soybean bids were lower. The reins were pulled back, as rainfall chances later in the week and again early next week over the major growing areas forecasted. However, traders are leery about jumping the gun without actual proof of evidence along with growing concerns over harvest yields and overall production. Wheat 2 to 3 cents lower, with Kansas City 1 cent higher. Corn 2 to 5 cents lower. Soybeans 3 to 6 cents lower, as much as 9 cents lower in Kansas City. Sorghum 2 to 5 cents higher.

DAYCO SUPER II V-BELTS

Now there's a belt that beats the toughest drive problems.

Many heavy-duty industrial machines demand more than conventional wrapped v-belts can stand Their punishing drives make ordinary belts crack under pressure The result unnecessary and expensive downtime

Now there s a solution to the consistent costly problem of replacing or retensioning belts It s the revolutionary new Super II™ v-belt from Dayco The Super II belt was designed specifically for the most brutal applications And its performance blows the cover off conventional wrapped belts

In heavy torque high horsepower and extreme shock load comparisons it s not even a contest The Super II v-belt is stronger more flexible and lasts far longer

Innovative design & construction provide extra strength and stamina

The secret to the Super II v-belt s durability is its unique construction The central position of the polyester cords in the neoprene rubber core provides greater strength balance and longer life Multiple fabric plies top and bottom enhance flexibility And Dayco s unique raw-edged construction gives it a better grip for controlled slippage

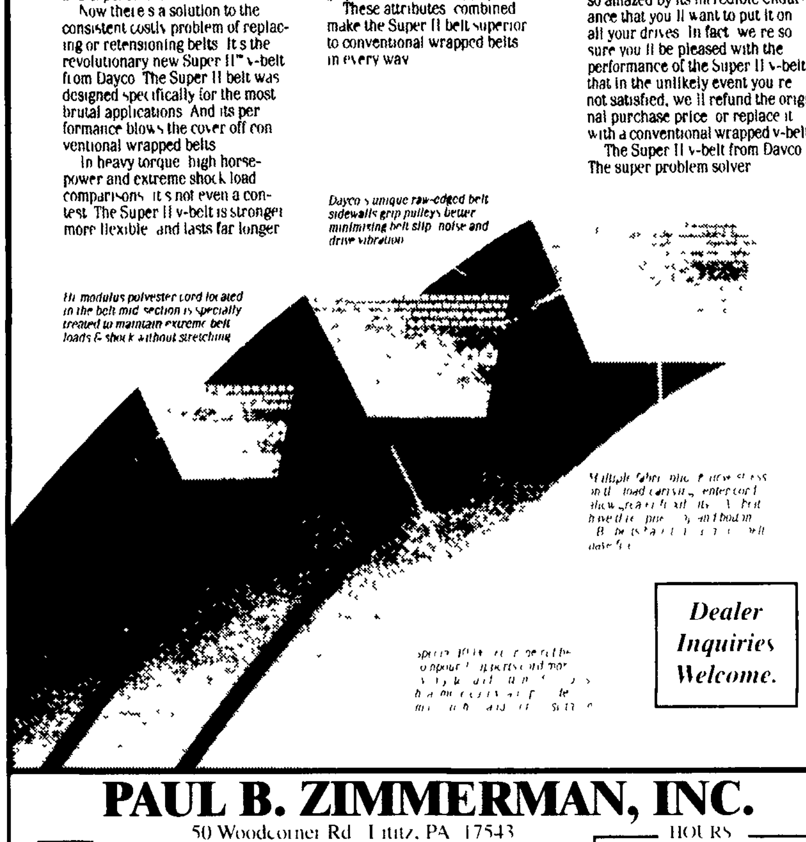
These attributes combined make the Super II belt superior to conventional wrapped belts in every way

Test the Super II v-belt on your toughest drive

The Super II v-belt was field tested for two years on the most severe applications rock quarry shaker screens lumber mill tree debarkers and pipe descalers In every case it outperformed conventional wrapped belts by a wide margin But the only test that really counts is the one you do on your own equipment

Try the Super II belt on your toughest drive problem You ll be so amazed by its incredible endurance that you ll want to put it on all your drives In fact we re so sure you ll be pleased with the performance of the Super II v-belt that in the unlikely event you re not satisfied, we ll refund the original purchase price or replace it with a conventional wrapped v-belt

The Super II v-belt from Dayco The super problem solver



Dayco s unique raw-edged belt sidewalls grip pulleys better minimizing belt slip noise and drive vibration
Hi modulus polyester cord located in the belt mid section is specially treated to maintain extreme belt loads & shock without stretching

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

Ken Bailey
Penn State
July 13, 2002

Greetings From Saskatchewan!

- Its wheat, canola, and cattle.
- You should see the hay bales.
- U.S. dairy markets report.

This week's report on dairy markets was updated from Saskatchewan, Canada. I'm on the road to Calgary, a large Canadian city in the western province of Alberta, to deliver a paper at an international dairy conference.

Saskatchewan is a prairie province located due north of Montana and North Dakota. It is truly an agricultural paradise. I drove from east to west along the Trans Canadian Highway (Rt. 1) through cities such as Regina, Moose Jaw, and Swift Current.

The eastern half of the province was covered with fields of canola, wheat, and other small grains for as far as the eye can see. The canola was in bloom and presented a beautiful yellow landscape. This was accented by neighboring fields of some another small grain that had a dark blue bloom. And of course there were miles and miles of wheat, which was already at the heading stage.

The landscape at the western edge of Saskatchewan changed dramatically into hay and cattle country. I passed places where there were acres of hay stacked high and ready for sale. There were trucks on the road shipping the product to distant markets. They were even cutting hay between the highways!

A local paper in the city of Regina reported that agriculture in Saskatchewan had fallen on hard times because of drought. Cattle farms were reportedly selling major portions of their herd to settle bills. I found it odd since the fields of hay, wheat, and canola looked so lush from the roadside.

The Canadian railroad is clearly the lifeblood for agriculture throughout these prairie provinces. All of the towns were located along the railroad tracks, as were the town grain elevators. In many places, you could see new elevator terminals that were built right alongside the older ones. While the newer ones are no doubt more functional and efficient, the older ones proudly represent the history of agriculture in each of these towns.

In the U.S. dairy markets, prices remain depressed. That said, there are new signs that prices have bottomed out and are beginning to firm up a bit. Butter prices in Chicago remained just below $1 per pound for the week because of heavy production following the July 4 week.

The Chicago cheese market started the week with very low prices, but firmed up close to support levels by week's end. There is no doubt that the recent heat wave that has blanketed much of the U.S. has helped bid up prices. Cheese yields and butterfat levels usually decline in response to heat and humidity.

Next week I'll be reporting on the Canadian dairy industry. Canada has a fairly large dairy industry, and exports a lot of cattle, genetics, and dairy products to the U.S. I hope to learn more about their quota system.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Corn, No.2y — 2.51 bu., 4.49 cwt.
Wheat, No.2 — 2.82 bu., 4.70 cwt.

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.
July 17, 2002
Report Supplied by USDA

Spot prices of class II cream, dollars per lb. butterfat: F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: 1.3532-1.4129. Delivered Equivalent: Atlanta: 1.3532-1.4328 mostly 1.3731-1.4129.

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb. wet solids, F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: Class II, includes monthly formula prices: .9200-1.0300; Class III - spot prices - .8000-.9300.

SPOT SHIPMENTS OF GRADE A MILK: FLORIDA: This week - In 0, Out 2; last week - In 0, Out 45; last year - In 27, Out 0. SOUTHEAST STATES: This week - In 0, Out 0; last week - In 0, Out 0; last year - In 42, Out 0.

Regional Milk Market Administrators announced the following, June 2002 uniform prices: Northeast $12.38, Mideast $11.24, Southeast $12.69, Florida $14.44, and Western New York (a state order) $11.82 at the base city or county in the orders. (For the Northeast, Mideast, and Western New York orders, statistical uniform prices are reported.)

Milk supplies have tightened in most areas of the East. Declines in milk output were significant early in July, but seem to be level now that temperatures have moderated slightly. Plant contacts report fewer incoming loads now that haulers have consolidated their routes. This is typical for this time of year. Also, fat and protein test have fallen to summer-time levels.

Florida handlers report being nicely balanced this week and expect to start importing milk in the next week or two. A slow Class I milk demand in Florida is keeping the need for milk lower than expected. Class I milk sales are reported as slow throughout the region. Bottlers have been "filling in" operating schedules with fruit drinks and water, which are good sellers during hot weather.

Surplus milk volumes are tighter and manufacturing schedules have been reduced accordingly. Most Eastern cheese and butter owder plants have cut back operations by at least one day a week. The condensed skim market seems firmer and prices are steady to lower on Class III spot sales; steady on Class II. Demand for wet solids is steady to slightly improved.

The fluid cream market is firm. Supplies are tighter and many producers have had to purchase supplemental loads to meet their commitments. Demand is good and improving. Spot prices are lower, but multiples have increased noticeably from late-June levels. The CME average butter price was off five cents from the previous week. Most Eastern butter makers are selling cream into Class II channels and doing very little or no churning.

Ice cream consumption is seasonally high, particularly soft serve. The hot weather has greatly affected frozen dairy product sales and producers are running at or near capacity levels to keep pace. Cream cheese production is about steady.

A Dry Cow Booster That Costs 7¢ a Day

Hoffmans Horse and Cattle Powder is an ideal tonic for cows over freshening. Feed 6 wks. before freshening. 1 Tablespoon a day. (Two weeks over freshening, feed 1 Tablespoon in the morning & 1 Tablespoon in evening)

Cows will clean better after freshening. Cows have a lower somatic cell count and will have less mastitis problems. Great for reproduction tract and cows will cycle better after freshening. Will help rumen function over freshing. Less feet problems and less stress.

This is an over-all good booster if fed to dry cows, and it will pay you big dividends.

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Review

St. Joseph, Mo.

Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER & STOCKER Summary for week ending July 12. TOTAL RECEIPTS: 421,600; last week 251,200, last year N/A. Auctions: 170,100; last week 63,600; last year N/A. Direct: 90,000; last week 34,800; last year N/A. Video/Internet: 161,500; last week 152,800. This week's reported auction volume included 42 percent over 600 lbs and 41 percent heifers.

Compared to the holiday-shortened week, feeder steers and heifers sold mostly steady to 1.00 higher with most of the advance being placed on the yearling cattle weighing over 700 lbs.

There was not a good week-ago comparison for the Southeast Complex, but many states in that region noted that a definite lower undertone was evident when compared to two weeks ago. Despite lower prices, receipts in the Southeast are running 15-20 percent below normal. This lends evidence that perhaps the cow herd in Dixieland has been reduced more than most of us thought.

Further west, new crop calves are starting to make up a larger portion of the receipts and dry conditions in the Northern Plains are causing many large strings to show up a couple months early. This was also noticeable on recent video auctions, where August and September delivery dates were much more popular than usual. Just a week and a half after a four-day Superior Video, it was Western Video's turn to place 150,000 head on the auction block. Twenty years ago, who would have thought that a prospective buyer could look through 300,000 head of feeder cattle in less than two weeks without wearing out a pickup or even wrinkling his shirt?

Fall delivery calves are selling for around 18.00 less than the same auctions last year and yearlings are yielding near 14.00 less than a year ago. Although plenty of fall cattle remain unsold, the chance of a significant market turnaround gets slimmer as the major feeding operations continue to build captive supplies of feedlot replacements at these levels. Buyers are not apt to offer a rancher 1.00 per pound for his five-weight steer calves when he already has his neighbor's under contract for 85.00, just five wires away.

This disappointing calf market is the last thing that cow-calf producers need, as many of them are suffering through one of the driest summers on record. The limited rainfall available has been extremely spotty, resulting in weird weather patterns. Areas of central and south Texas spent the Fourth of July under water; and (out of nowhere) Ogallala, in western Nebraska, received ten inches of rain in less than seven hours. This tidal wave wiped out bridges and caused the closing of Interstate 80. 'Other specific areas, like southern Montana, also experienced flashfloods last week. At the same *time, most other areas in the West contin*ue to hope for moisture like a baby bird begging for a worm.

The PMMB responded by scheduling a hearing to receive testimony and exhibits on the matter. The hearing is set for July 30.

According to Fink, the PAMD asked that the premium decrease to no more than $1.25 per hundredweight in order to help maintain a reasonable price paid to dairy farmers.

"We realize that prices are low right now," he said. "We want to try to help (producers) as much as we can without putting ourselves at a competitive disadvantage."

Fink said the PAMD is gathering evidence to present at the hearing, including over-order premium rates paid in neighboring states. Buyers in states including Ohio and New Jersey pay over-order premiums of less than $1 per hundredweight, Fink noted.

Persons wishing to present evidence at the hearing must notify the board on or before July 24 at 4 p.m.

The July 30 hearing is scheduled for 1 p.m. in Room 202 of the Agriculture Building, 2301 N. Cameron St., Harrisburg.

Lancaster Farming's annual Dairy of Distinction section is July 27.
The issue is scheduled to include feature

Old Time Farm Days Today, Tomorrow

FAIR HILL, Md. — The Cecil County Fair and the Cecil County Farm Museum will be hosting the sixth annual Old Time Farm Days at the fairground, Saturday and Sunday, July 20 and 21. The fairground is located in northern Cecil County just east of the Fair Hill intersection of MD Routes 273 and 213.

The festivities will actually begin on Friday evening July 19 at 7:30 p.m. with the classic tractor pull (for tractors built between 1960 and 1972). An added feature this year, will be a Garden Tractor Pull. It, too, will begin at 7:30 on Friday evening.

Antique tractor pulls (for tractors built prior to 1960) are scheduled on Saturday, July 20, beginning at 11 a.m. and continuing throughout the day and evening.

All of the tractor pulls will take place in the main arena and will have two sleds running simultaneously.

At 7 p.m. on Saturday, there will be a parade of antique farm tractors and equipment at the tractor pull. This will be followed by a fireworks display (weather permitting).

Featured, on both days will be antique tractors, cars and stationary engines as well as steam and horse drawn equipment and demonstrations. Sunday's activities will include slow tractor races, tractor barrel rolling and other events and demonstrations. Plenty of food will be available both days.

Contact Don Moore at (410) 620-0275 or Jerry England at (410) 658-3348 or (410) 658-2121 for additional information.

The Cecil County Fair runs from Friday, July 19 through Saturday, July 27.

Maryland Angus Breeders Set Field Day

WEST FRIENDSHIP, Md. — Maryland Angus cattle breeders will hold their 2002 Field Day at Dawn Acres in West Friendship, Md. on July 21.

The James Moxley Family will host the event. Come and enjoy some good fellowship, good food and some educational and entertaining cattle talk.

Registration begins at 11 a.m. followed by an ultrasound and carcass program presented by Jim Pritchard.

Lunch will be served at 1 p.m. and cattle will be on display throughout the day.

Please R.S.V.P. to Jim Moxley, 13155 Rt. 144, West Friendship, Md. 21794. Phone number is (410) 489-4463. E-mail address is moxleyj&d@aol.com.

Dawn Acres is located off I-70, on the south side of Md. Rt. 144 just west of West Friendship (Md. Rt. 32), across from the Howard County Fairgrounds.

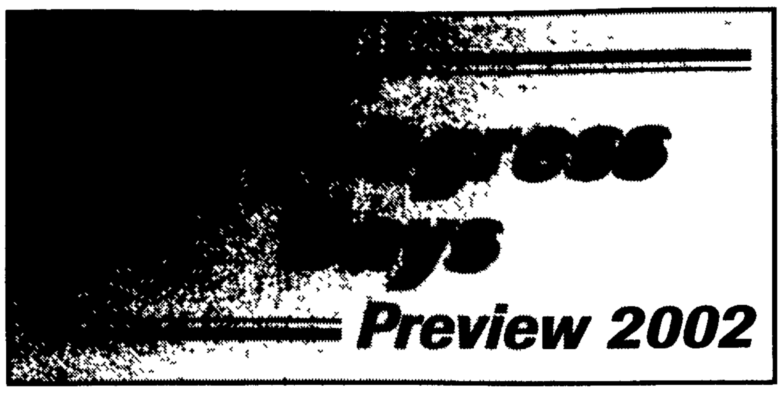
Equine Education Program Keeps Ring Busy During Ag Progress Days

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — It's time to head to Rockspring again for the annual display of new agricultural programs, old time farm machinery, educational demonstrations, and farm equipment exhibits . . . otherwise known as Ag Progress Days.

Victoria, 7, and Nathan, 8, and their mother, Jodi Lentz, Lebanon, meet Morgan horse "Sammy," held by Tina Higginbottom of the New Bolton Center, where "Sammy," a donated horse, was once a long-term patient.



Events in the horse arena during last year's Ag Progress Days included something to pique everyone's interest. From dressage exhibitions to mounted police presentations, horse handling clinics, and breed profiles, horses took center stage in the arena at the top of Main Street.

Morgans entered the ring in high style, pulling a carriage driven by Bruce Rappoport, New Bolton Center. The American breed is a natural driving horse, said Rappoport. "They're very willing." Rappoport gave several demonstrations of the animals during Ag Progress Days. He explained the animals' training to compete in driving exhibitions.

The animals not only have to be physically fit but also level-headed and used to noise, confusion, and distractions. Rappoport usually does not take the animals on the same training route twice.

Mounted Police Program

Pennsylvania State Police Cpl. Wade Crimbring and trooper Kenny Brown rode their police horses into the ring to speak to the crowd about the mounted police program.

The program employs three full-time and one part-time troopers. They train the state police horses and riders to serve in Pennsylvania and surrounding states and ride in the events. Besides the trainers, 25 field riders, made up of troopers in various offices in their police departments, ride the 30 horses on detail.

The state police department has utilized horses since 1905, but the herd decreased in size since then. Horsemanship competitions between police troops gave rise to a rodeo/exhibition tour that was used as a recruitment tool until 1976.

Approximately 13 years ago a riding program designed to train horses and riders for a tactical mounted unit began. "Our primary responsibility is crowd control or VIP security," said Crimbring. "We had 19 horses in Washington, D.C. for the inauguration." Additionally, another group of horses will travel to D.C. for a convention this fall.

Demand for the horses has increased from 30 days on detail, or on assignment, to 250 days on detail per year.

All of the animals are donated. Although requirements are not breed-specific, the animals must have the temperament for the job, be sound, and be large enough (16 hands or taller) to be accepted. "The selection process is strict," said Crimbring.

Trainers have 90 days to decide whether or not to keep the animal, based on the animal's progress in training and personality displayed.

Since the animals are run in a herd, the academy uses only geldings in the program.

Most horses take a year to become "crowd safe," said Crimbring. The training program starts with groundwork such as lunging, then progresses to riding. After a month trainers test the horse's tolerance by introducing a stress or something frightening to the animal and noting their reaction.

"After we see what their usual ucational programs at several other venues. He noted that the riding program at Ag Progress Days will be geared for novices and the general public. Between 400 and 600 people are expected to take the opportunity to ride a horse during the course of the three days.

New field demonstrations scheduled this year will showcase tillage equipment for compacted soils and and the latest innovations in herbicide and pesticide sprayers.

To provide opportunity for companies to show off tillage equipment specially designed for working up tight soil, certain areas of the demonstration field will be compacted prior to Ag Progress Days. This will be done by driving heavy equipment on the fields under wet conditions, Oberheim said. Several companies will then demonstrate their tillage equipment's ability to work this precompacted soil.

Another new demonstration will allow crowds to witness the latest spray technologies for applying herbicides and pesticides. According to Oberheim, at least four or five different companies will be operating their sprayers in the field.

The diverse lineup of machinery scheduled to operate throughout the three days includes bale handlers, ag baggers, forage mixers, and loaders, plus "an assortment of field equipment," Oberheim said.

Altogether, about 350 commercial exhibitors will be on hand. Ag Progress Days also features a host of educational programs provided by public agencies and Penn State University.

reaction is, the training is taken slowly," he said. The animal is introduced to strange sounds and sights as the trainers work to build the horse's confidence.

Riders sit on an English saddle, which has proven to be comfortable for long days in the saddle and allows riders room to transport equipment or even perform searches from horseback.

West Nile Information

Director of pesticide education program at Penn State, Dr. Win Hock, educated the audience about the West Nile disease.

The mosquito-borne virus was detected for the first in the in the U.S. in August 1999. The virus can cause encephalitis, characterized by brain and spinal cord inflammation.

In October 2000 the first case was reported in a Pennsylvania horse. One year earlier 25 horses were confirmed to have West Nile encephalitis. Nine horses died or were euthanized.

Wild birds are primary hosts of the virus. Mosquitoes become infected when they bite an infected bird, then may transmit the disease to humans, horses, or other birds.

Although one-half of the horses identified with West Nile virus recovered from the disease, it may also be fatal. Clinical signs may include loss of appetite, fever, weakness or paralysis of hind limbs, impaired vision, aimless wandering, convulsions, inability to swallow, circling, huyperecxcitability, or coma.

To date, there is no vaccine and treatment for horses — treatment focuses on reducing the severity of the disease.

Decreasing the risk of a mosquito bite is a common sense way to guard about the virus.

Keeping the horses stabled during hours of high mosquito activity — dusk and dawn — reduces risk. Also, owners can avoid turning on lights inside the stable in the evening and overnight hours, since mosquitoes are attracted to incandescent bulbs. They are neither attracted to nor repelled by fluorescent lights. Placing an incandescent bulb 50 yards from the stable may attract mosquitoes away from the horses.

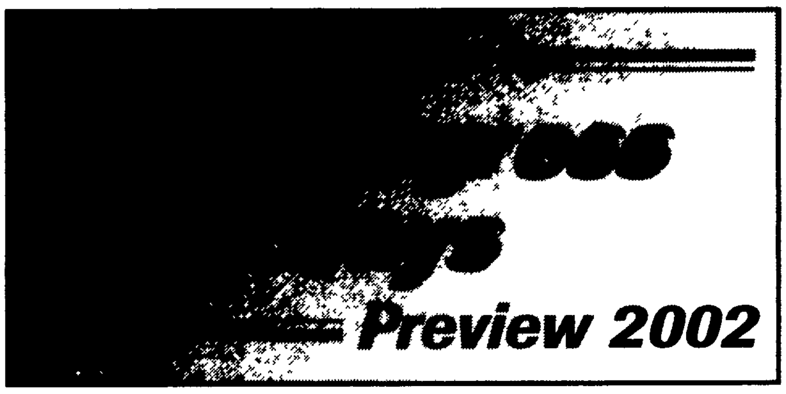
Ultrasonic devices and bug-zappers have not proven to be a solution, said Hock. Using insect repellent with 10-35 percent Deet provides adequate protection under most condition for humans.

Also, "control mosquitoes around your home," said Hock. "Most mosquitoes do not fly far from their home breeding ground." This includes eliminating standing water in manure storage pits, dirty water troughs, and the puddles around the troughs.

Additionally, residents can help the state monitor the virus' status. The state is interested in testing any freshly-deceased birds that residents find, he said. Hock advised the audience to take the dead bird to a county health department's drop-off point in a double plastic bag. "You cannot get the virus from handling the bird," he said.

Since birds can provide an early warning that the virus is active in an area, residents should call 1-877-724-3258 for drop-off instructions.

Emmy Wheland, 16, riding Appaloosa "Coin," and Annie Steed, with Arabian "Marscotti," both from Pennsylvania Furnace, are a part of the Keystone Dressage and Combined Training Association that performed in the horse arena.



A pair of Morgans driven by Bruce Rappoport, New Bolton Center, were another highlight of the events in the horse ring.

Panel To Discuss Ethanol At Maryland Commodity Classic

EDGEWATER, Md. — The Fourth Annual Maryland Commodity Classic, slated for Thursday, July 25, starting at 11 a.m., at the Howard County Fairgrounds in West Friendship, is expected to attract farmers from across the state interested in developing new markets for their product. The event is a joint effort between the Maryland Grain Producers Association (MGPA) and the Maryland Soybean Board (MSB).

"We anticipate a large crowd at the 2002 Classic because of the increased interest in the numerous changes Maryland's grain producers have faced over the course of this past year," said Jamie Jamison of Dickerson. "From the collapse of the Port of Baltimore that has forever impacted the exporting of our agricultural products to the anticipated construction of ethanol plants designed to broaden the marketing opportunities for grain producers, the Classic will cover those topics important to our growers."

Highlighting this year's schedule of events is a panel discussion on ethanol production in the North East. The panel will feature representatives from surrounding states who will openly discuss opportunities for ethanol production and marketing in their areas. These panelists include: Dan Wolf of Grain Processors for Renewable Energy in Pennsylvania, Ed Stahl of Garden State Ethanol in New Jersey, and Robert Hutchinson of Mid-Atlantic BioFuels located in Maryland.

Ethanol is an important product for both Maryland grain producers and consumers. It is an alcohol made from fermented corn or other plants high in sugar and cellulose that has proven to be environmentally friendly.

"As we continue to be forward-thinking, it is imperative that we move forward on promoting ethanol use and production in Maryland," said Jamison. "Through discussing the avenues and markets available with our neighboring states, we can better serve the consumers' wants and needs in the realm of environmentally-friendly and domestically-produced renewable fuel, while enabling our producers to profit."

In addition to the discussion on ethanol, John Cassidy, director of grain for Perdue Farms, Inc., will be on hand to discuss changes in strategies for marketing soybeans and grains; and John Gordley of the American Soybean Association and National Barley Growers will provide insight into impacts of the 2002 Farm Bill.

"We have a great lineup of speakers planned and look forward to progress being made," said Jamison, who serves as chairman for the Classic.

Registration for the Fourth Annual Commodity Classic begins at 11 a.m. The business meeting will begin at 1 p.m. followed by speakers and concluding with the famed Crab Feast, Pork and Chicken Barbecue. Entry prior to 2:30 p.m. is $10, and after 2:30 p.m. the entry fee is $20.

For ticket information regarding the Fourth Annual Commodity Classic contact Lynne Hoot (MGPA) at (410) 956-5771.

Md., Iowa Youths Win Dairy Jeopardy Contest At Holstein Convention

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — Daniel Stewart of Oelwein, Iowa, and Curtis Rhoderick of Mt. Airy, Md., took top honors at the National Holstein Convention in the Third Annual Dairy Jeopardy Contest of the Holstein Foundation.

Fifty-two youths between the ages of 9 and 13 competed in the contest, which included junior and intermediate divisions.

In the junior division, Stewart captured the championship over second place winner Christopher Potts of Purcellville, Va. Elizabeth Leonard from Midland, Va., finished third.

Rhoderick won the intermediate division, edging out Anna Troester Garnavillo, Iowa, a close second. Emily Lyons, Rockford, Ill., finished third.

Plaques for the first, second, and third place winners were presented by Holstein Foundation.

The Dairy Jeopardy program was developed in 2000 to create opportunities for younger children to hone their dairy knowledge through study and preparation for the contest. Dairy Jeopardy also makes it possible for individual youth to compete from small dairy states, where the population may not be large enough to field Dairy Bowl teams. Contestants compete individually, answering questions related to the dairy industry.

Virginia volunteer youth leaders Carol McComb and Andrew and Karen McClellan combined their talents in education and technology to help develop and implement the program.

The Holstein Foundation is a nonprofit organization dedicated to developing and sustaining leaders for a changing agriculture. Its program are open to people working with all breeds of dairy cattle. For more information about Dairy Jeopardy, contact Kelli Dunklee, program specialist, at (800) 952-5200 ext. 4124, or visit the Holstein Foundation's Web site at www.holsteinfoundation.org.

Farm-City Day Program In 11th Year

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Tioga Co. Correspondent

ROARING BRANCH (Tioga Co.) — "You can‘t separate agriculture and Pennsylvania," said Pennsylvania Sen. Roger Madigan (R-23rd) at opening ceremonies for the 11th annual Farm-City Day. "They just go together."

Event chairperson Sherri Butters presented Madigan with a hand-carved antique hay fork for his years of dedication to the event.

"He has followed us all over Tioga County," said Butters. "He has never missed a Tioga County Farm-City Day. The idea behind the hay fork was for his dedication to 'pitching' agriculture. He has done a wonderful job for Tioga County agriculture."

With the Senatorial redistricting, Madigan will no longer serve Tioga County, but will continue to serve Bradford County.

Changes have also been made to the annual Farm-City Day celebration. This year the Tioga County committee teamed up with a committee from Bradford County, merging the event. Host farms will alternate between Tioga and Bradford counties, with next year's event taking place in Bradford County at Y-Run Farm, owned by the Kline Family.

Allowing people to realize the importance of agriculture was the point of hosting the 2002 event, which drew a crowd of about 1200 people to Four Wynds Farm, located in the southeast corner of Tioga County.

Owned by Elwyn and Charlene Fitch, Four Wynds Farm is a fourth generation Century farm. They milk 85 Holsteins and 10 Jerseys and produce corn, oats, alfalfa, and mixed hay on their 259 owned and 300 rented acres.

To illustrate the importance of this event, Madigan stressed the economic impact that agriculture has in the state.

"Pennsylvania agriculture brings in four billion dollars each year, not including the money brought in from those involved in processing.

"Pennsylvania ranks in the top 10 in the nation in the production of many products. But agriculture is more than statistics. Agriculture is about people and farm families like the Fitches and their hard work and dedication. That's something most people don't see when they pick up a dozen eggs. That's why Farm-City Day is so special," Madigan said.

And the day was special for people as they had the opportunity to see a high-tensile fence being constructed, cows' hooves being trimmed, sheep being sheared, wool being spun, and horses being shod. People were also welcome to step inside the milking barn, see the baby calves in the calf barn, and watch a milking demonstration. They could also participate in ice cream eating contests, identify Christmas tree varieties, and watch a butter making demonstration.

The "Woodmobile" also made its first appearance in Tioga County. Sponsored by the hardwood industry, the trailer introduced visitors to the many varieties of Pennsylvania hardwood.

Other exhibits representing the migrant workers, dairy promotion, and cooperative extension, among others, were also popular spots for visitors.

Wagon tours took visitors from the farm down the road to a neighboring farm and offered a chance to learn the history of Four Wynds Farm. A few lucky wagon riders even had the opportunity to watch a calf being born in the pasture.

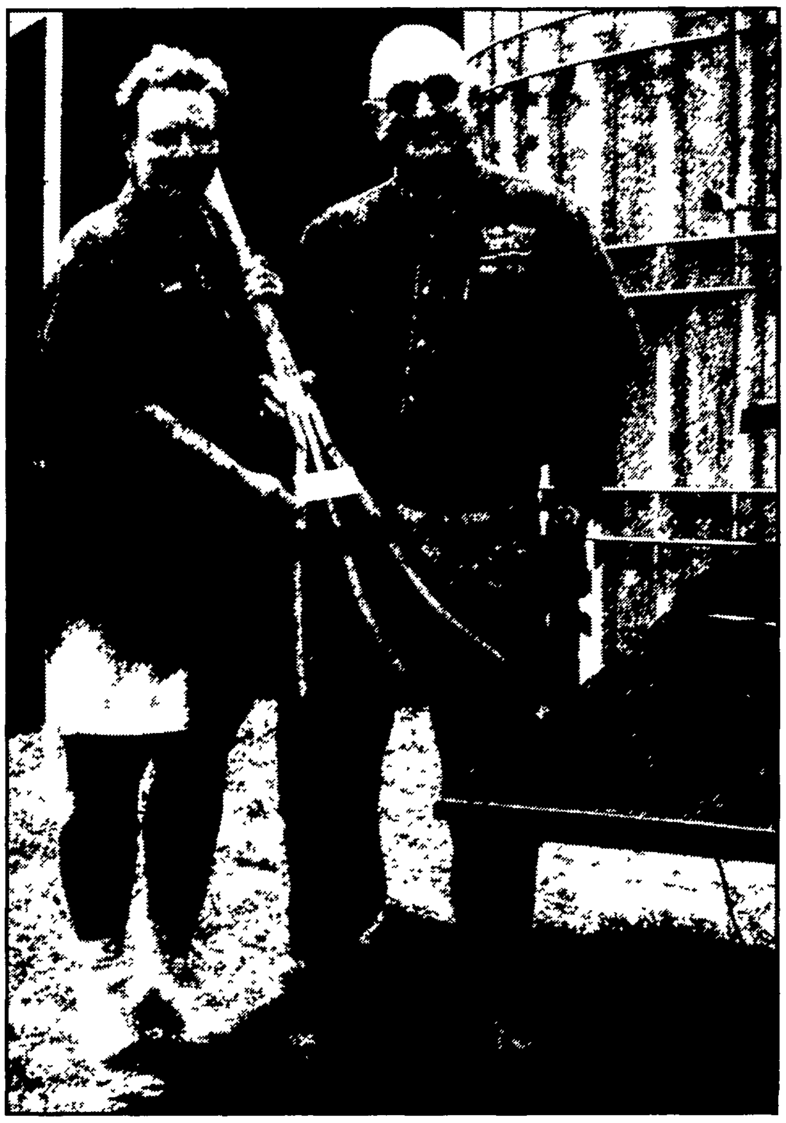
For children, a maze constructed of round bales was a hit as was a petting zoo and pedal tractor-pulling contest.

Winners in the children's tractor pulling contest were boys, age 4, Dalton Heatley; age 5, Nick Marple; age 6, Kurtis Eby; age 7, Ben Minnich; age 8, Keith Burkholder; age 9, Graham Gedman; age 10, Mark Winder; age 11, Chris Winch; and age 12, Tyler Campbell. Girls, age 4, Noel Henninger; age 5, Miranda Dunham; age 6, Patricia Minnich; age 7, Kristin Jannotti; age 8, Abby Cappello; age 9, Christina Musshafen; age 10, Heidi Musshafen; age 11, Stephanie DeWalt; and age 12, Kelly Allen.

Kids could also stop by a trailer sponsored by Laurel Health and receive a free jump rope through the Tioga County Fit For Life Program.

"All in all, everybody was real pleased with the day. It was a perfect day. One fellow came all the way from Rochester area. He made a special trip to the area," said Butters.

Also in attendance were Sen. Joseph Scarnati (R-25th), Rep. Matt Baker (R-68th), Tioga County Commissioners Erick Coolidge and Walt Barnes, Bradford County Commissioner Tina Pickett, and dairy royalty from Bradford and Tioga Counties.



Farm-City Day chairperson Sherri Butters, left, presented Sen. Roger Madigan an antique carved hayfork for all of his years of "pitching agriculture."

Department of Agriculture Representatives from Region 2, Dean Ely, and Region 3, Russ Gunton, also took in the festivities, as well as Farm-City committee members from Lycoming County, Pa. and Tompkins County, N.Y.

Butters noted that the Tioga County Farm-City Day has been nationally recognized but she stresses that the day would never come together without countless volunteers.

"You can have all the good ideas that you want, but if you don't have a good team behind you to implement those ideas, you're going to fail.

"I truly believe that farm city day is so successful due to the numerous volunteers that make it happen," Butters said.

More information about starting your own Farm-City Day program can be found at www.farmcity.org, a National Farm-City Website that includes tips on how to begin a program such as this.

Butters is proud to say that many of the pictures on the site are from past events in Tioga County, and she was asked to write a prolog for the booklet.

"We have a responsibility to educate the nonfarm public," said Butters.

State FFA Auction Fundraiser Raises More Than $10,000

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

STEVENS (Lancaster Co.) — Three "H's" were in effect Monday: hot, humid . . . and honorable.

About 288 golf enthusiasts, including many agri-industry representatives, went bravely to the links Monday afternoon for a great cause — raising money for FFA.

The largest intercurriculum group in the world, FFA, raised money for the state foundation through the annual Hatfield Fore FFA East tournament conducted at two courses — Fox Chase Golf Club in Stevens and Galen Hall and Country Club in Wernersville.

Afterward, an auction of donated items brought in $10,500. The fundraising event sponsors and coordinators were still counting up the total take from the tournament as of presstime.

Lancaster Farming was a hole sponsor and contributed to the event.

For individual accomplishments during the sweltering tournament, Bill Shuey Jr. had what could only be called "cruel luck." Shuey won two closest-to-the-pins awards, but narrowly missed (by an eighth of an inch, he said, at the lip of the cup) a hole-in-one for the free car at Fox Chase.

First-place winners at Fox Chase with a score of 58 were members of the team sponsored by M.H. Eby Inc. They included Pete Fredrickson, Mike Christoffel, Menno Eby, and Craig Hartranft.

First-place winners at Galen Hall, with a score of 59, were members of the Saul Ewing Company team, including Patrick Wolfe, Cathy Devlin, John Bisordi, and Nick Nastasi.

Second-place Fox Chase winners, with a score of 62, were the team from First Union, including Ted Bowers, Bill Hughes, Scott Hausman, and Blaine Fessler.

Second-place Galen Hall team, with a score of 61, included Rich Schwarzman, Elizabethtown School District; Tony Grimes, Tony's Pizza; Dirk Madison, Cumberland School District; and Vic Madison.

Third-place Fox Chase team included Steve Moran, Herr Foods; Dave Huston, U.S. Postal Service; Gary Robinson, G&F Carpet; and Scott Gold, Oxford High School.

For individual accomplishments during the sweltering tournament, Bill Shuey Jr., right, had what could only be called "cruel luck." Shuey won two closest-to-the-pins awards, but narrowly missed (by an eighth of an inch, he said, at the lip of the cup) a hole-in-one for the free car at Fox Chase. At left is Tim Lesher, state FFA vice president.

Willie Sole, state FFA Foundation president, noted the work of the funding branch for the State FFA Association.

Sole, store manager of Tractor Supply Company, Indiana, noted the many items placed for auction to support FFA. He spoke about the supreme work ethic of FFA members, who crafted many items for sale at the auction after the tournament.

FFA students "learn personal responsibility and responsibilities as part of a team," said Sole.

One of those items included a lamb donated by Dr. Robert Herr of Nix Besser Livestock. Sarah Nolt, daughter of Charlene and Gene Nolt, New Holland, will exhibit the lamb.

Sarah, in the 11th grade, at the end of the show season will donate 50 percent of the sale amount to the FFA Foundation and the other half to the R.D. Herr Scholarship Fund for Grassland FFA at Garden Spot High School.

"She, in turn, is learning to give back to the FFA," said Sole.

Some of the items for sale at the auction included:

- A wooden doghouse constructed by the New Oxford FFA
- A patio table and stools donated by a Foundation supporter
- Seven cherry and apple pies donated by Mrs. Zerby, West Snyder FFA
- An Arnold Palmer-signed golf course tractor cart model
- Paintings by renowned wildlife artist Greg Yoder from Grassland FFA.

Other items included a barbecue station cart, tractor models, birdhouses, a cord extension base, woodworking (Octoraro FFA made several wooden benches and stools), cigar sets, a Joe Paterno-autographed football, a hand-sewn quilt, and other items.

Auctioneer was Glenn Wenger.

Wengers of Myerstown sponsored a special quartet, "Sanctuary," from Jacksonville, Fla. to sing the National Anthem. Members included Brad Weeks, Dusty Weeks, Doug Warren, and Richard Henderson, with sound engineer Loran Crews.

The next fundraising event for the FFA will be the Hoss's Fore FFA West at the Scotch Valley Country Club in Duncansville on Monday, Aug. 12.

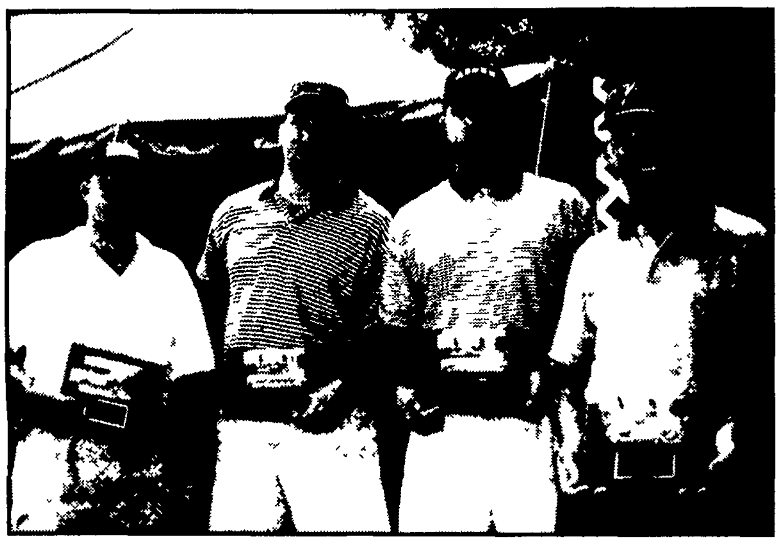
For more information, call (814) 867-9230.

State officers on hand for the tournament Monday included David Bittner, president; Drew Cowden, western vice president; Mark Fulton, treasurer; Andy Allwine, sentinel; Courtney Miller, eastern region vice president; Anthony Seymore, chaplain; Mary Strasbaugh, south central vice president; Jon Lauver, north central vice president; Emily Grove, secretary; Julie Flinchbaugh, reporter; and Timothy Lesher, vice president.

Third-place Fox Chase team included Steve Moran, Herr Foods; Dave Huston, U.S. Postal Service; Gary Robinson, G&F Carpet; and Scott Gold, Oxford High School.

The third-place Galen Hall team included Bobby Jones, Ag Choice Farm Credit; Darrell Curtis, Ag Choice Farm Credit; Ron Stahl, friend of Ag Choice Farm Credit; and Larry Shirk, Wenger Feeds.

Second-place Fox Chase winners, with a score of 62, were the team from First Union, including Ted Bowers, Bill Hughes, Scott Hausman, and Blaine Fessler.



Second-place Galen Hall team, with a score of 61, included Rich Schwarzman, Elizabethtown School District; Tony Grimes, Tony's Pizza; Dirk Madison, Cumberland School District; and Vic Madison.

First-place winners at Fox Chase with a score of 58 were members of the team sponsored by M.H. Eby Inc. They included Pete Fredrickson, Mike Christoffel, Menno Eby, and Craig Hartranft.

First-place winners at Galen Hall, with a score of 59, were members of the Saul Ewing Company team, including Patrick Wolfe, Cathy Devlin, John Bisordi, and Nick Nastasi.

NASS
Agriculture Counts

By Marc Tosiano
Pa. State Statistician

Editor's Note: This is a monthly column from the Pennsylvania Ag Statistics Service (PASS), a field office of USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS) in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA). The Website is www.usda.gov/nass/.

SEE YOU AT AG PROGRESS DAYS

If you are attending Ag Progress Days, please stop by our booth in the Conservation Education Tent. We will be there all three days to provide information and discuss the use of NASS statistics.

Some of the handouts available will include "2002 Census of Agriculture," "Aides For Teachers and Home Schoolers," "State and County Ag Profiles And Rankings," Internet access, free e-mail subscriptions, and samples of reports from NASS and the Pennsylvania Ag Statistics Service.

Ag Census Screening Under Way

About 600,000 potential farms and ranches across the country have recently received a 2002 Farm Identification Survey in the mail. These are additional names from the April and May mailings done last spring.

The intent of the survey is to identify agricultural operations for the 2002 Census of Agriculture.

Agricultural research, education, services, and programs for growers all depend on state and county statistics from the United States Census of Agriculture! So it is important to count every farm — even small, part-time, or hobby farms.

The Farm Identification Survey consists of seven short questions which will help determine agricultural status. Simple "yes" or "no" questions will ask about growing crops or raising livestock in any quantity. The short survey should take less than five minutes to complete and mail in the postage-paid envelope.

About 50,000 surveys will be sent to potential farms in Pennsylvania. In surrounding states, the approximate counts are as follows: about 5,000 in New York, 1,000 in New Jersey, 5,000 in Maryland, 200 in Delaware, 500 in West Virginia, and about 19,000 in Ohio.

Many people who do not consider themselves to be farmers or ranchers actually qualify as farmers and are important to the 2002 Census of Agriculture. The term "farm" includes much more than just field crops, hay, fruit, vegetables, cattle, hogs, sheep, goats, and chickens. Agriculture includes many other products such as nursery and greenhouse products, sod, maple syrup, Christmas trees, mushrooms, aquaculture, honey, horses, other equine, llamas, fur-bearing animals, rabbits, wild game, elk, bison, deer, exotic livestock, emus, ostriches, pheasant, and quail.

Some folks say they are retired from agriculture because they produce much less crops or livestock than when they were actively farming. However, for example, someone who is retired and now only has a few head of cattle and cuts a few acres of hay is still considered an active farm for the Ag Census.

Responses to the Farm Identification Survey and the 2002 Census of Agriculture are mandatory under Title 7, U.S. Code, which also assures growers that all information provided to NASS is confidential and will not be provided to any individual, organization, or other government agency.

The 2002 Census of Agriculture forms will be sent to 2.75 million potential farms and ranches in December 2002. For additional information about the Farm Identification Survey or the 2002 Census of Agriculture, get online at www.usda.gov/nass/ or call toll-free (888) 4AG-STAT or (888) 424-7828.

Aquaculture

For 2001, Pennsylvania producers of aquaculture products reported sales totaling $8.8 million, 5 percent above the previous year. Only those with over $1,000 in gross receipts were included in the summary.

Sales of food fish comprised 80 percent of the total sales with the remainder of the sales made up of sport and game fish, baitfish, crustaceans, mollusks, ornamental fish, and other animal aquaculture (tadpoles and frogs).

There were $5 million from trout sales, 3 percent over 2000. Trout makes up 57 percent of total aquaculture sales in Pennsylvania. For 2001, this ranks Pennsylvania as the fourth largest state for trout sales behind Idaho with $34.8 million, North Carolina with $6.5 million, and California with $6 million.

The fifth largest trout producer is Washington with $3.5 million. Pennsylvania is the leading state for trout distributed for restoration, conservation, and recreational purposes. These are fish raised primarily by state and federal hatcheries. Nationwide these distributed fish were valued at $64.8 million in 2001.

The top states are valued as follows: Pennsylvania with $10.8 million, Colorado with $7.6 million, California with $7.3 million, Oregon with $6.5 million, and Washington with $5.3 million.

Crop Forecasts

Last month I discussed NASS yield forecast statistics. Here are the latest results for the 2002 crop in Pennsylvania.

As of July 1, oat yield is expected to be 64 bushels, winter wheat 59 bushels, and barley 76 bushels per acre. After combining these yield forecasts with acreage statistics from the June Acreage Survey, production is expected to be larger than last year for each of these three crops.

The peach crop is expected to be 20 percent smaller than last year's production, based on July forecasts. Tart cherry production in Pennsylvania is forecast to be 5 percent above last year. However, the national crop is only 59.1 million pounds compared to 369.3 million last year. Michigan, the largest producing state, only produced 5 percent of last year's crop because of unusual spring weather that devastated the 2002 crop. The Michigan crop was only 15 million pounds compared to 297 million in 2001 and 200 million pounds in 2000.

Sweet cherry production in Pennsylvania is expected to be 34 percent below the 2000 crop.

All yield forecasts assume normal growing conditions for the remainder of the season.

Sweet corn for fresh market is showing a 3 percent decline in harvested acres compared to last year. Sweet corn processors have contracted 1,500 acres in 2002, compared to only 650 acres last year. Snap bean processors have contracted 3,600 acres, only 44 percent of last year's 8,200 acres.

Northeast Order Uniform Milk Price For June Announced

BOSTON, Mass. — Erik F. Rasmussen, market administrator for the Northeast Marketing Area, has announced that the statistical uniform price paid by milk dealers (handlers) regulated under the Northeast Order for June 2002 is $12.38 per hundredweight ($1.06 per gallon) for milk delivered to plants located in Suffolk County, Mass. (Boston). The June statistical uniform price is $12.28 for delivery to plants in New York, N.Y., and $12.18 for delivery to plants in Philadelphia. The statistical uniform price is the benchmark minimum producer blend price paid to dairy farmers, prior to allowable deductions, for milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat, 2.99 percent protein, and 5.69 percent other solids. The price received by an individual dairy farmer will vary as the component composition of a farm's milk differs from the established benchmarks and by the location of the plant(s) to which the farm's milk is delivered.

Rasmussen also stated that the producer price differential (PPD) for June is $2.29 per hundredweight for milk delivered to plants located in Suffolk County, Mass. The PPD represents each producer's share of the value generated by the marketwide pool on a hundredweight basis. The PPD, which is added to the payment producers receive for their milk's components, is adjusted for the location of the receiving plant. The statistical uniform price and PPD decrease by scheduled amounts the more distant the plant receiving producer milk is from Suffolk County.

The Class prices for milk pooled in June are as follows: Class I, $14.28 (Suffolk County); Class II, $11.19; Class III, $10.09; and Class IV, $10.52. Comparable prices for June 2001 were: Class I $18.24, Class II $16.05, Class III $15.02, and Class IV price $15.33. The component values for June 2002 are protein, $2.0148 per pound; butterfat, $1.1211 per pound; other solids, $0.0247 per pound; and nonfat solids, $0.7605 per pound.

Milk receipts from producers totaled 2.135 billion pounds. Class I utilization, milk processed as beverage milk, was 38.1 percent of producer milk receipts. The average Class I utilization was 40.7 percent in June 2001.

The manufacture of Class II products such as cream, ice cream, yogurt, and cottage cheese utilized 17.3 percent of producer milk. Milk used to manufacture Class III products such as cheese (American and Italian) and evaporated and condensed products utilized 32.3 percent of total milk receipts. Class IV usage (butter, nonfat and whole milk powder) equaled 12.3 percent of the total.

4-H, FFA Members Will Be Recognized At Fair Banquet

VIRGINVILLE (Berks Co.) — In addition to the outstanding farm family, 4-H'ers and FFA'ers will be recognized at Wednesday's banquet.

The outstanding 4-H members to be recognized this year by the Reading Fair Board will be Heather Seifrit and Jared Treichler.

Jared's main 4-H focus has been the 4-H swine project where he has won two grand champion and one reserve champion 4-H swine project awards.

Jared was a member of the Berks County 4-H Swine Club for seven years and a member of the Berks County 4-H Sheep Club for one year.

He was the high scoring individual in his age division of the 4-H Swine Skill-a-thon for five consecutive years. Jared served the Berks County 4-H Swine Club as vice president in 2001 and was a teen leader for three years. A 2002 graduate of Fleetwood Area High School where he was a member of the varsity soccer, football and baseball teams. He plans to attend East Stroudsburg University as a biology major in the fall.

Jared Treichler lives with his mother and stepfather, Sandy and George Stump, and his older sister, Melissa, in Fleetwood. Jared's father and stepmother, Rodney and Lonna Treichler, reside in Virginville.

Heather Seifrit is a 10-year member of the Top Notch 4-H Equestrians Club where her main 4-H focus has been 4-H horse projects. She has completed projects in both the performance (riding) and production (breeding) divisions. She was successful in her riding and raising of horses, qualifying to exhibit at the State 4-H Horse Show five times.

She was named the Outstanding 4-H Horse Club Member in the junior, intermediate and senior divisions by the Berks County 4-H Horse Program. Heather served her club as president, vice president, secretary, news reporter, sergeant at arms, and was a teen leader for six years.

Heather is a 2001 graduate of Daniel Boone Area High School where she was a member of the softball and bowling teams and active in French Club and Key Club. She currently attends Penn State — Berks/Lehigh Valley College with a major in criminal justice.

Heather lives with her mother and father, Betty and Kenny Seifrit in Douglassville. She has an older brother, Harry and an older sister, Debbie.

Anson Dietrich, Kutztown FFA, has been active in the FFA for the past four years, having served as reporter and historian. The scrapbook he prepared this year placed second in state competition. He has also chaired the citrus sale, pumpkin judging, awards banquet, and window exhibit committees.

He has won many awards at the Reading, Kutztown, and Allentown Fairs for tabletop displays. Anson placed first in meat evaluations at Penn State FFA Days and received a silver medal at National Convention. He also attended the FFA Leadership Conference in Washington, D.C. Anson is a member of National Honor Society and received the Dekalb Award for agriculture and the top accounting award at graduation.

Anson's SAE project is raising broilers and he is also employed in his family's business. Dietrich's Meats and Dietrich Family Farms. He is an active member of Virginville Grange and helps at fairs and banquets.

Anson is the son of Marlin G. and Dawn M. Dietrich.

Andrew Dietrich, Kutztown FFA, has belonged to FFA since ninth grade having served as chaplain, treasurer, and reporter. He also served on the citrus sale and window exhibit committees.

Kutztown FFA's window exhibit received first place at the 2002 Pennsylvania Farm Show. He also has won many awards at the Reading, Kutztown, and Allentown Fairs for tabletop displays. Andrew placed sixth at Penn State FFA Days and received a bronze medal at national convention. He also attended the FFA Leadership Conference in Washington, D.C.

Andrew is a member of the National Honor Society and received the Good Citizenship Award from Michael O'Pake and the top business student award at graduation.

Andrew's SAE is raising hogs and he is also employed in his family's business, Dietrich's Meats and Dietrich Family Farms. He is an active member of Virginville Grange where he serves as steward and also helps at fairs and banquets.

Andrew is the son of Marlin G. and Dawn M. Dietrich of Kempton.

NFU Says Farm Disaster Needs Remain Unmet

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Congress missed a chance to provide much-needed disaster assistance for farmers as the Senate passed the defense supplemental bill last week, National Farmers Union said.

"While Congress has assisted other emergency losses, the natural disasters that devastate crop and livestock producers are still ignored," said NFU President Dave Frederickson.

Montana Sens. Max Baucus and Conrad Burns offered a bipartisan amendment to the defense supplemental bill that would have provided $1.8 billion in emergency assistance for crop production loss due to natural disasters and $500 million to livestock producers forced to liquidate herds or purchase additional feed rations because of grazing and haying losses. The amendment was not considered due to a procedural move.

Montana Farmers Union President Del Styren, a fourth-generation wheat and barley farmer from Brady, Mont., has experienced the drought effects first-hand.

"In 2001 I could only harvest 25 percent of my acres, and crop insurance hardly covered the production costs so there was little to nothing to live on," Styren said. "In an average year I can yield at least 45 bushels (per acre) of winter wheat and 60 to 65 bushels of barley. Last year I got 15 bushels of barley and no winter wheat."

Styren said some parts of Montana are facing a fourth year of drought conditions. In 2001, the agriculture secretary declared the entire state a disaster. More than 1,500 U.S. counties were also declared agricultural disaster areas due to drought, disease and insect infestations.

Although Baucus tried to address the situation with $2.4 billion in emergency disaster relief in the Senate farm bill proposal, the House of Representatives rejected the provision in conference and removed it from the final version of the bill.

"The farm bill is a step in the right direction, but disaster assistance is needed now," said Styren. "Five years means nothing to anyone who won't be here in two years. People are hanging on by a thread."

National Farmers Union has strongly supported supplemental emergency disaster assistance through letters and testimony before Congress. Frederickson said his organization will now work toward a disaster assistance amendment to the upcoming agriculture appropriations bill.

Farm Groups Call For Emergency Disaster Assistance

WASHINGTON, D.C. — National Farmers Union and 11 other farm groups recently sent a letter to Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman urging the administration's support of and active engagement in securing emergency disaster assistance for farmers and ranchers.

The organizations commended Veneman for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's timely announcements and actions to address natural disasters devastating crop and livestock production in 2001 and 2002. However, the farm organizations pointed out in the letter that there is still a desperate need for emergency programs to "reduce tragic weather-and disease-caused economic impacts experienced by farmers, ranchers and their communities throughout much of rural America."

National Farmers Union President Dave Frederickson said the 2002 farm bill was a leap forward for rural America in providing a safety net for producers, but that the new farm law fails to provide emergency disaster assistance.

Congress has enacted production loss disaster assistance each of the last four years, but not for producers who suffered losses in 2001. Last year, drought conditions devastated large portions of Maine, Vermont, California, Tennessee, South Carolina, Ohio, Indiana, New York, New Mexico, Wyoming, Virginia, Washington and Idaho, and the entire state of Montana.

In 2002, the drought has persisted in Montana, New Mexico and Wyoming and has spread to Colorado, Arizona, South Dakota, Nebraska and Texas. In addition, army worms have infested New York and Maine crops, and more than two million birds have been struck with avian flu in Virginia. Recently, Minnesota agriculture producers have been struggling to stay afloat due to flooding.

ASA Strongly Opposes Amendments To 2002 Farm Bill

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The American Soybean Association (ASA) joined other farm organizations recently at a press conference in Washington, D.C., to express strong opposition to any amendments to the 2002 Farm Bill.

ASA First Vice President Ron Heck, a soybean producer from Perry, Iowa, spoke at the press conference about the need to maintain the spending allocations as outlined in the new Farm Bill.

"After two years of uncertainty over new farm legislation, and historically low prices, farmers now need stability to make long-term plans for their operations and their families," Heck said. "The last thing we need is for congress to reopen the 2002 act and start reducing or modifying our safety net."

ASA was a strong supporter of provisions outside the commodity title of the 2002 Act that benefit U.S. soybean producers. These include increased tonnages under various food aid programs, and higher funding for the Foreign Market Development (FMD) program and Market Access Program (MAP).

ASA also supported the expanded scope of conservation initiatives, including the Environmental Quality Incentive Program (EQIP) and the conservation security program for working lands. In addition, ASA expects soybeans to benefit from provisions of the energy title of the bill, including incentives for increased use of biodiesel and other soy-based bioproducts.

"ASA is opposed to reducing spending in the Farm Bill to fund other programs, including disaster assistance," Heck said. "ASA joins other farm groups in strongly opposing amendments to the 2002 Farm Bill."

Land O'Lakes Joins Mitsui In Cheese And Protein Venture

TULARE, Calif. — Land O'Lakes, Inc., Arden Hills, Minn., and Mitsui and Co., Ltd., Tokyo, Japan, recently launched Cheese and Protein International, LLC, a joint venture cheese and whey production facility in Tulare, Calif.

Chris Policinski, Land O'Lakes executive vice president and Dairy Foods chief operating officer, said the facility is "where the processing, supply chain management and marketing capabilities of Land O'Lakes and Mitsui and the milk production capabilities of Tulare-area dairy producers meet the opportunities we are seeing in the cheese markets."

The plant's location in the nation's number-one milk-producing county, and the fact that U.S. per capita cheese consumption has increased by more than 20 percent since 1990 pointed to its investment potential, Policinski said.

Masayoshi Sato, chief operating officer, Foods Unit, Consumer Products and Services Group, Mitsui and Co., Ltd., added that his company sees tremendous potential for the new plant.

The plant, with an initial capacity of 3.4 million pounds of milk per day, is producing mozzarella cheese, dried whey, and whey fractions. Construction on the approximately $150 million facility began in November 2000, and was completed on-time and on-budget. A significant expansion, bringing the plant's capacity to approximately six million pounds of milk daily, is anticipated.

AMI Vows To Fight Packer Ban

WASHINGTON, DC — Vertical integration and strategic alliances used in many American industries should not be made illegal for meat packers, according to the American Meat Institute (AMI), for such an action will turn the clock back on industry progress and the quality provided to consumers.

AMI President J. Patrick Boyle vowed to fight efforts to ban packers' ability to own and control livestock when he delivered testimony today before the Senate Committee on Agriculture.

"We will oppose any effort to restrict meat packers who comply with existing antitrust and fair business practice laws from sourcing their raw materials in any way," said AMI President J. Patrick Boyle. "It is unfair to make it illegal for the meat industry to compete effectively with the vertically integrated poultry industry and many other vertically integrated industries for the consumer's dollar."

In addition to federal antitrust laws like the Sherman and Clayton Act, meat packers are also subject to the Packers and Stockyards Act, a statute unique to the meat industry.

"To my knowledge, there is no other sector of the U.S. manufacturing or service economy in which government plays such a watchdog role with respect to raw material suppliers," Boyle said.

According to Boyle, consumers want consistent product quality at the lowest possible price. Consumer demand has led to fewer and larger retail chains in fields as diverse as home improvement, video rentals, food and consumer products and fast food.

"Just ask anyone who supplies products to Wal-Mart or McDonalds what this means: it means you must meet their standards or you can't sell to them," he said.

"This is the way business is done today and the meat industry should be no exception." Iowa-based Winnebago and Maytag are two examples of companies that have used vertical integration to provide high quality products, he noted, as is Gateway computers, founded by an Iowa cattleman.

Boyle told lawmakers that the meat industry has done many things including increasing coordination with livestock producers and even owning some livestock — to ensure that meat products meet consumer expectations.

As a result of strategic alliances, packers today sell beef that is 27 percent leaner than it was in the 1980s and pork that is 31 percent leaner. Coordination and vertical integration also have created beef and pork products that are increasingly convenient and consistent, and many are value-added with features like marinades and sauces added to fresh, branded products.

Consumers spend far less of their disposable income on meat than they did 30 years ago, according to Boyle: 1.9 percent of disposable income, compared to 4.1 percent in 1970.

"This is a trend of which we are proud and one that provides consumers a distinct benefit," he said. We should not rush to undo the foundations of this success without understanding the ramifications for everyone involved."

"The benefits to farmers were perhaps most vivid during the hog market crash of 1998, when spot market prices for an unanticipated over-supply of hogs dropped to as low as $9 per cwt. Those hog farmers with contracts had locked into much higher prices for their hogs generally $35 and more per cwt and were protected from the low market prices," Boyle said.

"Packers with contracts, on the other hand, were obviously paying far over the market value for their hogs at the time. Both parties to the contract, however, benefited from the certainty provided by a steady, consistently priced, contracted supply of hogs."

PDMP Members Meet On Large Dairy Farms

Frey Dairy Farm Meeting Set For Aug. 8

SPRUCE CREEK (Huntingdon Co.) — About 130 dairy producers and professionals gathered here recently for one of a series of membership meetings sponsored by the Professional Dairy Managers of Pennsylvania (PDMP.)

Wayne and Marjorie Harpster and their three sons, Abe, Aaron, and Andy, hosted the meeting on their dairy, Evergreen Farms Inc. This operation features a herd of more than 2000 cows. The Harpster family shared their story of growth and transition of management and ownership between generations.

Gary Snider from Farm Credit of Western New York also spoke on "Bringing the Next Generation into Management and Ownership," sharing tips and resources that will help producers plan together for themselves and the future.

More on this meeting is scheduled to appear in the Dairy Plus booklet in Lancaster Farming's Sept. 21 issue.

The next membership meeting for PDMP is scheduled for Aug. 8 at Frey Dairy Farm, Inc. in Conestoga, Lancaster County. This meeting will offer some practical tips for "Working Together: Building Employee Communication" Producers will learn how Tom Frey put together a team of four managers and how they continue to work through their different management styles and communication challenges. Attendees will also have an opportunity to talk with each of the Frey dairy managers.

For those with smaller dairies and family labor, Rich Stup, Penn State Dairy Alliance, will add some insight on "Communicating with Family Employees and Managers."

Cost for the meeting is $10 for PDMP members, $50 for nonmembers. The program runs from 8:45 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Lunch is included.

Reservations are required. Please send payment and RSVP by July 31 to Tammy Perkins: 324 Henning Building, University Park, PA 16802 or call toll free at (888) 373-7232, fax at (814) 865-4686, or email at tap10@psu.edu.

Farmers Union Members Testify On Livestock Concentration

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Farmers Union members Paul Jackson of Ringling, Okla., and Nolan Jungclaus of Lake Lillian, Minn., testified before the U.S. Senate Committee on Agriculture today about livestock concentration negatively impacting their farming and ranching operations.

The hearing focused on the U.S. Department of Agriculture's enforcement of the Packers and Stockyards Act, and specifically explored a proposed ban on packers owning livestock more than 14 days before slaughter.

As an independent grain and livestock producer, Jungclaus testified that concentration in the livestock industry, spearheaded by meatpackers who own and feed their own livestock, is "sucking the lifeblood out of rural communities."

Jungclaus spelled out the need for action and not additional studies on the concentration issue. "A study will do nothing for family farmers while allowing the packers the opportunity to control the rest of the hog industry and an increasing share of the beef industry until there is nothing left for the American farmer except raising the owner's livestock for them on contract," he said.

"I don't need a study to see the impact that consolidation has on Bob Hall who owns our local gas and grocery store and is forced to live on ever-tightening margins as packers and large retailers work together to eliminate competition," Jungclaus said. "And, I don't need a study to show me that the hardships our local businesses face directly impact our church offerings and the tax base that supports our schools and hospitals. It is time to take action and pass the ban on packer ownership of livestock."

Jackson, a fourth-generation farmer who runs stocker cattle in south central Oklahoma, told the Committee that meatpackers, which already control up to 80 percent of the processing, have been able to undercut market competition by owning cattle and staying out of the cash market for extended periods of time.

In addition to a ban on packer ownership of livestock, Jackson said Congress must modernize the Packers and Stockyards Act to work in today's cattle market to provide real protections for agriculture producers."Livestock producers, better than anyone, know how to produce top quality cattle, but they require open, transparent and competitive markets to benefit from their production," said Jackson.

Crop Research Highlights Penn State Field Day

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences will reveal the latest advances in farming here at its annual Crop Management Field Day, Tuesday, July 23 at the Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center.

Research into cultivation techniques, new varieties, and pest management systems will be presented by college faculty.

"This is an opportunity for crop producers, ag industry folks and others to see some of the research underway at the research farm," said Gregory Roth, associate professor of agronomy in the crop and soil sciences department. "They also can interact with Penn State crop specialists from various departments."

Research will be featured on four one-hour tours running sequentially from 9:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. Each tour will be conducted twice, and individuals will have an opportunity to attend all four tours.

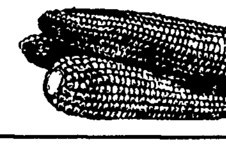
The corn research tour will demonstrate hybrid testing for corn silage, polymer corn seed coatings, twin row corn planting techniques, and strategies for evaluating hail damage effects on silage corn.

The tillage, Bt, and white mold tour will present research on zone till corn, Bt corn hybrids and their isolines, and white mold and weed management in soybeans.

The fertility and soil quality tour will highlight studies on popup and alternative starter fertilizers for corn on high P soils, as well as nutrient cycling and crop rotations and soil biological activity.

The weed management tour will focus on predicting weed emergence with GDDs, spatial weed management, herbicide screening, and glyphosate and weed shifts.

The Larson Agricultural Research Center is located at Rockspring, nine miles southwest of State College on Rt. 45. The field day is open to the public. Registration will be $10 and includes lunch. Attendees can reserve a space by calling (814) 865-2543 or by sending e-mail to lac8@psu.edu. The day offers a total of four credits toward certified crop adviser (CCA) certification programs for professional agronomists.



Clean, fresh, quality drinking water on your farm could make a bigger difference than you think.

FOCUS ON DAIRY

Penn State Cooperative Extension
Capitol Region Dairy Team

MEET BETH GROVE

Beth Grove recently accepted a position with Penn State Cooperative Extension to work as a dairy/environmental extension agent in Lancaster County. She is a graduate of Virginia Tech, where she studied under Dr. Raymond Nebel to receive her master's degree in reproductive physiology.

In addition to growing up on a dairy farm and helping to manage the family dairy farm, she has worked as a sire analyst for an AI organization, worked as a regional extension dairy agent in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia, and as a vocational agricultural instructor. Beth has a wealth of experience to share with us, and we welcome her to the Capitol Region Extension Dairy Team.

GETTING THE COW HERD BRED DURING THE SUMMER HEAT

M. Beth Grove
Extension Agent —
Dairy/Environment
Lancaster County

The summer of 2002 has arrived with a vengeance, and many dairy herds in our area are experiencing the effects of heat stress in their reproductive programs.

Dairy cattle are difficult to catch in heat during any time of the year, and research has shown that the average lactating cow stands to be mounted only nine times within an eight-hour period during each heat cycle. As the weather becomes hot, cows will become even less active with fewer mounts during estrus.

Heat stress can also cause problems with the developing embryo, including early embryonic death. Since it takes more than two months for individual follicles on the ovary to fully develop, the effects of heat stress on reproduction may be seen well into the autumn months.

Many producers see a herd bull as a "quick cure" for summer breeding problems, but heat affects the bull as much as the cow. Studies have shown that even short periods of summer heat stress can adversely affect semen quality for several weeks. The amounts of semen produced by the bull can also be reduced, resulting in lower pregnancy rates.

So what can be done to increase reproductive efficiency during the summer months? Certainly keeping cows as cool and stress-free as possible is important, but these additional tips may help your breeding program during the next several weeks:

- Watch for signs of heat more frequently — three or four times daily whenever possible. Observe the cows for heat during cooler periods of the day, ideally during early morning or late evening.
- Use estrus synchronization programs to aid or even eliminate heat detection.
- Use bulls with above-average "ERCRs" or estimated conception rates. Most AI companies carry bulls that have been identified as "superior" settlers.
- Try to breed cows as soon as possible after catching them for insemination. Don't expect them to stand in a poorly ventilated area without feed or water for long periods of time before breeding.

Poultry Exhibits Cancelled At County Fairs

SUMMIT STATION (Schuylkill Co.) — There will be no poultry or egg classes offered at fairs in Pennsylvania until further notice due to an Avian Influenza outbreak in Virginia.

According to the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, state veterinarian, Dr. John Enck, "It is completely understood that there is considerable interest in poultry exhibits to include eggs for display for competition. But given the volatile situation with Avian Influenza at the present time in the eastern U.S.A., we must protect Pennsylvania's poultry industry, which generates almost 700 million dollars annually."

Avian Influenza cannot be transmitted to the human species through the ingestion of poultry, eggs, or meat. Therefore, food stands at county fairs are permitted to serve poultry products.

"The Schuylkill County Fair is sad to announce that there will be no poultry or egg displays at the Fair this year," said Craig R. Morgan, fair president. "However, we fully understand the severity of the situation and agree that we must protect Pennsylvania's poultry industry at this time," Morgan concluded.

Hay Sources Sought For Virginia Farmers

RICHMOND, Va. — The Virginia Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services has issued notices to the media to reach sources for hay. Drought conditions in the state have made many farmers turn to hay much earlier than usual to feed their livestock and they are seeking suppliers for what has become a somewhat scarce commodity.

The Virginia Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services, through its Virginia Market News Service, publishes the Virginia Hay Clearing House newsletter to assist farmers who are interested in purchasing supplemental stocks of hay.To list hay to sell in the newsletter, contact Market News by phone, fax, e-mail or via the Department's Website. Call 800-552-5521 — 24 hours a day — and select option 6; fax (804) 371-7787; or e-mail marketnews@vdacs.state.va.us. Include the seller's name, address, phone, fax and pager numbers, e-mail address, delivery services, hay description including type, amount, bale form, bale weight, quality, cutting, price, location and delivery services, if any. The on-line Hay Clearing House Request Form is available at http://www.vdacs.state.va.us/marketnews/hay.html.

For more information, contact J.P. Welch at Virginia Market News Service, (804) 786-3947.

Seniors' Farmers Market Nutrition Program Expanded

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Senior Citizens' Farmers Market Nutrition Program has been expanded in all 67 Pennsylvania counties for the 2002 season, with more than $3.5 million now available for coupons for seniors to purchase fresh Pennsylvania fruits and vegetables.

"This program is a unique partnership between nutritionally at-risk seniors and Pennsylvania's farmers markets and roadside stands that sell fruits and vegetables of the highest quality."

The program was initiated in 1998 as a pilot project, serving an estimated 175,000 seniors in 2002. T he Senior Citizens' Farmers Market Nutrition Program provides eligible seniors with $20 in coupons toward the purchase of Pennsylvania fruits and vegetables.

Participating seniors enjoy the ability to stretch their food budgets, visit their favorite markets and experience the flavor of Pennsylvania's home-grown produce, such as tomatoes, sweet corn, peppers, beans, squash, melons, berries, apples and peaches.

The program also strives to develop direct market opportunities with nearly 560 participating markets and roadside stands. Coupons may be redeemed through Nov. 30.

Ag Showcase To Highlight Biofuels, Farmland Preservation, Multiflora Rose Control

FAIR HILL, Md. — This year's Ag Showcase at the Cecil County Fair will have something for everyone interested in agriculture and a clean environment, according to Scott Rowe, ag extension educator for Maryland Cooperative Extension in Cecil County.

"This year's showcase will highlight three diverse topics: biofuels, farmland preservation, and control of multiflora rose, a serious invasive weed," Rowe said. 'All three topics are important to farmers and nonfarmers alike."In addition, participating equipment dealers will demonstrate a broad range of equipment — much of it running on biofuel — for full- and part-time farmers with various enterprises and acreages. Forage handling equipment will be highlighted.

Biofuels contain varying amounts of oils or alcohols made from agricultural crops. The most common types are biodiesel, a mix of petroleum diesel fuel and a crop oil such as soy oil, and gasohol, a mixture of petroleum gasoline and ethanol fermented from crops such as barley or corn.Representatives from USDA-ARS, Maryland Grain Producers Association, and fuel manufacturers and distributors will be at the Showcase to discuss all aspects of biofuels, including plans for an ethanol plant in Maryland.

Multiflora rose is closely related to ornamental roses and was promoted in the past for wildlife cover and soil conservation. It is easily spread by birds and other wildlife and has invaded many pastures, parklands, and other open spaces. It can be managed through use of chemical herbicides; mechanical control such as bulldozing, mowing or grinding and tilling; or grazing with browsing animals such as goats and sheep. In addition, a naturally occurring disease of roses, rose-rosette disease, is slowly moving into this area and may offer additional control.

Rowe will conduct a walk-through demonstration of multiflora rose management, including three herbicide treatments and two mechanical methods.

Farmland preservation programs and information are offered by several area agencies and organizations. Several, including Cecil Land Trust, Chesapeake Bay Trust, Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation, Maryland Environmental Trust, and Pennsylvania's Brandywine Conservancy will be on hand at the Showcase to offer advice. Farmers who wish to preserve their farmland should work closely with their attorney, estate planner, and these organizations in order to fully understand all the options and their impacts.

The Ag Showcase is sponsored by Maryland Cooperative Extension and the Cecil County Fair and is open to everyone interested in agriculture. It will be conducted near the Cecil County Fairgrounds Tuesday, July 23, from 10 a.m.-2:30 p.m. Admission is free, and lunch will be available on site for a nominal fee.

Visitors should drive to the Cecil County Fairgrounds and follow Ag Showcase signs to the site. For more information, call Scott Rowe at (410) 996-5280.

2002 All-American Dairy Show Judges Announced

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The 39th All-American Dairy Show will open on Sunday, Sept. 22, at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

Judges selected for the six national or regional breed shows are as follows:

- Norman Hill, a lifetime resident of Maryland, will be officiating the All-American Ayrshire Show on Tuesday, Sept. 24. He lives in Woodbine, Md., and owns and operates NH Cattle Co.

Hill was a member of the Maryland 4-H program, showing Ayrshire cattle, and was a member of the Maryland 4-H Dairy Judging Team. Along with his brother Allen, Hill developed a herd of Ayrshire cattle for over 23 years and was named premier breeder and exhibitor for seven times on the national level. Five All-Americans were developed from this herd. Hill brings with him to Harrisburg years of showing and judging experiences.

- Steven A. Hendress, Purdue University, will judge the Eastern National Brown Swiss Show on Wednesday, Sept. 25.

Hendress has judged nationally as well as internationally and was a member of the first Purdue Dairy Judging Team at the All-American Dairy Judging Contest in 1974. He lives in Wilcott, Ind. and is coach of the Purdue Dairy Judging Team, the Indiana All-State 4-H Dairy Judging Team and advisor for the Purdue Dairy Club. He is an instructor in Animal Science at the university.

Prior to his employment with Purdue, Hendress was very active in the family farm, breeding the Hoosier Knoll Brown Swiss. He feels his greatest accomplishment in the dairy industry has been breeding, owning, and developing the 1994 All-American Aged Cow, Hoosier Knoll Jade Monay.

- Judging the National Guernsey Show on Wednesday, Sept. 25, will be Denny Ferguson of Dryden, New York.

A former member of the Cornell University Dairy Judging Team, Ferguson began his dairy career at a young age on the McDonald Farms of Cortland, New York. After graduating from college, he returned to be herd manager of the farms until their dispersal. During this time, the McDonald Farms were named Premier Breeder on the national level 25 times. Ferguson has traveled from coast to coast showing cattle and as a fitter. He also is a district representative for Semex. He has judged shows throughout the U.S. and Canada.

- Brian Garrison will once again return to Harrisburg and judge the Eastern National Holstein Show on Thursday, Sept. 26. He is a lifelong resident of Ohio, living in Tifflin with his wife, Ann and their family.

Garrison is a graduate of Ohio State University and is active in breeding registered Brown Swiss with his brother on the Garbro Swiss family farm. He is a sire analyst for ABS Global, and has been associated with the A.I. business for more than 16 years. Brian was a member of the Ohio State University Team, which won the All-American Dairy Judging Contest, placing second as an individual. He has judged many shows internationally and has judged all six dairy breeds on the national level.

- Officiating at the Mid-Atlantic Regional Jersey Show on Thursday, Sept. 26, will be Curtis Day of Lake Wooden, Minn.

Day has judged and exhibited at the All-American Dairy Show numerous times. He has judged many shows nationally and has served on the All-American panels for Holstein and Brown Swiss breeds.

Day and his family owned and developed the Tri-Day Holstein herd, which was dispersed in March 2001. His family was breeder of well-known Tri-Day Adeen-ET, breeder of Tri-Day Ashlyn-ET, and many other successful members of the Bendy-Brook Odyssey Favorite Family.

- Making his first judging appearance at the All-American Dairy Show is Danny Huddleston of Alba, Texas.

Huddleston will be officiating the All-American Milking Shorthorn Show on Tuesday, Sept. 24. He has exhibited Milking Shorthorns at the All-American Dairy Show and has developed numerous All-American nominations, All-American award winners, and national champions. He was born and raised in Texas and has judged all over the United States. Huddleston judged in his youth through the 4-H and FFA programs and is currently coaching the local 4-H Dairy Judging Team. He is active in the National Milking Shorthorn Association and a member of the All-American Milking Shorthorn Futurity Committee. Danny resides with his wife, Shelly and daughter, Danielle, on their 450-acre farm, breeding Oak Grove Milking Shorthorns.

The All-American Dairy Show will be conducted September 22 to 26 at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg. Entry deadlines are Aug. 23 and Sept. 4. For more information, a premium list, and entry forms, contact the All-American Dairy Show Office at (717) 787-2905 or e-mail aads@state.pa.us.

Ag Council Hosts Summer Research Tour

At the swine research lab, Ken Kephart, professor in the department of dairy and animal science, highlighted several environmental research programs.

In the summer of 1999, for example, researchers working on a swine odor research program evaluated three odor-reducing technologies on eight farms and surveyed the neighbors to determine the effectiveness of the technologies. Biofiltration, exhausting air from the swine facility through a pile of wood chips, seems to show the most promise, he said.

Researchers have also been evaluating swine production sites since 1999 and making recommendations to producers to help mitigate odor problems. Kephart also highlighted a Manure Hauler Certification Program, begun in 2000, and an environmental certification program for producers, the Pennsylvania Environmental Agriculture Conservation Certificate of Excellence (PEACCE).

Eileen Wheeler, associate professor in the department of agricultural and biological engineering, described a project involving the use of wetlands in odor control at the swine facility.

The project includes separating the solid and liquid manure, then running the liquid manure into eight wetland tubs at a rate of 3,000 gallons per week. The tubes empty into an effluent tank. Based on prior, smaller studies, the researchers expect a 50-80 percent reduction of odors in the final liquid manure.

Microbes in the wetlands, explained Wheeler, convert the organic matter into carbon dioxide and water. The project uses disciplines such as horticulture to set up the greenhouse, an example of the collaboration necessary on many of the university's research projects.

Rick Day, an assistant professor of soil science and environmental information systems, described the use of Geographic Information Systems (GIS) in agriculture, land use, and commerce.

The AgMap program, said Day, includes more than 55 businesses that have registered online with a listing of their products and services. In the program the user can search by commodity and service for agriculture businesses in specified locations.

Gretchen Kuldau, assistant professor in the department of plant pathology, spoke about the university's study of mycotoxins, which are present in food, feed, and the indoor environment.

"Mycotoxins take a number of different tolls in the ag sector," said Kuldau. Mycotoxin in feed, for example, can cause productivity losses, veterinary costs, and testing costs. One project dealing with mycotoxins is to investigate their presence, and detrimental effect to cattle, in corn silage.

The incident and distribution in Pennsylvania is not well understood, she said. "Our hope is that at the end of the project we will be able to make recommendations on management practices that seem to be able to prevent mycotoxin formation," she said.

Another research project includes classifying and defining mycotoxins and putting the information into a web-accessible database.

At the Toftrees site, Todd Bowersox, a professor of silviculture at the school of forest resources, and Lisa Kelso, also from the school of forest resources, spoke about a program that irrigates the university's treated wastewater.

Since 1983, Penn State has recycled all of its wastewater by irrigating 520 acres of farm crops and forest areas. The project operates at approximately 70 percent of its four million gallons a day capacity. According to Bowersox, researchers have experimented with clear cutting, then either planting or letting the forest naturally reseed the area.

They have found that certain types of trees have adapted better to the high-moisture environment, said Kelso, who described the planting efforts of attempting to develop a plant community compatible with the irrigation system. They plan to reharvest the trees in 10-12 years.

Also at Toftrees, Bryan Swistock, extension associate in the school of forest resources, taught tour participants about well construction and safety. Private wells serve more than three million people in Pennsylvania, according to Swistock. However these wells, if not properly constructed or maintained, may be host to coliform bacteria from insects, mice, or groundwater coming in contact with well water.

Eileen Wheeler, associate professor in the department of agricultural and biological engineering, described a project involving the use of wetlands in odor control at the swine facility.

Research projects included disinfecting and fitting wells known to be contaminated with sanitary well caps. The second study focused on testing new wells with a sanitary well cap but no grout seal, a second component important in sanitary wells, Swistock said.

Jack Schultz, professor of entomology, presented his research on plant responses to their environments. Wounded plants emit responses (color or growth) that "fingerprint" what their attacker was. Researchers then decided to use plants as environmental reporters for pest attack or bio/chemical warfare.

Magnetoelastic sensors capable of sensing plant emissions will report the results, said Schultz. Plants can be used to locate and identify crop pests, pollutants, nutrients, etc. "Our overall goal is to deal with sensing and help augment the plant's responsive ability," he said.

At the Pennsylvania Animal Diagnostic Lab, veterinarian Patricia Dunn spoke about the lab's role in agriculture, in particular the recent avian influenza outbreak. Because of rapid detection and reporting of cases, aggressive biosecurity, and coordinated tracking and monitoring of the virus, the outbreak was quickly contained.

The animal Diagnostic Lab has worked on vaccine development and educational programs for the agriculture industry. Nine veterinarians work at the lab.

During the luncheon, Bruce McPheron spoke about agriculture biosecurity, which he defined as the effort to prevent the entry of a pathogen or pest into a susceptible population of plants or animals.

"This is the same question that we've been dealing with in various guises for years," he said. Agriculture has always been interested in making safe food, it's not anything new. Protecting the food supply is the "same sort of issues that we've always faced," he said.

Fawnridge Farms A Family Affair

Besides having strong ties as siblings, they "have met really neat kids, and have made a lot of friendships through farm organizations," she said.

Keith's parents also help occasionally with the milking.

The shared workload has forced the Treichler children to be responsible, according to Keith. "We couldn't have asked for better kids," said Sue.

Along with their cousins, the Treichler children help to make breeding decisions, fill silos, stack hay and straw, drive the wagons, and milk, among other farm jobs. The family does all of their own fieldwork except for crop spraying.

Besides farming, the family spends time together hunting or fishing. Brittni is ready for her first hunting season after receiving a gun for Christmas. Fishing and hunting are other family activities.

Although dairy farming leaves little room for vacations ("that goes with the career," Sue said), day trips and recreational activities such as hunting or fishing fit the bill for fun.

The family also enjoys a good working relationship with Keith's parents, Feryl and Jane Treichler, who live in the farmhouse on the premises. Besides their help with the cows and the operation of the farm, the "revolving door" according to Sue, of Jane's kitchen opens up to reveal a variety and abundance of baked goods. "She always has something for everyone," Sue said.

Reading fair board members Feryl and Jane, in fact, had received the Outstanding Farm Family Distinction in 1975. Since the award was introduced in 1956, there have been several instances of the second generation receiving the award.

A Longtime Dairy

Keith and Sue, who are renting the land and building, are purchasing the farm from Keith's parents.

The farm has been a dairy operation since Keith's parents began farming with 10 cows. In 1968, the Treichlers expanded from 20 to 60 cows. In 1999, remodeling took place, adding new stalls, curtains, and general upgrades. Another silo was built two years ago.

After taking business courses in high school, Keith worked for his uncle building new homes for three years after graduation. He later worked part-time for his father on the farm and drove tractor trailer part-time. He later began work full time at the farm with his father, an operation which he took over four years ago.

Sue, a self-described "town girl" who grew up in Lyon Station, Berks County, met Keith through the Virginville Grange. Attracted to the organization's youth events and activities, she joined at age 14 and later "married into the farm" by marrying Keith.

Conservative spending is one key to a smoothly running operation, according to Keith.

"We don't like to be in a whole lot of debt. Make your equipment last. Take care of everything so you don't have to buy new. Pay attention to the little things so you don't get big bills. Don't abuse your equipment. Weld it before something breaks next to it."

"Oil and grease everything," said Sue.

Another farm managment tool is the family council meetings that provide a forum to discuss decisions about the farm. Since the children help with making money, they should have a voice in decisions concerning managment, say the Treichlers.

"We make the final decisions but they get their say," said Keith.

"That includes calling Brandon in Vermont," Sue said.

Brandon, 21, a senior at Penn State, has been a member of the Virginville Grange #1832 since age five. This summer he is working as an intern at ABS Global in Vermont.

By using the computer to help make mating selections, Brandon makes most of the breeding decisions, aside from his brother and sister's animals. In the past few years the Treichlers have put more emphasis on using high-quality bulls and that has become evident in the heifers, said Treichler.

Recently the Treichlers have begun to flush one of Brandon's cows, "Riverdale Brandon Pride," his first 4-H animal that has experienced success in the show ring and has proven to be a good producer. "Pride " was supreme champion over all breeds in Kutztown Fair's 1998 dairy show. Each of the Treichler children exhibit their animals in competition.

FAWNRIDGE FARMS

Sue and Keith Treichler and their family milk 55 cows, mostly Holsteins, but also Brown Swiss, such as "Cherish," pictured here, and Red and White Cattle on Fawnridge Farm.

The farm includes 35 acres of pasture for the cows.

The tall-framed animal has won several bellringer awards and helped to bring the Brown Swiss breed into the once-exclusively Holstein herd.

The calf area is Brittni's favorite place to work, according to her mother, Sue. Since this Holstein calf has an island shape on its forehead, Brittni dubbed it "Aruba." The outdoor hutches, offering sunshine and fresh air, are an ideal, healthy place to raise the calves, said Keith. The family raises their own replacements.

Eight years ago Brandon bought Pride and another calf from a farm in Juniata County. Although he purchased the calves without his parent's knowledge, they have since learned to appreciate the breed, said Sue. "They have great attitudes," she said. "Most of them are just sweet and — "

" — nosy," finished Keith.

Brett, who has an interest in civil war history, has named his line of Brown Swiss after Southern states. The heifer calves have been named after southern cities and the bull calves after Civil War leaders.

The Treichlers have 15 Brown Swiss cows in the herd.

Grange, Community Involvement

Keith has been a member of the Virginville Grange since age 5, and Sue since age 14. They have not only served as officers but also on state and national committees.

Keith, the first prince for the Berks County Grange, was followed by Brett, who is a state Grange prince, the youngest to serve in that capacity.

In addition to all three children's involvement in 4-H — Brandon as a leader and Brett and Brittni as participants — Keith and Sue have served as Eastern Berks 4-H Dairy Club leaders for seven years. Sue has served as a dairy beef club leader for three years.

Each of the Treichler children are enjoying their own unique experiences in the dairy industry.

A member of the Penn State Dairy Science Club, Block & Bridle Club, and Dairy Judging Team, Brandon has also served as a teachers's assistant for the dairy animal physiology and reproduction class for three years.

He also does the actual breeding on the farm when he is available, a task he shares with his father.

Brett, a freshman at Fleetwood Middle School, is a member of the Virginville Junior Grange #436, which he has been active in since he was five years old. Brett is also a member of the Eastern Berks 4-H Dairy Club, where he has served in several leadership positions, in addition to being a member of Berks County's Junior Regional Dairy Bowl team.

Brittni, a sixth grader at Fleetwood Middle School, is the Berks County Junior Grange Princess and has been the captain for the state junior Holstein Dairy Bowl Team.

Since her mother is busy doing the registrations and keeping vaccination, health, and financial records, besides helping in the barn, Brittni has shouldered some of the cooking and baking responsibilities.

The rolling herd average is 21,005 pounds of milk with 3.85 percent fat and 3.1 percent protein.

Expansion is limited by the availability of viable farmland in the vicinity, according to Keith. One option is to raise replacement heifers, which he may look into in the future, said Treichler.

Holstein Exhibitor Takes His First Championship At Lancaster Show

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Veteran Holstein showman Joe Wivell began showing dairy animals as a youth during the 1960s, continuing on through the next several decades in open competitions.

This Wednesday marked a new level of achievement in Wivell's career as a Holstein exhibitor when he took home the trophy for top Holstein at the Lancaster Holstein Association show at the Solanco Fairgrounds.

"It's the first time I've ever won the grand champion," said Wivell of Donegal Creek Farm, Columbia. His winning 4-year-old cow, Zorland Storm Edith, is classified Excellent with an EX-92 udder. It was her first time in the show ring.

Wivell was also named premier exhibitor.

Tom Spring, who will be a junior this fall at Solancó High School, took junior champion honors with his fall yearling heifer, Welk-Shade Lee Kitten.

The Quarryville youth has been showing dairy animals for seven years. His sucess this year marks his third time as a champion exhibitor. The same winning heifer was previously named junior champion at the Solanco Fair last fall.

Selected as winners for their conduct as showpersons were Jennifer Aument, 8- to 10-year-old division; Nicole Welk, 11-13; and Lori Hess, 14-18.

Judge Alan Hostetter called the following results:

Joe Wivell, right, with his grand champion cow, Zorland Storm Edith, at the Lancaster Holstein Association Show Wednesday. Tom Barley of Star-Rock Farms, Conestoga, showed reserve.

Rockwood FFA Member Wins Dairy Show Supreme

SANDRA LEPLEY
Somerset Co. Correspondent

Son of Harry and Donna Mosholder of Rockwood, Matt is a junior student at Penn State, majoring in dairy systems and management. In the same competition last year, Mosholder won Holstein grand champion and was excited to win overall champion this year.

A member of Brothersvalley FFA, Adam Lee Coleman, 20, Berlin, received master showman honors during the competition with his Brown Swiss, "Colecream Jag Summer." Coleman works at the Stolzfus Dairy Farm. Adam's parents are Phil and Lee Ann Coleman, Berlin.

For this year's show, 180 cows were entered in the show that started at 9 a.m. and concluded at about 3:30 p.m. Some exhibitors showed more than one cow.

Exhibitors included members from Berlin Brothersvalley FFA Chapter, Brotherton Belles and Beaus 4-H Club, Buffalo Creek 4-H Club, Dairydells 4-H Club, High Ridge 4-H Club, Horse and Rider 4-H Club, Jenner Township 4-H Club, Meyersdale FFA Chapter, Milkshakers 4-H Club, Milksquirts 4-H Club, Rockwood FFA Chapter, Somerset FFA Chapter, Steaks and Chops 4-H Club, Valley 4-H Club, and White Oak 4-H Club.

Dairy cows were judged in heifer and cow classes of Holstein, Brown Swiss, Guernsey, Jersey, Red and White, Milking Shorthorn, and Ayrshire. There was also dam-daughter (cow and calf) divisions in some categories.

Winners included:

Holsteins: Matt Mosholder won grand champion, reserve grand champion, and best animal bred and owned in the Holstein division. Holstein heifers: K. Alec Hillegas of Berlin, junior champion, and Matt Mosholder, reserve junior champion; Holstein cows, Matt Mosholder, senior champion, and Matt Mosholder, reserve senior champion.

In the Holstein dam-daughter class, Matt Mosholder won, followed by Jessica Landis of Berlin; Megan Sharp, Stoystown; and Justin Rohrbaugh, Somerset.

Brown Swiss division: Justin Foreman of Rockwood won grand champion, followed by Seth Foreman, Rockwood, reserve; and Adam Coleman, best animal bred and owned. Brown Swiss heifer division, Adam Coleman of Berlin won junior champion, followed by Holly Barron of Rockwood as reserve junior champion. Justin Foreman of Rockwood won junior champion in the Brown Swiss cow category, followed by Seth Foreman of Rockwood as reserve senior champion.

Guernsey division: Justin Kaufman of Friedens won grand champion, followed by Justine Lehman of Berlin winning reserve champion. Justine Lehman also won junior champion and reserve junior champion for the Guernsey heifer division; and Justin Kaufman won senior champion for the Guernsey cow category.

Jersey division: Kari Hostetter of Rockwood won grand champion, followed by Scott Leister of Glencoe as reserve grand champion and Kari Hostetter won best animal bred and owned.

Erin Landis of Berlin won junior champion in the heifers, followed by Jarrod Murray of Salisbury; in the cows, Kari Hostetter won senior champion, followed by Scott Leister.

In the Jersey dam-daughter contest, Scott Leister came in first place, followed by Joe Speigle of Boswell.

Red and White division: Kara Savage of Salisbury took home top honors as the grand champion, followed by Anthony Sharp of Stoystown as reserve grand champion. Both Savage and Sharp won in the heifer class as well. There was not a cow class for the Red and White category.

Milking Shorthorn division: Tara Hostetter of Rockwood won junior champion and grand champion.

Ayrshire class: Nevin Hostetter of Rockwood won grand champion, as well as reserve grand champion and best animal bred and owned. He also won senior champion and reserve.

Three siblings of the Hostetter family of Rockwood won division grand champion honors at the junior dairy show. Tara Hostetter won Milking Shorthorn, her brother Nevin won in the Ayrshire division, and sister Kari won in the Jersey division. They are the children of Eileen and Calvin Hostetter of Rockwood. They are all members of Milkshakers 4-H Club.

Larry Lohr of Hooversville was ringmaster.

Christine Wood of Littlestown was judge for the show and Rick Allen of Smock was showmanship judge.

DOPP IV Training For Dairy Farmers Scheduled At Ag Center

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Dairy farmers today face much more revenue risk than they did just a few years ago.

Milk prices can be subject to tremendous shifts from month to month due to volatility in the underlying prices for dairy commodities (primarily cheese and butter). Prices for dairy commodities in turn are volatile due to the gradual reduction in purchase prices under the dairy price support program since 1987. And, milk production continues to be highly vulnerable to changes in the weather.

The result is that milk revenue can be uncertain from month to month and year to year. For example, milk prices in Pennsylvania for the years 1998-2000 alone varied from a high $18.30 per CWT in January 1999 to a low of $12.60 per CWT in April 1999. This degree of volatility makes it difficult to plan the cash flow needs for the dairy business.

Managing price volatility is possible through the prudent use of put options. In an effort to develop dairypersons, comfort with the futures market, the USDA, Risk Management Agency has developed a program called the Dairy Options Pilot Program (DOPP IV).

Berks County producers might remember DOPP I from a couple years ago or DOPP III from last year. Berks dairy farmers are again eligible for this program during the 2002-2003 milk-marketing year. An opportunity to learn the fundamentals of milk marketing and the official DOPP IV training are available in the auditorium at the Berks County Ag Center.

On July 30 from 11 a.m.-1 p.m. there is a "pre-DOPP" meeting. We will be reviewing and discussing some milk marketing fundamentals including terminology, figuring basis, risk tolerance, forward pricing and basic marketing plans. Lunch is sponsored by First Union National Bank and MidAtlantic Farm Credit.

On Aug. 6 there is a full day satellite downlink that includes the official DOPP IV participating training. The morning is devoted to reviewing the new Farm Bill.

- From 9 a.m.-10 a.m. the dairy and environmental provisions are being reviewed.
- From 10 a.m.-11 a.m. the grain provisions are being reviewed.

During both sessions there are opportunities for questions and answers. The afternoon is devoted to the official DOPP participant training.

- From 11 a.m.-3:30 p.m. Ken Bailey, Penn State dairy marketing specialist, Mark Stephenson, Cornell dairy marketing specialist, and Lon Burke, USDA DOPP specialist, will be training dairy producers in preparation for program sign-up. Lunch is sponsored by First Union National Bank and MidAtlantic Farm Credit.

All interested dairy persons are asked to call the Berks County Extension office, (610) 378-1327, if they intend to participate in these educational activities on Tuesday, July 30, or Tuesday, Aug. 6. This will help us with ordering lunch.

(and other hazards)

It took a moment to make sense of the scribbling.

"August — Sunflower Month"

Then I remembered. The note had been jotted at the bottom of July's calendar page as a reminder to write about those homey, cheerful flowers of August in the upcoming weeks.

Except for one problem. Outside our windows, at least, it appears that Sunflower Month came early. By August, ours will be well on their way to garden history.

"Grandma, you have sunflowers blooming," observed grandson Josh one day at the beginning of the month, as we took yard/garden inventory. Indeed they were, and probably are some of the earliest blooming sunflowers we've ever grown.

"Yep," I replied. "I planted some out in the garden and God planted those. But God's are blooming already and mine aren't very big yet."

We concluded that God is a better gardener than grandma (who actually helped a little bit).

When the thick cluster of sunflower plants sprouted on the bank between the house and the dairy barn (seed drops from ancestral plants of last summer), I moved about a dozen of the vigorous seedlings a few feet away into a row along the split-rail fence. After a few hand waterings as a boost through our continuingly-drought-stricken summer, the stems streaked skyward and burst into bloom as Fourth of July, floral fireworks.

About the same time the barn bank volunteers were pushing down roots, The Farmer helped neighbors seed a wildlife-food plot. Before he headed back home, they offered him a bag of their sunflower cover-crop seed to plant. After carefully distributing the seeds across the long seed box on the field drill, he backed the planting machine into a couple of small, unplanted corners below the house. These unused nooks and crannies of soil lie between summertime field equipment parking areas and round bale stacks, inevitably producing stands of incredibly large, healthy, durable weeds.

Well, those spots still have some weeds. But towering over the weeds are dozens and dozens of four to five feet tall sunflowers which virtually all — on the same day — opened into wide, cheerful, yellow blooms. Since sunflowers literally track the sun with their blooms, the glowing faces all gaze in the same direction: east, toward the sun (Hence the name, sunflowers).

Unfortunately, the house is west of those mini-plots, meaning the stands of sunflowers have turned their backs on us. The yellow sunflower effect is still pretty and cheerful, even from the back side. But to experience the full impact of their bright color, you have to walk down the field road "a little piece," and turn around to appreciate this sea of happy flower faces.

Each of the three plantings, however, has a rebel sunflower, which defiantly faces westward, toward the house and away from the sun. Our daughter has dubbed them "Caleb flowers," bent on doing their own thing in defiance of the normal behavior of this particular species. Her label of the upstart sunflowers is a salute to their second son, who takes after his grandfather, The Farmer, in many ways.

Meanwhile, a single sunflower seed, which wedged itself into an expansion crack at the jointure of the milk house, its concrete porch, and a retaining wall, also sports a cheery, yellow, six-inch bloom at eye level. It's sort of an unofficial dairy barn welcoming committee of one; its colorful blossom obediently faces the sun.

Numerous other sunflower volunteers stand random watch around the yard, volunteers from drops of previous plantings and from the birds which stuff their mouths full of seeds and lose some en route to the treetops and utility lines. A few tall, vigorous specimens guard the garden, and one lone stalk languishes a bit in the dry shade under the maple trees. Unless they interfere with lawn mowing, we let them do their thing.

Our sunflowers should remain cheerfully bright yellow and attractive for a few weeks, before maturing to seedheads fat with black-oil-type seeds. That should attract flocks of seed eaters to hang out in the meadow while they partake of the fruits of the harvest. Even just a few sunflowers gone to seed in past summers brought in lots of finches and chickadees, which like to hang on the seed-thick heads and pluck their dinner direct. Sort of an avian fast-food stop.

We're considering re-labeling August, at least in our backyard.

Sunflower-Seed-Eaters Month may be more appropriate.

Survival Skills For Child Care Directors

MONTGOMERYVILLE (Montgomery Co.) — A six-hour course for directors of child care centers is being offered by Penn State Cooperative Extension on Tuesday, July 30, from 8:30 a.m. to 3;30 p.m. at the Quality Inn on Rt. 309 in Montgomeryville. Registration is required and the cost is $30 per person for the day. Session meets DPW guidelines and all participants will receive six DPW credits and .6 Continuing Education Units from Penn State University. Act 48 credits will also be available. Lunch is included in the registration fee.

The course will include "Communicate Across Generations," presented by Michael Conti; "CBK, PDR, Keystone Stars — What Does It Mean?"; "Results from the Bucks-Montgomery Salary and Benefits Study" and "The Latest Legal Issues in Child Care," presented by Ron McGuckin, J.D. There will also be a luncheon speaker on criminal charge information in child custody matters.

For more information and registration form, call Penn State Cooperative Extension in Montgomery County (610) 489-4315. Registration deadline is July 19. Penn State is an affirmative action, equal opportunity university, and all residents of Montgomery County, regardless of race, color, sex, national origin, sexual orientation, age or disability, are encouraged to attend. The meeting room is accessible to a person with a physical disability.

Well Preserved

The Well Preserved news column is prepared by Lancaster County Cooperative Extension. It includes food preservation information and questions.

Freezing Vegetables

Last week's article looked at some general guidelines for successful freezing of foods. This week we will look at specific techniques for freezing vegetables. Most vegetables freeze well with the exception of salad greens and those high in starch content such as potatoes. Some of the vegetables most difficult to can-corn, peas, and green limas-are among those easily frozen.

Select fresh, young, tender vegetables for best quality. Some varieties are more suitable for freezing than others. Sort for size, ripeness and color for uniform results. Work quickly to prevent loss of quality and nutrients. Freeze only five or six containers at a time. Ideally the vegetables will be frozen immediately after picking. If you cannot freeze them immediately, refrigerate them.

Wash and drain vegetables before peeling skins or removing shells. You want to remove surface dirt, bacteria, and insects. Wash small amounts at a time and use several changes of cold water. Lift the vegetables out of the water so that the dirt does not settle back on the food. Also, do not let the vegetables soak in water. Blanching is the key to success for freezing most vegetables. Blanching is scalding vegetables in boiling water or steam for a short time to slow or stop enzyme action.

Enzymes are the chemicals in vegetables that cause produce to ripen and unless inactivated will continue to be active during frozen storage. This results in a loss of flavor, color, and texture. Blanching also brightens the color and helps retard the loss of vitamins. Many vegetables are also easier to pack when the blanching causes wilting and softens them. Water blanching is the most common method used in home freezing. Use one gallon water per pound of prepared vegetable. It is easiest and safest to put the vegetable in a blanching basket and lower it into water that is vigorously boiling. Place a lid on the blancher and start counting blanching time immediately. Keep heat high for the time given in the directions for the vegetable you are freezing. The water should return to a boil within one minute of when you added the vegetables. Change the water after every three to five batches to prevent its adding strong off flavors to blanched vegetables.

Steam blanching works well for broccoli, pumpkin, sweet potatoes and winter squash. It takes about 1 ½ times longer than water blanching. Steam blanching involves putting the food in a basket that holds it at least 3 inches above the bottom of the pot. Put an inch or two of water in the pot and bring the water to a boil. Put the vegetables in the basket in a single layer so that steam reaches all parts quickly. Cover the pot and keep heat high. Start counting steaming times as soon as the lid is on.

Some references exist for microwave blanching. Research shows that this method may not be effective because some enzymes may not be inactivated. Those choosing to run the risk of low quality vegetables by microwave blanching should be sure to work in small quantities, using the directions for their specific microwave oven. Microwave blanching will not save time or energy. Blanching time is crucial and varies with the vegetable and size. Underblanching stimulates the activity of the enzymes and is worse than no blanching. Blanching too long causes loss of flavor, color, vitamins and minerals. A few blanching times for some common vegetables are as follows: Green or wax beans-3 minutes Lima beans- medium size— 3 minutes Broccoli-1 inch flowerets-3 minutes Brussels Sprouts-medium size-4 minutes Cauliflower-1 inch flowerets-3 minutes Corn on the Cob-medium ears-9 minutes Corn-cut from cob after blanching-4 minutes Onions for cooking (blanch until center is heated)-3 to 7 minutes Green peas-2 minutes Summer Squash-2 minutes As soon as blanching is complete, cool the vegetables quickly to stop the cooking process. Plunge the vegetables immediately into a large quantity of cold water, 60 degrees F or below. Change the water frequently or use cold running water or iced water.

If ice is used, about one pound of ice for each pound of vegetable is needed. Cooling vegetables should take the same amount of time as blanching. Drain the vegetables thoroughly after cooking. Extra moisture can cause a loss of quality when vegetables are frozen. Vegetables can be dry packed or tray packed (individually quick frozen). Remove as much air as possible. Vegetables that pack loosely such as cauliflower do not need headspace. Vegetable juices need 1 to 1 ½ inches headspace. Allow ½ inch head space for other vegetables. Tray packing involves spreading the blanched, cooled, and drained vegetable in a single layer on shallow trays or pans and placing them in the freezer just long enough to freeze firm. Check them often after the first hour because long exposure of uncovered vegetables will result in loss of moisture. Vegetables packed by this method will remain loose and can be poured from the container and the package reclosed.

Great Grilling

Outdoor grilling is one of the best features of summer. Not only do the foods taste great, but the ease of preparation and cleanup are wonderful. For women who do most of the cooking, an added bonus is often the assistance from the male side of the family.

While hamburgers and hotdogs are traditional, grilling can be made more interesting and healthy with the addition of marinades or rubs.

Marinades are sauces that contain an acid (to tenderize), oil and flavoring. Lean meats such as chicken breasts or round steak can be brushed with the marinades and left to sit in the sauce in the refrigerator for 1-24 hours. Basic marinades can be as easy as using Italian salad dressing or a wine and olive oil combination with some herbal seasoning.

A rub can include the same seasonings but is applied by first brushing meat with oil and then rubbing the dry spices or herbs onto the meat, usually with your hands (be sure to wash them first).

A rub will not tenderize the meat like the marinade, but the flavor will be more intense. For each pound of meat, use about 2 tablespoons of rub or ½ cup of marinade. The rub can be applied right before grilling or several hours ahead for a more robust flavor.

Keep food safety in mind with marinades and rubs. Always marinate meat in the refrigerator and do not use marinades to brush meat while cooking as it will contain raw meat juices left from the time soaking. Wash your hands and surfaces that touch the raw meat following rub applications.

Always use a clean plate to bring meat back from the grill to avoid contamination from raw meat juices.

Marinade Or Rub Provencal Seasoning Mix:

¼ cup dried tarragon leaves
3 tablespoons dried thyme leaves
2 tablespoons dried sage leaves, crumbled
2 teaspoons onion powder
¾ teaspoon salt

Marinade

Combine 2 tablespoons Seasoning Mix, ½ cup dry red wine or chicken broth, 1 garlic clove, finely chopped.

Mix together all ingredients. Pour over meat in resealable plastic bag. Refrigerate 1-24 hours.

Rub

Brush meat with 1 tablespoon olive oil. Rub 2 tablespoons of the seasoning mix into meat surfaces. Grill until meat is done.

'Berry' Delicious Jams, Jellies From Anna Martin's Kitchen

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

DENVER (Lancaster Co.) — You've seen her name. "Anna Martin" appears in print as a frequent contributor to "Cook's Question Corner."

Anna's culinary skills and her recipes are basic ones that she, her husband Gene, and three adult children, their spouses, and five grandchildren endorse.

One of the family's favorites is raspberry jam and jelly, which Anna has been busy preserving the past two weeks.

Raspberries, also called bramble berries, have a short growing season. Although delightful eaten fresh, raspberry goodness can be retained to savor the berry's flavor throughout the year.

Preserving the berries is not for the cook who doesn't like to get her hands dirty. Raspberries stain hands and anything else they touch. But the time and effort is wellworth it for all who taste Anna's flavorful jelly and jams — store-brought varieties are no comparison.

To prepare for jelly making, the raspberries need to be squeezed through cheesecloth to remove the seeds for jam, the berries are lightly mashed.

"Some people don't like the seeds and others don't mind them," Anna said of the process.

"I keep record of what my friends and family prefer and give these as Christmas gifts," Anna said of the attractive and neatly labeled raspberry jelly and jam jars sitting on her kitchen countertop.

Although the Martins have a few raspberry bushes growing on their wooded property, Anna picks the bulk of berries along roadsides and remote wooded areas.

"The birds get them about as fast as they come," Anna said of the berries on their own property. That may be because the birds already view the Martins' yard as "bird paradise" because of the many bird feeders they have erected.

Because the Martins live in a remote area, bramble berries are plentiful along roadsides. Anna takes long walks in search of the berries.

When selecting berries, choose those that are firm, plump, and solid in color. A solid-deep color is a good indicator of ripeness. Immature berries do not sweeten after they are picked.

Raspberries are very delicate and should be used immediately after harvested or refrigerated. Black raspberries maintain their freshness for three to five days after harvesting if kept refrigerated, but red raspberries last only two to three days. Do not wash berries before refrigerating.

When ready to use, wash berries gently and quickly in cold water. Gently lift them from the water and drain. Never soak berries in water or they will lose sugar, flavor, and color.

Avoid using aluminum, tin, or iron utensils or baking pans because berries can turn from red to blue in color.

Because Anna works part time as a para-educator for IU 13 Special Ed classes, her time preserving summmer's bounty is limited.

Anna's husband Eugene owns Martin's Sawing Service, a portable Wood Mizer band saw that he takes to the customers' sites to cut wood according to their specification.

Here are the recipes that Anna uses. Although different brand names can be used to make jelly, Anna cautions that each variety has a bit different measurements and often is not interchangeable. Anna uses Ball Fruit Jell Pectin.

For her own use, Anna makes sugarless or less sugar by using the pectin label for sugarless varieties — these directions must be followed carefully because the directions are not interchangeable for sugar and non-sugar varieties.

BLACK RASPBERRY JELLY

4 cups prepared juice
¼ cup lemon juice
5½ cups sugar
1 pouch Ball Fruit Jell Pectin

Prepare juice by crushing one layer of berries at a time with a potato masher or similar method. Simmer berries 5 minutes in covered saucepan. Pour into cheesecloth and allow juice to drip several hours. Squeezing may cause cloudiness; however, Anna does squeeze remaining juice from berries.

Wash jars and lids.

Measure juice in saucepan. Add lemon juice. Stir fruit jell pectin into prepared fruit or juice. Bring mixture to full boil over high heat, stirring constantly. Add sugar. Return to full rolling boil for one minute. Continue stirring. Remove from heat. Skim foam off if necessary. Ladle hot jelly into hot jars, leaving ¼-inch headspace.

Wipe rim and threads of each jar with clean, damp cloth. Center heated lid on jar. Screw band firmly and evenly on jar until finger-tip tight.

As each jar is filled and capped, place in boiling water bath in canner. Cover each jar with 1-2 inches of water. Place lid on canner and bring water to a gentle, steady boil. Process jelly 5 minutes.

After processing, remove jars and set upright on towel to cool 12-24 hours. Do not retighten bands. When jars are cool, test each one for a seal by pressing center of lid. The lid should flex up and down. (If it does not, immediately refrigerate or reprocess with new lid for full length of time). Remove bands, wipe sealed jars with clean, damp cloth. Store in cool dry place up to one year.

BLACK RASPBERRY JAM

5 cups crushed berries
7 cups sugar
1 pouch fruit jell pectin

Wash and prepare fruit. Crush berries. (For jam, do not use cheesecloth). Bring mixture to full boil. Stir pectin into prepared fruit. Bring to a full boil over high heat, stirring constantly. Add sugar. Return to full rolling boil one minute. Continue stirring. Remove from heat. Pour into jars. Process in boiling water bath for 10 minutes.

Anna Martin takes advantage of summer's bounty by harvesting berries to prepare raspberry jam and jelly for holiday gifts.

Turning berries into juice can be a bit messy but definitely rewarding for the rich, flavorful jams and jellies they produce.

New Research For Bramble Growers

PIKETON, Ohio — Black raspberries typically are not harvested until several years after the brambles are planted, said Shawn Wright, an Ohio State University Extension horticulture specialist. But experimenters at the research center harvested black raspberries early in hopes of benefiting local berry growers.

"Growers may be able to recoop from some of their investments quicker by not waiting until the third year," Wright said. "It's not done commonly, but with increasing costs of production, anything will help."

Brambles usually are planted the first year, pruned the second and allowed to produce berries the third. Growers do not get a full crop the second year because the brambles are establishing their crown and root systems, Wright said. The "baby crop" would aid in getting income to the grower a year early.

"Some growers think that it's not worth the risk to the plant, but if you need cash for your operation, this may be a way to do so," Wright said. The experimental brambles will be monitored to see if the earlier berries affect the traditional eight-year production cycle.

Ohio State University Extension is conducting research. For more information, contact Shawn Wright at wright.705@osu.edu or 740-289-2071.

Regional Fashion Revue Winners Eligible For State Competition

READING (Berks Co.) — Shelly Kneebone, Cassie Newcomb, and Jena Rutt of Northampton County; Stacey Mangold and Erin Lichtenwalner of Lehigh County; Taryn Stein, Caitlin Celia; and Jennifer Faust of Berks County will participate in the State 4-H Fashion Revue to be conducted July 31 at Eisenhower Auditorium on the University Park Campus of Penn State University.

The revue is part of Penn State 4-H Achievement Week. The theme of this year's revue is Century of Fashion.

As finalists from the Southeastern Regional 4-H Fashion Revue conducted Tuesday, July 2 in Berks County, they will compete with 60 other 4-H'ers for a place in the state honors group.

At the state revue, a panel of professional judges selects 10 finalists. The entrants are judged on garment construction, fit, degree of construction difficulty, appropriateness of garment for the 4-H'er, and modeling ability.

Blue honor senior winners were Jessica Knitter, Nicole Kondziela of Northampton County, Ashley McKinney of Berks County and Jackie Kauffman of Schulykill County.

Junior division blue honor winners were Rachel Byrd of Chester County; Allison Moroz of Montgomery County, Gabriella DePaulo and Kylee Rutt of Northampton County; Jessica Mangold, Lehigh; and Emily Jensen, Hannah Stabolepszy and Kristen Tongue of Berks County.

By participating in the series of county, regional, and state revues, 4-H textiles science project members have a chance to turn self-consciousness into self-confidence. They learn about wardrobe selection, the importance of good posture, physical fitness and other aspects of grooming. Penn State's Cooperative Extension coordinates the 4-H program in Pennsylvania.

Question Corner

If you are looking for a recipe but can't find it, send your recipe request to Lou Ann Good, Cook's Question Corner, in care of Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. There's no need to send a self-addressed stamped envelope. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible. Check your recipe to make sure you copy the right amounts and complete instructions for making the recipe. Sometimes we receive numerous answers to the same request, but cannot print each one.

Answers to recipe requests should be sent to the same address. You may also e-mail questions and answers to LGOOD.EPH@LNPNEWS.COM

QUESTION — A Hegins reader wants recipes for serving turnips.

QUESTION — A reader from Greencastle writes than many years ago her grandmother made pan cake using corn meal. The cakes were soft and crunchy. The reader said her experiments with making corn meal pan cakes turn out thick like pancakes. She would like thin-crunchy ones. She has tried many different recipes with no luck. Can anyone help her?

QUESTION — Patricia Pfleegor, Milton, is searching for a recipe for Burnt Sugar Cake. She has one now, but it isn't the same as the one she remembers from earlier times. Does anyone have a good recipe?

QUESTION — Karen Ramseur, Williamstown, N.J., writes that she attended the Kutztown Pennsylvania German Festival recently. A Pennsylvania German cooking presentation demonstrated drying corn on a double-walled pan with a funnel adaptor at one end to add water. She also attended the country auction featured at the festival and brought a vegetable dryer. Anyone have recipes to instruct her how to dry vegetables? Karen also thanks readers who sent in "wonderful" lemon jelly and cornbread recipes in answer to her requests.

QUESTION — Stephanie Luckenbaugh, Abbottstown, wants a recipe for Baby Ruth Cookies.

QUESTION — A reader requests the recipe for baked French toast made with a can of apple pie filling. The recipe had appeared recently in this column, she writes, but she lost it.

QUESTION — Gail Silveira would like a recipe for a corn, shrimp soup, which she recalls had been printed in a previous issue. Anyone have the recipe to which she is referring?

QUESTION — Terry Ulrich, Reinholds, frequents Austin's, a restaurant near Berkshire Mall in Wyomissing, which serves a delicious baked potato soup, which she thinks includes bacon, cheese, and chives. Anyone have a similar recipe?

QUESTION — Eva Burrell, Glen Gardner, N.J., wants to know how to make filet of beef on the grill by using wet newspapers and encasing meat in a paste made with kosher salt and water. Years ago, the Burrells used this method but can't remember exactly how it was done or the time required to cook per pound. This made the best filet of beef Eva has ever tasted and she would like to use it for several cookouts.

QUESTION — Ferm Freeman, Elliottsburg, wants a recipe for black olive bread, which she thinks is a Greek recipe. She purchased some at the West Shore Farmers' Market in Lemoyne.

QUESTION — A Lancaster County reader would like a recipe for watermelon wine and other flavors.

QUESTION — A Dauphin County reader wants to know how to make ketchup that tastes like the Heinz brand.

QUESTION — Dave Wilder, Gladwyne, grows lingonberries in Berks County. He wants to know uses for this Old World fruit. The Latin name, Wilder writes, is Vacciniam vitis-idaea. Native varieties are sometimes called cowberry.

QUESTION — Martha Weaver, East Earl, would like homemade wine recipes that are sugarless.

QUESTION — Mrs. Thomas Vandzuna, Portage, requests a recipe for sweet sausage. Her son brought some and they love it. Their family buys half a hog and mixes its own mix, and would like to try sweet sausage the next time.

QUESTION — Stephanie Luckenbaugh, Abbottstown, requests a good recipe to make Lebanon bologna.

QUESTION — Sue Hurley, Newville, requests recipes to make different kinds of instant powdered tea mixes, such as raspberry and peach.

QUESTION — A reader writes that many new dessert recipes are featured in magazines and newspaper, but she is reluctant to buy expensive ingredients for recipes that she isn't sure her family will like. She'd rather try recipes that other readers enjoy. The reader would like some new dessert recipes that other readers recommend.

QUESTION — Rosalie Nolt wants a recipe for New England clam chowder, similar to Friendly's or Campbell's soup.

QUESTION — Josephy Steffey wants a recipe for deer bag bologna that tastes like Lebanon bologna.

ANSWER A Pine Grove reader wanted recipes for different kinds of soft pretzels and different coatings for chicken and vegetables for deep frying. Thanks to Mary Ann Reich for sending a recipe.

Soft Pretzels

2 tablespoons yeast
1¼ cups warm water
¼ cup sugar
4½ cups flour

Dissolve yeast in warm water. Add sugar and flour; knead. Let rise 15 minutes. Shape dough into rolls; slice in 20 pieces. Shape into pretzels, dip in mixture of 1 tablespoon baking soda and 1 cup water. Bake at 450 degrees for 15 minutes.

ANSWER — In answer to Leah Glick's request for a recipe to make Bisquick mix, here are several that are different from the one printed in last week's issue. Thanks to Karen Ramseur for these.

Mock Bisquick

8½ cups flour
4 tablespoons baking powder
1 tablespoon salt
2 teaspoons cream of tartar
1 teaspoon baking soda
1½ cups dry milk powder
2¼ cups vegetable shortening

In large bowl, sift together all dry ingredients. Blend well. With pastry blender or heavy duty mixture, cut in shortening until mixture resembles corn meal in texture. Store in cool dry place. Keeps about 12 weeks.

To make biscuits, use three cups of this and mix with ⅔ cup water. On a lightly floured board, knead dough about 10 minutes. Roll out and cut with a floured cutter. Bake on ungreased sheet for 10-12 minutes until golden brown.

Multi-Purpose Baking Mix

4 cups unbleached flour
4 cups whole wheat flour
¼ cup double-acting baking powder
4 teaspoon salt
1 cup shortening (can substitute oil if kept refrigerated)
1⅓ cups dry powdered milk

In large bowl, blend together 4 cups unbleached flour, salt, and baking powder. Add shortening and cut in with pastry blender until it resembles coarse crumbs. Work out your aggressions here, with that tool—one of my favorite workouts! Stir in powdered milk, then whole wheat flour. Store in an airtight container or heavy duty Ziploc bag (keeps about 2 months). Refrigerate if using oil instead of shortening. For longer storage, freeze it.

Here are reduced-fat versions from Tessie Kizis, Newsoms, Va.

Reduced-Fat Master Mix

9 cups flour
½ cup baking powder
1 tablespoon salt
2⅔ cups non-fat dry milk powder
⅔ cup solid shortening
¼ cup sugar

In a large bowl, sift together dry milk, baking powder, sugar, salt, and flour, mixing thoroughly. Cut the shortening into the dry ingredients until mix is the consistency of corn meal. Place mix in covered glass, metal, or plastic container and keep in a cool place. Refrigerate in warmer weather. To measure, spoon the mixture lightly into a cup and level off with a spatula or back of a knife. Use within two months.

To make reduced-fat whole wheat master mix, substitute 4½ cups whole wheat flour for white flour.

Pinwheels

3 cups reduced-fat master mix
⅔ cup water
Brown sugar, jelly or 1 teaspoon cinnamon and fat-free cream cheese (adjust to taste)

Put master mix into bowl. Add water to mix all at once, stirring about 25 strokes. Knead 15 times on floured surface. Roll out dough into rectangle ½-inch thick. Spread lightly with fat-free cream cheese or jelly. If using fat-free cream cheese, sprinkle brown sugar and cinnamon over dough. Roll up jelly-roll style and cut into one-inch slices. Place side by side on a baking sheet sprayed with non-stick cooking spray. Bake at 400 degrees for 12-15 minutes. (122 calories per serving; 3 gm fat; 1 mg cholesterol; 264 mg sodium).

ANSWER — Lebanon County Dairy Maid Jessica Bross reminds readers that July is National Ice Cream Month. Beat the heat wave and satisfy bored children with making homemade ice cream in a bag.

Ice Cream In A Bag

1 cup heavy cream
1 cup milk
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 quart bag
1 gallon bag
Ice
Rock salt

Combine cream, milk, sugar, and vanilla in one-quart bag. Place bag in one-gallon bag. Fill with ice and rock salt. Make sure bags are tightly sealed before shaking. Shake until solid. Enjoy.

Irish Coffee

½ cup whole or 2 percent milk
1 cup cold black coffee
2 scoops vanilla ice cream
Whipped cream

Blend milk, coffee, and ice cream in a blender. Top with whipped cream. Serves 2.

ANSWER — Here are two similar recipes received too late to include in last week's berry feature, but just in time to enjoy blueberry season. The first recipe is from V. Martin, Bethel. The second is from Florence Wilson, Earleville, Md.

Blueberry Buckle

¾ cup sugar
¼ cup shortening
2 eggs
½ cup milk
1½ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
¼ teaspoon cloves
15-ounce can blueberries or 10-ounces fresh blueberries

Topping:
½ cup sugar
⅓ cup flour
¼ cup soft butter

Mix sugar, shortening, eggs, and milk until well blended. Stir in flour, baking powder, salt, nutmeg, and cloves. Fold in blueberries.

Spread batter into greased 9-inch square pan. Combine remaining ingredients and mix until crumbly. Sprinkle crumbs over batter. Bake in preheated 375 degree oven for 40-50 minutes, or until top springs back when lightly touched. Serve warm with milk if desired.

Blueberry Buckle

2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup sugar
2 cups fresh blueberries
⅓ cup oil
1 egg
½ cup milk

Cream oil and sugar, add egg, milk, flour, baking powder, and salt. Mix until just moistened. Fold in berries by hand. Pour into a greased tube pan and bake at 375 degrees for 40 minutes. Place topping on cake before baking.

Topping:
⅓ cup flour
½ cup sugar
¼ cup butter
Serve plain or with milk

ANSWER — A Hegins reader answers the person who inquired about frozen milk curdling. She writes that milk that is kept in the freezer for more than month will curdle. Use the curdled milk to make something where it doesn't matter or not if the milk is curdled such as grapenuts or cheese.

Connecting the Generations

My father worked in the natural gas fields of western Pennsylvania and New York from the Depression years until I was born in 1948.

When Dad was feeling talkative, he'd tell me about his life in the years before World War II. His stories were full of accounts of working in bear-infested blackberry brambles, of run-away drilling rigs hurtling down hillsides, and draft mules that left lasting impressions on backsides.

My favorite story was about his getting almost to California (Land of Opportunity) before his Model A broke down in Utah, resulting in a six-week long trek back to Pennsylvania by foot and boxcar. When asked about this Depression experience, he remembered that the roads were full of "tramps and bums" all looking for work and handouts (and he was one of them).

Curious about recollections from his childhood, I asked about his memories from the 'teens.'

Dad recalled hurrying to get on his pony to go tell the midwife that his mother was in labor with her 11th child. Another memory was of two great-uncles who had fought on different sides during the Civil War. These brothers survived to spend their twilight years together side by side in rocking chairs on a Jefferson County farmhouse porch, arguing about battles they'd fought in and taking occasional slashes at each other with their canes.

Dad remembered wearing his mother's apron and sunbonnet in order to milk the family cow without being kicked (the cow was partial to my grandmother).

Other memories included leaving school after sixth grade to help on the family farm and livery stable where teams of draft horses were rented out to loggers and oil producers.

He'd sigh and tell me that every animal had to be unharnessed, cleaned, brushed, and fed before the dinner bell rang at 6 p.m.

When my father died in 1991 at age 81, I wrote down as much as I could remember about this family history before it was lost to me, the Baby Boomer, and my own son who belongs to Generation X. Time, after all, has a way of erasing memories.

Are you a "Boomer?"

According to Penn State professor Matt Kaplan, last year marked a milestone in American history that many people missed. The first of the 76 million Americans born between the years 1946 and 1964, the well-known "baby boomer" generation have reached the age of 55. This landmark occurrence signals some interesting changes in the enterprise of grand-parenting.

Dr. Kaplan says that first, we will see a surge in the numbers of grandparents and that by the year 2005, there will be an estimated 80 million grandparents. Of those, nearly half will be baby boomers, and they are likely to be quite different from the grandparents of previous eras.

They probably will be more liberal (after all, this is the Woodstock generation), healthier (thanks to dietary and medical advances), more active, and wealthier. In addition, they will identify with different historical events, have different ideas about work and play, and have different heroes.

A surefire way to help grandchildren and grandparents appreciate family stories and memories is the "oral history" interview. The interview can be focused on the grandparent's life experiences either in a general way, or with an emphasis on a particular theme (such as how people dressed) or historical event (such as Woodstock).

Any tape-recording or written record of the interview should be treated as a valuable family keepsake. Whether it is through travel, discussion, or other activities, shared experiences are gratifying for both, grandchild and grandparent. These experiences also help lay the groundwork for strengthening family, a benefit to be enjoyed by future generations.

Each family has its own identity, traditions and rituals for celebrating family. It's never too late to start a new family tradition.

USDA Features Pork In School Lunch Program

DES MOINES, Iowa — The U.S. Department of Agriculture will conduct a pilot purchase program providing schools with the opportunity to receive cooked pork items through the National School Lunch Program. The Agricultural Marketing Service and the Food and Nutrition Service are jointly developing a program allowing schools to order vendor-specific cooked pork products from suppliers approved by USDA.

"This is a great opportunity for the pork industry to expand its horizons," said Steve Schmeichel, a pork producer from Hurley, S.D., and chairman of the Pork Checkoff Demand Enhancement committee.

"Obviously this opportunity is great to push pork supply and also to introduce pork to school-aged children so it becomes a regular nutritious option for them to choose the rest of their lives."

The new opportunity for pork to be used in school lunches resulted from meal-preference surveys the USDA sent to schools. Survey results determined that pork was a definite choice for school meals.

Suppliers have to meet criteria determined by the USDA before they can market their product directly to schools.

Pork will be represented through Checkoff-funded efforts at the American School Service Show in July. Representatives of the pork industry will talk to suppliers and schools and also distribute free samples of pork.

Kids Meet Real-Life Animals From Rain Forest

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — Sure, the rain forest is located in places near the equator, and Lititz is far from the countries famous for rain forests.

But on Tuesday, kids gathered at Esbenshade's Greenhouses, 546 E. Division Highway, to meet some animals that come from the rain forest and to learn about the tropical place where trees grow 20-25 stories high.

Claire and Brian from the Philadelphia Zoo presented a rain forest program that intrigued kids of all ages despite the humidity and heat inside the greenhouse structure.

The rain forest can be divided into three sections. The bottom layer is called the rain forest floor, where it is muddy, dark, and covered with rotting leaves, and other decay. The middle level is where bushes and flowers grow, and where monkeys and snakes live in the trees. The top level is where the tree tops end and birds such as parrots watch to capture food below them.

Living on the rain forest floor are red-footed tortoises. Claire brought along a red-footed tortoise to show the children what they look like.

To determine whether a tortoise or turtle is a girl or a boy is very simple according to Claire. Turn it upside down. Girls have flat shells on the bottom and boys have a curved bottom shell.

"The tortoise doesn't move fast, so how do you think it can get its food?" Claire asked the children at the greenhouse event.

Some children answered correctly that the tortoise waits until food falls off a tree.

"Perhaps a messy monkey will drop its food, and the tortoise is glad to claim it. The tortoise eats meat and food that rots. It is like the garbage man of the rain forest floor," Claire said.

The tortoise doesn't need to be fast to escape from its enemies. Whenever the tortoise is frighten, it simply needs to tuck its head, arms, and legs inside its hard shell. Then it is hard as a rock and very unappealing for dinner.

Thirteen children volunteered to help introduce an Asian rainforest visitor — a 15-feet long Burmese python.

"If Tony was walking in the forest, he wouldn't see this snake because it blends in with the forest floor. The snake would jump out and wrap around him more and more until Tony couldn't breathe and then swallow him in one gulp," Claire said.

She also introduced the children to a Rainbow Boa Constrictor that lives in the trees. The snake's tail helps him hang from a tree and catch food such as birds, mice, tree frogs, and lizards passing by. It is difficult to see the snake when he is in a tree because his body looks like a vine attached to the tree.

Another interesting animal from the middle level of the rain forest was the kinkojoue often called honey bear.

Claire from the Philadelphia Zoo introduces a red-footed tortoise to attendees at the Kid's Day sponsored by Esbenshade's Greenhouses, Lititz.

This chart shows that the rain forest has three different levels where many kinds of animals, insects, birds, and reptiles live.

The kinkojoue is a good climber, which looks like a monkey but isn't. The honey bear has a long tongue so that he can stick it into a honey nest and eat honey. His thick hair protects him from bee stings when he is stealing honey.

The final visitor was from the upper level of the rain forest. The Macaw is the largest parrot. It uses its beak and feet like a hand to peel apples, crack peanuts, and other things.

"It could crack my finger, so that's why I always use a pole to handle the Macaw," Claire said.

The parrots wings are clipped so that he can not fly away and be exposed to harsh winter weather where he couldn't survive.

"Clipping his wings is just like clipping your fingernails," Claire said. "It doesn't hurt a bit."

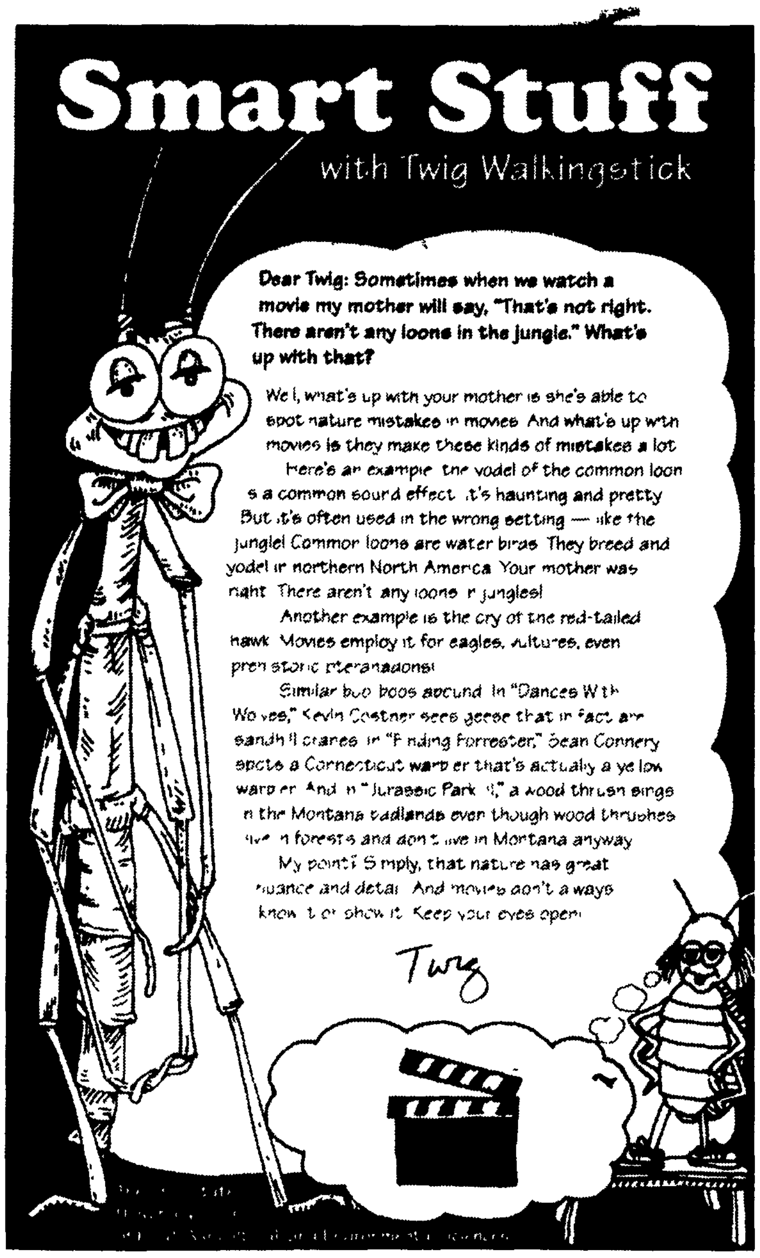
The Macaw imitated some of the actions of Claire such as spreading his wings when she stretched out her arms.

The Macaw can live to be 80 years old so it can be a lifetime pet.

Rain forests in Africa, South America, Asia, and Australia are often in the news. Some people are concerned that the rain forests will disappear because too many trees are being chopped down. Although trees will grow again, Claire said that whenever a tree is chopped down, animals, insects, and bugs that live there lose their homes.

The rain forest is important because it provides Brazilian nuts, vanilla, chocolate, bananas, and rubber to make tires. Also one-fourth of today's medicine is made from plants growing in the rain forest.

The annual kid's day event sponsored by Esbenshades included snacks and other kid-related workshops.



Smart Stuff

with Twig Walkingstick

Dear Twig: Sometimes when we watch a movie my mother will say, "That's not right. There aren't any loons in the jungle." What's up with that?

Well, what's up with your mother is she's able to spot nature mistakes in movies. And what's up with movies is they make these kinds of mistakes a lot.

Here's an example: the yodel of the common loon is a common sound effect. It's haunting and pretty. But it's often used in the wrong setting — like the jungle! Common loons are water birds. They breed and yodel in northern North America. Your mother was right. There aren't any loons in jungles!

Another example is the cry of the red-tailed hawk. Movies employ it for eagles, vultures, even prehistoric pteranadons!

Similar boo boos abound. In "Dances With Wolves," Kevin Costner sees geese that in fact are sandhill cranes. In "Finding Forrester," Sean Connery spots a Connecticut warbler that's actually a yellow warbler. And in "Jurassic Park III," a wood thrush sings in the Montana badlands even though wood thrushes live in forests and don't live in Montana anyway.

My point? Simply, that nature has great nuance and detail. And movies don't always know it or show it. Keep your eyes open!

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

July is a vacation month. Two families drove from Atlanta, Georgia to spend some time with us. We had a full house for a week.

Some of the seven grandchildren, who were here, helped to put more than 100 big round hay bales in the barn. Later they played hide and seek there. Even though the grandchildren ate and slept here they spent most of the time on the farm with the animals. The girls especially liked to play with the kittens. Our grandchildren have grown a lot in the last year and are taller than us.

Instead of two of us sitting at the kitchen table, we had more than a dozen at two tables. We had a full kitchen with three women making three different dishes. And, a cousin from Arizona stopped in one noontime for a short visit. She generously gave us a five-pound box of chocolates. At least there were plenty of people to share them.

Air mattresses in the basement helped with sleeping arrangements. The coffee pot was going most of the day as some people love their coffee. My husband likes root beer, and I like water. One meal was eaten at a restaurant in Lancaster. That was a treat for us as I cook meals at home when we are alone.

Our guests worked hard for their food as we now have our garden rototilled, the raspberry patch trimmed, and many weeds removed too. However, we found some time to just sit and visit. Usually our visiting is via telephone.

Over the weekend our son had a pig roast and invited his fellow employees, neighbors, and his siblings. About 20 of our family were able to attend. The meat was delicious and there was ample food served on a farm wagon as a table. The week passed quickly.

Lancaster County 4-H Members Participate In Presentation Night

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster County 4-H Presentation Night was conducted June 11 at the Farm and Home Center. Thirty-two 4-H members participated with presentation and speech topics ranging from horses to cows, road trips, baby-sitting and orienteering.

A visual communication division also showcased poster and photography exhibits that included topics on "Pennsylvania Mountain Flowers" and "Washington, D.C."

Judges for the evening were Mabel Hershey, Marietta; Luke Brubaker, Mount Joy; Paula Kosh, Ephrata; Laura Schmalhoffer, Leola. Neil Vestermark and Lisa Hershey were room chairs assisting the judges.

The 4-H Fair will take place Aug. 8, 9 and 10 at the Elizabethtown Fairgrounds. The presentations will be given Wed., Aug. 7, at 8 p.m. There will also be various exhibits, shows and demonstrations. There is no fee to attend.

4-H members who participated in Presentation Night 2002 include: Reid Fellenbaum of Boots and Saddles; Bonnie Johnson, Elizabeth Riden, Emily Riden of Conestoga Valley Community Club; Cody and Katie Andrews, and Colton and Kelly King of Dairy Beef; Erik Nussbaum and Jay R. Snyder of Ephrata-Cocalico Community Club; Jessica Hargenrater and Deborah Henson of Garden Spot Community Club; Heidi Smith and Katrina Smith of Penn Manor Community Club; Natalie Cutugno of Rough Riders; Courtney Bamford, Jessie Barker, Daniel Cargill, Hannah Cargill, Austin Good, Rachel Shenk and Stephanie Withkowski of Saddle Cinches; LaDessa Aument, Devan DeBeneditto, Freddy Frey, Katrina Frey, Lori Hess, Mandie Holloway, Christine Keefer, Clara Osborne, Gwen Osborne and Kate Osborne of Solanco Community Club.

Capital Region 4-H Fashion Revue Winners

CARLISLE (Dauphin Co.) — Four-H in the Capital Region recently celebrated a "Century of Fashion" in activities held in Carlisle. The event was the culmination of the 4-H Textile Science project year. Sixty-eight 4-H youth from Adams, Cumberland, Dauphin, Franklin, Lancaster, Lebanon and York counties participated.

Workshops for the youth included tin punch, "Costuming Fun", "Bone Up on Calcium", "Do You Love to Sew?" and "Details Make the Difference". Other activities included judging and stage rehearsal for the fashion show presented that evening.

4-Hers won honors for their projects and showmanship skills. Senior winners were Erin Davis and Kate Martin from Adams County, Lindsay Burkhart, Elizabeth Criswell, Mandie Halloway, Holly Hoover, Betsy Ranck, and Rachael Rank from Lancaster County, Matthew Reichard and Melinda Reichard from Franklin County, and Beth Parrish from York County.

These youth will now compete in the State Achievement events at Penn State University July 31, at Eisenhower Auditorium.

Wool Mill Provides Specialty Business Opportunity

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

HALIFAX (Dauphin Co.) — On cooler summer days, the humidity and temperature allow the sunlit room's windows to be open. In one corner, Lydia keeps an eye on baby Megan and washes wool in steaming water while John calculates yards per pound in the other.

It's another day on the job for John and Lydia Piper, operators of the newly-opened Gurdy Run Mill, Halifax. Recently they leveled an old garage and constructed a room to hold the mill equipment and a seminar room upstairs. They opened for business in January.

Lydia, who grew up on a sheep farm in New York, and John, who worked on farms where he grew up in Williamsport, combine their knowledge and experience to care for their horses, Saint Bernard, flock of 20 Corriedale cross sheep, dairy beef, and angora rabbits on their 70-acre property. They moved to Halifax seven years ago from New York.

Carding is designed to align the fibers to put the wool in usable form, either to spin or get ready for further processing.

The business had its roots in Lydia's interest in hand spinning, which she began in 1989. John, a former contractor, was able to design and build the building that houses the mill.

"We took courses and with her understanding of spinning and both of our own experience with fleeces. We figured we just had to transfer it to machines," said John. "We both had an understanding of knitting and yarn.

"What primarily started this thing is that we thought this was a way to complete the farm and add value to the flock, besides adding income," he said. Since the Pipers were hesitant to begin a large-scale animal operation but wanted to make the farm more economically productive, their knowledge of sheep, spinning, and wool lent itself to the idea of running a mill.

They began planning two years ago after they saw the equipment manufacturer at the Maryland Sheep and Wool Festival.

The Pipers believe specialization and variety will help to make their business more successful. The seminar room in the building, for example, will someday provide a forum for guest speakers or knitting and spinning classes.

They are also planning to put together learn-to-knit kits to sell.

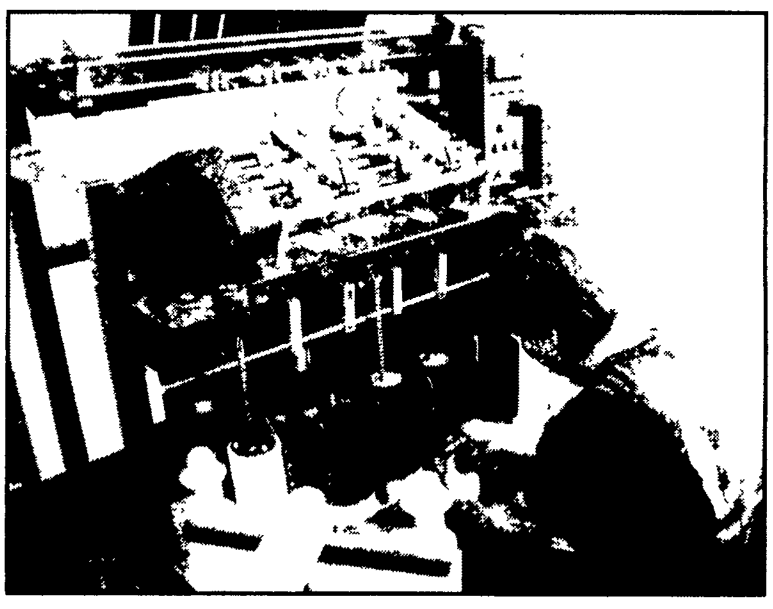
The Equipment

The Piper's equipment was manufactured on Prince Edward Island, Canada. They traveled to Canada a year ago to learn how to operate the machinery and still make frequent phone calls to speak with the manufacturer and ask questions.

Since industrial-size mills generally deal with Merino wool and the Pipers work with exotic fibers, the Pipers continually adjust the machines. These adjustments are necessary as they deal with differing wool types and also differing climatic conditions.

The climate-controlled room hovers around 60 percent humidity and 65 degrees.

Not only will static cling slow up the wool processing, but the wool could also absorb moisture or dry out, which not only changes the weight — which the Pipers base their prices on — but also processes differently according to its amount of water retention.



John prepares the bobbins to receive their newly-plied yarn.

With the equipment the Pipers are capable of providing custom scouring, carding, felting, and spinning the wool and exotic fibers. They offer batts, roving, felt, and yarn options for customers.

"This is a specialty industry," said John. "It works really well with exotic wool such as alpaca, llama, or mohair. The initial interest in the mill was specialties" such as multicolor rovings or yarns that are variegated.

The equipment brings industrial quality to a smaller-scale level, the Pipers believe. "We can do specialty blends and exotics," said John.

For example, owners can separate the three distinct colors from Jacob sheep and the Pipers can process that into roving, keeping the three distinct bands. "I call it s'mores," said Lydia.

Having a smaller mill allows the couple to process smaller orders of wool. "We can go down as low as five pounds," said Lydia. "That's our advantage."

Customers, who have come to Gurdy Run Mill from word-of-mouth advertising, are primarily hand-spinners that raise specialty sheep or alpacas. The Pipers feel that their operation appeals to those in the wool industry who are "trying to produce good quality fiber." Most of their customers are from Pennsylvania and Maryland.

Felt is another option for customers, as the Pipers can turn 1-3 pounds of carded fiber into a sheet of felt. One customer has used the leg and belly hair from their alpacas to make felt, which they sew into coats for the alpacas to wear after they are sheared, "so they're wearing their own coats," said Lydia. Customers generally use the felt to make saddle pads or to use in sewing.

To make felt the Pipers card out at batt of wool, a loosely-constructed large handful of wool, which they then place in criss-crossed layers on the table-like felting machine. Water and soap is poured over the machine, which is then closed. Putting pressure and rotating friction on the wool creates the felt, which is then flipped and trimmed.

The Process

Each fleece is approximately 10 pounds of raw weight when the Pipers receive it. They will charge $3 to wash the fleece, which Lydia does in two sinks in 140-degree water and industrial detergent. "You need to melt the lanolin," she said. "If we don't get it off the fleece you can't process it," her husband said.

She recommends that customers take the time to skirt the fleece well, and has advised customers on how to shear the animals away from hay and vegetation, which creates challenges in processing. She has found hoof clippings, nails, pens, and plastic in the fleeces, which are potentially dangerous for the finely-tuned machinery.

Lydia spins out the fleeces and washes it again before spreading it on a rack and placing it in a cabinet with a fan to circulate the air. After a day in the drying rack, the wool is placed in a bin, weighed, and tagged so the owners get the same fiber back.

Lydia washes the wool in 140-degree water to melt the lanolin, which allows for easier processing. After sdrying, the wool is placed in a bin, weighted, and tagged so the owners get the same fibers back.

For the next step, "a shop vac is a vital part of mill equipment," said Lydia. The couple cleans the closet area and teeth of the picking machine to remove any color from the previous fleece. The machine, a rotating bed of nails, opens the fibers and blows them into fluffy bundles in the closet.

Weighing the now-fluffy fibers allows the Pipers to calculate how much anti-static spray to put on the fleece, which they mix around through the fibers.

At the next step, the carding machine, the fiber is weighed out in ounces and placed in increments along the belt for consistency in the end product. The Pipers can layer or blend colors at this point for the customers.

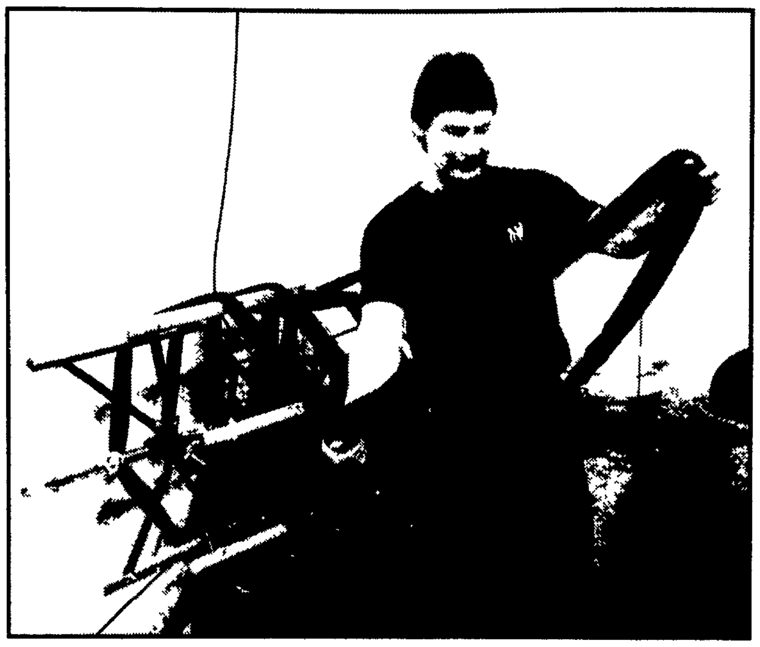
The carder produces a batt, cloud, or roving that is slightly twisted to help the fibers hold together. Hand-spinners order the roving, which they will make into their own yarn. According to John, carding is designed to align the fibers to put the wool in usable form, either to spin or get ready for further processing.

To make the fibers into a yarn, the draw frame aligns the fibers, evens out the roving, and creates a consistent size and weight. John passes it through the machine several times before taking the fibers to the spinning machine.

He then feeds the buckets of fibers into the spinner, which he has set according to the size and feel of the yarn that the customer has requested. Categories start at lace and move to fingering, sport, double knit, worsted, and lastly bulky, spun by yards per pound.

Alpaca fiber and heavy wool may yield 600 yards per pound of fibers while finer wools spun into lacy threads may yield 3,5000 yards per pound.

At this point he can spin three different colors together to create a variegated thread.



The finished product is long skeins, which will be twisted together and sent to the customer.

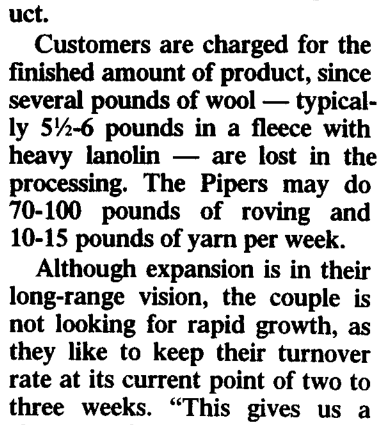
After the single-thread spinning is done, John reverses the direction of the machine to ply the yarn, combining two or three single threads into a balanced yarn.

Making a consistent, balanced yarn is a touchy process, since an unbalanced yarn can create a thread that will skew when the garment is washed, instead of hanging nicely.

Skeining is the last part of the process, as the thread is moved from the bobbins by the skein winder to produce large, twisted skeins that are the finished product.

Customers are charged for the finished amount of product, since several pounds of wool — typically 5½-6 pounds in a fleece with heavy lanolin — are lost in the processing. The Pipers may do 70-100 pounds of roving and 10-15 pounds of yarn per week.

Although expansion is in their long-range vision, the couple is not looking for rapid growth, as they like to keep their turnover rate at its current point of two to three weeks. "This gives us a chance to keep up with it," she said. The majority of the wool goes out as roving, since most of the customers are hand-spinners.



The carding machine produces a batt or roving that is slightly twisted to help the fibers hold together.

Pennsylvania 'Simply Delicious' Sweet Corn Is On Schedule

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — "Good supplies of the better early season varieties of sweet corn are coming on the market now," reports Fred Funk, Lancaster County vegetable grower and vice chairman of the Pennsylvania Vegetable Marketing and Research Program. "We started pulling our first corn grown under low tunnels the middle of June and our full-season varieties by the end of June," he added. That is about right on schedule for Lancaster County.

The beginning of the sweet corn harvest also coincides with the debut of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's million dollar "Simply Delicious" Produce Promotion campaign. In mid-June, Governor Mark Schweiker and Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes introduced the campaign's first ever television commercial that will air over 2,000 times this summer. The 30-second commercial features Pennsylvania's number one vegetable crop, sweet corn.

Most growers expect to begin harvesting sweet corn grown without plastic mulch about the second week of July. Some areas of the state have experienced a challenging spring with abundant rainfall interrupting planned planting schedules. Still, at this point, the outlook is promising for a good supply throughout the summer this year.

The first corn to be harvested is that grown under clear plastic covers placed over the rows of corn. The clear plastic acts as a miniature greenhouse, trapping the heat from the sun and conserving soil moisture. This warm moist environment is ideal for rapid seed germination and seedling development in cool April days. Planting under the plastic mulch represents a greater investment for the grower in terms of time, equipment and supplies but enables the grower to hit the early market.

See this fellow advertising Pennsylvania Simply Delicious sweet corn on television.

In the southeastern part and south central of the state which is still experiencing drought conditions, Funk reports that more and more growers are using trickle irrigation for their sweet corn. With this method of irrigation, a plastic tube with tiny emitters is laid down between every other row of corn. Water, and oftentimes, fertilizer, is pumped into the tubes and trickles out to the roots of the sweet corn crop. It is the most water-efficient method of irrigation available.

The key to good sweet corn is freshness. The sugar in sweet corn rapidly begins turning to starch within hours after being harvested. About 40 percent of the sugar can be lost in six hours at room temperature. Refrigeration slows this process, but the sooner corn is eaten after harvesting, the better.

Many growers are growing sugar-enhanced or super-sweet varieties that genetically have more sugar in the kernels. Some of these early sugar-enhanced varieties were developed at Penn State University. Because they have more sugar to begin with, they can be stored for longer periods and still have acceptable sweetness. However, standard sweet corn varieties, when purchased freshly harvested, will still have a delicious, traditional corn flavor and sweetness.

According to growers across the state most Pennsylvanians prefer bi-color corn, traditionally known as Butter and Sugar. However, in south central and southeastern Pennsylvania, white is the preferred corn. Certain localities and clienteles still like their corn to be yellow so many growers also grow some yellow varieties.

Regardless of the color, Pennsylvanians can expect to enjoy an abundant supply of sweet corn each year. It is the leading vegetable crop in the commonwealth with about 23,000 acres grown annually. Ninety percent of this sweet corn acreage is grown for fresh market sales. As a result, Pennsylvania ranks as the seventh largest fresh-market sweet corn producing state in the nation. Fresh corn will be available from July into October. About 2,300 acres of the sweet corn acreage are grown to be processed into frozen, dried or canned corn products available year around.

While fresh sweet corn is a delicious ingredient in many recipes, it is most popular served right on the cob, and is so simple to prepare. Simply boil husked ears for about five minutes, or grill the ears in the husk for 15-20 minutes after soaking them in water for about 10 minutes. Fresh corn on the cob is also easily prepared in the microwave by wrapping two husked ears in a damp paper towel and cooking them for seven minutes on high power, turning the ears once.

Noted Lancaster County cookbook author Betty Groff says, "Corn is the most versatile and easy to prepare of all Pennsylvania vegetables." Following are some of Mrs. Groff's sweet corn recipes from her cookbooks:

CORN'N SALMON SKILLET

- 2 cups cucumbers, thinly sliced
- 4 ounces onion, chopped
- 1 teaspoon dill weed
- 1½ cup canned salmon, drained and flaked
- 2 cups creamed corn
- 1 cup plain unflavored yogurt, divided in half

Spray vegetable oil in a medium nonstick skillet and cook cucumber, onion and dill weed till clear, approximately five minutes. Stir in salmon, corn and half of the yogurt. Cook over low heat, stirring until mixture is hot but not boiling. Spoon mixture into a heated serving dish and top with remaining yogurt and a dash of paprika. Serves 4.

CORN AND CLAM CHOWDER

- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 small onion, sliced thin
- 12 large fresh clams or 2 cups chopped clams, plus 2 cups clam broth
- 8 cups fresh or frozen white or yellow corn kernels
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 1 tablespoon chopped fresh parsley
- 4 cups milk
- ⅓ cup evaporated milk

Melt the butter in a heavy four-quart pot, add the onion, and saute until soft. When using fresh clams, chop them, and reserve the clam juice separately. There should be 2 cups of liquid. When using canned clams, drain them and add enough bottled clam broth to make up the 2 cups. Add the clam liquid, the chopped clams, corn kernels, salt, pepper, and parsley to the onion and bring to a boil. Stir in the milk and evaporated milk. Reduce the heat and simmer for approximately 30 minutes, stirring often to prevent the milk from sticking. The longer the soup simmers, the thicker it becomes and the better it tastes.

Variation: For a really thick chowder, add two potatoes, peeled and sliced.

Microwave: Melt butter in a covered four-quart glass pot and add the onion. Follow the above recipe and bring to boil — about eight minutes. Stir in milk and cook about seven minutes. Stir in clams and let stand for three minutes before serving.

Serves 6.

SAUSAGE, CORN AND PEPPERS

- 1½-2 pounds sausage
- 3 cups corn kernels
- 3 medium red or green bell peppers, diced
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Freshly ground pepper to taste
- Sprig fresh rosemary, chopped fine

Form sausage into bite-size balls. Fry in wok or heavy skillet until golden brown — approximately eight minutes. Remove all but 2 tablespoons fat, then add corn, peppers, salt, and pepper, and rosemary. Stir-fry until peppers are tender — approximately five minutes — covering pan with lid for the last three minutes.

Serves 4-6.

The following corn recipe is from Belinda Myers of Dallastown who won first prize in the Lebanon Area Fair 2002 "Simply Delicious" Vegetable Quick Bread Contest:

KORNY KORN BREAD

- 1¼ cup milk
- ⅓ cup melted butter
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup flour
- 1 cup corn meal
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1¼ cup grated fresh sweet corn
- 2 tablespoons finely diced red pepper
- ½ cup shredded Cheddar cheese
- 2 tablespoons Parmesan cheese
- ¼ teaspoon minced garlic
- ½ teaspoon dried basil
- ¼ teaspoon ground pepper

Blend milk, butter and eggs in a large mixing bowl. Add flour, corn meal, sugar, baking powder, salt, sweet corn, red pepper, garlic, basil and ground pepper. Blend well. Fold in cheeses last. Place in a nine-inch loaf pan which has been greased. Bake at 350 degrees for 50 to 60 minutes or until the center comes clean.

Granddaddy Craft Event Has New Twists

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The oldest craft fair in Pennsylvania, the 56th Annual State Craft Fair, will be offering 15 unique craft seminars free to the public, July 26, 27, 28 from 11 a.m. at the Franklin and Marshall College Sports and Fitness Center in Lancaster.

These 15 unique seminars are designed to offer both novices and experts a small group atmosphere where enthusiasts can discuss, one-on-one, craft techniques, theories and history with professionals in their field.

Seminars include the following:

- Construction of a Garment, learn about fabric design, patterning and details for "real" women's clothes.
- Faceting Gemstones, what makes a stone sparkle?
- Slip Trailing in Clay, learn how to band pieces with colored slips and intricate trailed designs.
- Cold Joinery Techniques in Jewelry, learn about wire work as a jewelry medium.
- Sustainable Forestry, discover why protecting the environment and managing the resources is important to craftspeople, collectors and the world at large.
- From Fiber to Fabric, learn how fiber turns into fabric through spinning and weaving techniques.
- Construction of a Leather Handbag, from raw material to an incredible piece of usable art.
- Decorating Techniques in Clay, a mind-opening discussion about the myriad of techniques available.
- Materials, an open discussion on where ideas come from and how to look at the world's natural materials as an inspirational art supply store.
- History and Techniques of Raku Pottery, a time-honored Japanese technique where techniques and secrets of creating metallic lusters will be discussed.
- Difference Between Handcrafted and Manufactured Windsor Chairs, learn the aspects of quality, construction and materials that separate handcrafted pieces from manufactured.
- Brass and Copper: What's the Difference?, learn about these metals, their history.
- Spinning Natural Fiber, spinning natural fibers to create designs that are classic pieces of art-to-wear.
- Reverse Painting on Glass, learn the age old Oriental technique that is experiencing a resurgence in calculability.
- Clay: A Brief History of the Wheel, learn about the geology and history of clay and how many civilizations have used this treasure of the earth.

With admission to the 56th State Craft Fair, all seminars are free and prior registration is not necessary. Seminars are open to adults as well as children. Discount admission coupons are available at www.pennsylvania-crafts.com.

Kutztown Plans Sweet Corn Meeting

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — The Kutztown Produce Auction Education Committee and Penn State Cooperative Extension will conduct their annual sweet corn meeting at the Kutztown Produce Auction Wednesday, July 31, from 3:30 p.m.-8:30 p.m.

Numerous educational sessions as well as an all-you-can-eat sweet corn dinner will keep the evening full of activity.

Sessions include, Home Well Water Issues, Farm Tractor Safety, Municipal Zoning, Enterprise Budgeting, Ecological Sweet Corn Practices and Vegetable Disease Control. Three vegetable category (03) pesticide update credits will be given.

This event is being co-sponsored by Mid-Atlantic Farm Credit, Moyer and Son, Inc., Base Organics and Penns Creek MFG.

Preregistration is requested. Registration fee is $5 and should be mailed to: Sweet Corn Meeting, Penn State Cooperative Extension, Berks County Ag Center, P.O. Box 520, Leesport, PA 19533-0520. Laura McNutt at (610) 378-1327 can be contacted for more information.

Buying Tips For Sweet Corn

The Pennsylvania Vegetable Marketing and Research Program offers these tips when buying sweet corn:

- Look for fresh green husks and ears that are filled all the way to the tip.
- Kernels should be tender, full and firm enough to puncture easily under the slightest pressure.
- To preserve the corn's sugar content and flavor, refrigerate immediately after purchase.

ANSWER – Gladys Hassinger, McClure, wanted to know how to keep birds out of the barn. She has tried balloons with faces and mothballs to deter them, but neither works. Dr. Nancy Winning, Holtwood, writes the only thing that consistently works to keep birds out of a barn is a cat. But if you have a dog that chases a cat, you are out of luck. Feed the cats in the barn and the cats will keep out the birds. She has tried this at her place and knows of it working at other properties as well.

ANSWER – Reynold Burke, Felton, wanted to know what can be placed in a pond to seal if from leaking water. Thanks to Donald R. Finan Jr., Montrose, for writing that an article in the Aug./Sept. issue of Mother Earth News recommended bentonite clay.

ANSWER – D. Dempsey, Schwenksville, wanted to know what kind of soap to use and how should it be placed to keep out deer from gardens. Thanks to Donald R. Finan Jr., Montrose, who writes that any soap with a scent can be placed in a nylon stocking and fastened around the perimeter. However, Finan writes that rotten eggs work best. He did not give any details on placement.

ANSWER – Paul Cherniski, Unionville, wanted to know where to purchase an aluminum carport from a manufacturer and assemble it himself. Thanks to Donald Finan Jr., Montrose, for sending the following: Northern Tool and Equipment, P.O. 1499, Burnsville, MN 55337. Phone 1-800-556-7885.

ANSWER – A reader inquired in what year do the 17-year cicadas appear again? Thanks to a Hegins reader for writing that according to the World Book Encyclopedia so many broods exist that they appear somewhere in the U.S. almost every year.

Nate Heffner, Barto, writes that in Eastern Berks County the 17-year cicadas will appear again in 2004.

ANSWER – A.L. Weaver, 618 N. Railroad Ave., New Holland, PA 17557, requested an original Candyland game, not with Disney characters, but with the picture of an angel guarding the children, crossing the bridge (not the newer style). Thanks to a Hegins reader who writes that the following game companies often replace game pieces and offer older games. Milton Bradley, Attn. Customer Service Dept., 443 Shaker Rd., East Longmeadow, MA 01028. Parker Brothers, Attn: Consumer Response Dept., P.O. Box 1012, Beverly, MA 01915. Funagain Games, 1644 #2 Ashland St., Ashland, OR 97501.

German Religious Settlement Fails, But History Preserved

Guides bring history to life in Zoar, Ohio.

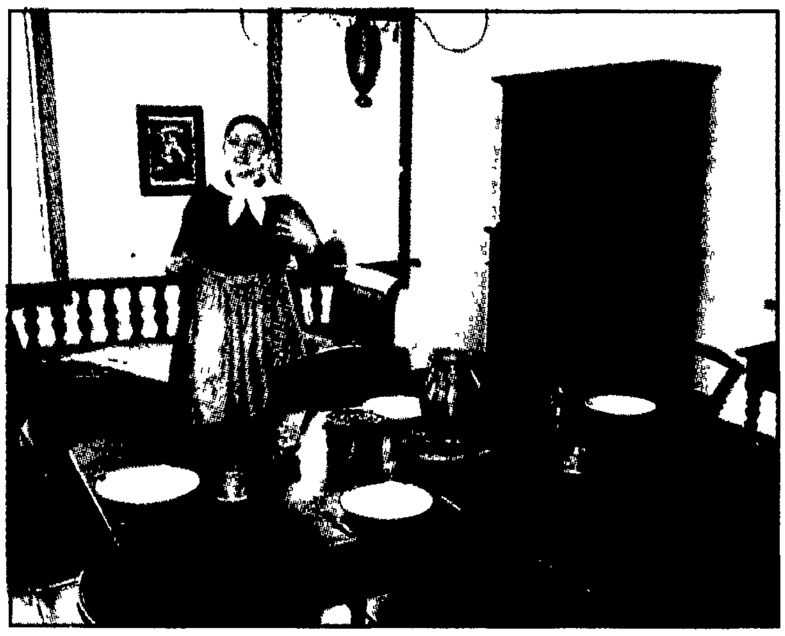
LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

ZOAR, Ohio — In a previous antiques article we learned of the German settled Harmony Society just north of Cranberry. Like the Quakers, Mennonites, Amish, and Harmony, still another German Separatists group settled in Zoar, Ohio.

Having been persecuted because of their belief in separation of church and state, the Zoars fled Wurtemberg, Germany, to have freedom to worship as they chose.

Guided by a vision from their mystic spiritual leader, they set sail for America in April 1817, arriving at Philadelphia in August.

Today visitors learn that failure appeared imminent in this harsh new land for the religious settlement. A plan was devised to assure that either all or none would succeed or perish. A community of goods and efforts was devised whereby all individual property and future earnings became common stock.



This is a typical Zoar kitchen with furnitue made by the Zoars. Note the practical, sturdy lines.

A private dwelling built in the Zoar era is still in use.

Aided by the Quakers, arrangements were made for purchasing 5,500 acres in the Tuscarawas River valley in Ohio to be paid back in 15 years.

A small band of men arrived at their new land on October 16, 1817. By spring they had built enough shelter to house their families who had been left in Philadelphia for the winter. They named their settlement Zoar after the Biblical town to which Lot fled seeking refuge from Sodom. A seven point star of Bethlehem was chosen as their emblem and the acorn from which the mighty oak grows was their symbol of strength.

Failure appeared imminent in this harsh new land. A plan was devised to assure that either all or none would succeed or perish. A community of goods and efforts was devised whereby all individual property and future earnings became common stock.

On April 19, 1819, the articles of association were signed by 53 men and 104 women establishing "The Society of Separists of Zoar."

Joseph Baumeler was named agent-general as well as the Society's spiritual and temporal leader. Men and women possessed equal political rights.

In 1827, the Society was contracted to dig seven miles of the Ohio-Erie Canal which passed through their land. Their work was completed for $21,000 and allowed the Society of pay off its land debt.

During the time period of building the canal, about five years, the Zoars remained celibate. Children, aged 3 and over, were taken to a central location to be raised by appointed nannies. The idea was that women were needed to help in building the canal. If they were pregnant, it became impossible to do this difficult work.

People 60 and over were housed in yet another building. Those who wished to remain active could do so, others did lighter tasks for the community.

The canal essentially opened the area for commerce, and at one time, the Society operated as many as four canal boats. Zoar was almost totally self sufficient with excesses being sold to outsiders. By the mid 1800s, the Society had accumulated assets of more then one million dollars.

The Society began to decline after Baumeler's death in 1853. By the late 1800s, the Zoars were no longer commercially competitive. This and other outside influences caused the Society to disband in 1898 with a division of assets. Each Society member received land, house, and possessions.

However, the Society did achieve its original purpose of survival in a new land.

Today, Zoar has a 12-block historic district, which is unique in that it remains a living part of the community. Peaceful side streets invite one to browze. Many of the buildings contain home occupations much like those did in the Zoarites' era.

There are a variety of shops offering gift items, restaurants, bed and breakfasts, and the visitor information buildings.

The United Church of Christ occupies the 1853-meeting house next to an up-to-date fire department.

For an admission fee, visitors can tour the dairy and cheese making buildings, the Magazine Complex where weekly supplies and staples were distributed, the community greenhouse and gardens, bakery, tin shop, wagon shop, blacksmith shop, and sewing house.

In the center of the town is a large flower garden where the hard working Zoarites would gather on summer evenings to chat, play games, and worship. The area is constructed with very tall trees in the center surrounded by a maze of flower gardens. The paths of the maze all lead to the tall trees symbolizing the paths to heaven. It is also noted that if one strays off the main path, he can find his way back again.

The greenhouse, once used for growing the town's veggie and flower plants is now a nursery for area sick houseplants.

Special events throughout the year include canal hikes, dairying at Zoar, a Harvest Festival, and food preservation workshop.

Zoar is located 2.5 miles east of I-77 (exit 93) on State Route 212 in Ohio. For more information contact Zoar Village at Box 404, Zoar, Ohio 44697. E-mail questions to HYPERLINK mailto:kmfzoar@compurserve.com kmfzoar@compurserve.com

A tin making shop shows the craftmanship of the religious settlement.

Exhibits from 20 milk bottle collectors among the total 59 exhibitors from 11 states added beauty to the overall 2001 show.

All-Dairy Antiques Show To Feature Jersey Breed Items

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The breed of the world's most famous dairy cow — Elsie, the Borden Cow — will be featured at the fifth annual All-Dairy Antiques and Collectibles Show Sept. 21-25, Harrisburg.

Elsie was a fictional character created in the 1930s for print advertising and radio commercials. She literally came alive at the 1939 New York World's Fair and has become a living legend for more than 60 years.

Husband Elmer joined her in 1940 and during World War II he became "spokesbull" for Borden's Chemical Division for the famous product "Elmer's Glue."

Since then hundreds of collectibles have developed around Elsie, Elmer, and their offspring, daughter Beulah, and son Beauregard. Many of these famous items and advertising pieces are expected to be displayed, bought, sold and traded by exhibitors and collectors at this largest all-dairy antiques and collectibles show in the United States.

Readers are encouraged to mark Sept. 21-25 on their calendars. Those interested in exhibiting free of charge should contact Dr. Darwin Braund, 238 Agricultural Administration Building, Penn State University, University Park, PA 16802-2600. Phone (814) 863-1383, or contact Lolly Lesher, Pa. All-Dairy Antique Show, Farm Show Complex, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110, or phone (717) 787-2905.

Registration forms will be sent to all interested persons. Registration, admission and parking are free.

Sigmund Promoted To President

Christopher M. Sigmund

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — TeamAg, Inc. has announced the promotion of Christopher M. Sigmund to president. Sigmund has been employed by TeamAg as vice president of environmental services and was formerly employed by Brubaker Consulting Group as manager of environmental/nutrient management services.

Sigmund's primary responsibilities include operational decisions, the oversight of consulting services, business development, and maintaining relationships with his existing clients.

TeamAg is the leading agricultural consulting firm in the Middle Atlantic States, whose team of agronomists, engineers, precision ag specialists, nutrient management/environmental specialists assist clients in the agricultural sector with changing environmental regulations and technological innovations.

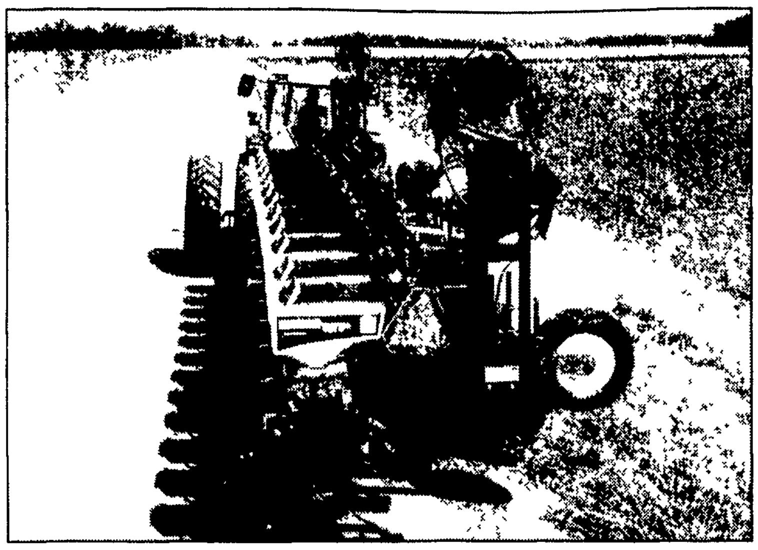
Sigmund received a master's degree in natural resources: land, water, and air and a bachelor's degree in biological sciences from the University of Connecticut. He is certified to write nutrient management Plans in Pennsylvania and Maryland and conducts environmental assessments at various types of livestock facilities on a national level.

Lift And Rotate Carts Make Transit Easy

ATLANTA, Ga. — The new White LR-20 and LR-30 lift and rotate carts just made arrow transport even more narrow. The carts are the first to bring planter or drill transport width under 10 feet. Fully loaded with 200 gallon liquid fertilizer tanks and tillage attachments, a 30-foot wide drill measures only 9 feet 10 inches in transport mode.

"Our new lift and rotate carts are designed to make planter transport easier and faster," says Joe Bozung, general marketing manager, White Planter. "The carts aren't just for road work either. Both the LR-20 and LR-30 are designed to move mounted planters and drills as easily across the field as they do down the road."

The carts are equipped with a three-point quick hitch for easy pickup and accept economical rigid or versatile flex frame mounted planters. The LR-20 is designed to carry six row wide or eight row 30-inch mounted planters and 20 foot-wide mounted drills. The LR-30 can accommodate eight row wide or 12 row 30-inch mounted planters and 30-foot wide mounted drills. Optional equipment includes two 200-gallon poly tanks for liquid fertilizer. The tanks mount on the cart just ahead of the three-point hitch and rotate with the planter unit.



The new White Planter lift and rotate cart offers transport width under 10 feet.

"These carts offer an economic alternative to more costly frame fold planter designs and provide a narrow transport option for grain drills, too," says Bozung. "They have been engineered to be simple to operate, durable in the field and narrower on the road."

The operator simply backs the cart up to the planter or drill, secures hydraulics and connects the three-point hitch. Once the unit is mounted on the cart, changing from road to field positions is controlled entirely from the tractor seat. The unit's 10,000-pound lift capacity is more than enough to handle full seed hoppers and the optional liquid fertilizer tanks.

Renaissance Nutrition Announces Taylor Appointment

ROARING SPRING (Blair Co.) — Renaissance Nutrition, Inc., is pleased to announce the appointment of Tom Taylor of Hustontown, as a nutritional consultant and dairy specialist for Fulton and Huntingdon counties.

Taylor brings to Renaissance a variety of qualifications, including extensive work in agriculture and outstanding people skills. He continues to expand opportunities in all areas of agriculture and dairy/livestock nutrition, as well as aspects of farm management.

Raised in south-central Pennsylvania, Taylor brings a broad perspective to his work with dairy and livestock producers, which complements his work on farms. He understands the needs and concerns of producers, and the need for utilizing available and up-to-date technology in rationing and farm management skills. He and his wife have two children and reside in Hustontown.

In addition to extensive work in nutritional and farm management consulting, Taylor will be overseeing the sales and distribution of Renaissance products into his area. This includes products that are manufactured by Renaissance, such as custom and standard mineral/vitamin premixes, calf milk replacers, and products distributed by the company that have been approved for sale into the market after extensive research and testing.

Persons interested in obtaining information, professional and on-farm assistance or products, and scheduling a meeting with Tom Taylor may contact him at (717) 987-3583, or by calling the Renaissance offices.

Syngenta Crop Protection Launches Redesigned Website

GREENSBORO, N.C. — Syngenta Crop Protection has launched a redesigned "FarmAssist™" Website (www.FarmAssist.com), providing growers with improved access to a broad range of agricultural resources and crop production information. This updated, innovative tool allows growers to quickly obtain information about agricultural issues directly impacting the success of their business.

Items featured on the new FarmAssist.com Website include frequently updated market news, cash grain bids, commodity price information, pest alerts, agronomic information, and Syngenta product updates. Among the site's new features are corn and potato pest maps providing current information about disease and insect conditions, and in-depth, localized weather coverage.

Growers can also access the up-to-date agricultural information about pest identification, reference and treatment information, product and threshold recommendations; product labels and MSDS forms; and government forms and templates.

"The new design makes it easier than ever for growers to find the information they're looking for," said Warren Boerger, head of e-business at Syngenta. "The previous version of FarmAssist.com, launched in August 2001 allowed growers to customize information specific to their needs — and was available to them 24 hours a day. the new site retains all the benefits, while improving the ease of use and increasing the amount and quality of available information."

Growers can also download the FarmAssist 6.1 software from the Website. The new software, which is available free of charge, helps farmers track the cost of chemical and fertilizer applications, environmental conditions, irrigation use, and pest information. "Together with the Website, the FarmAssist software is a powerful, customized, total business management tool," Boerger said.

Blue Seal Names Ford Dairy Sales Representative

LONDONDERRY, N.H. — Martin Ford of Akron, N.Y. recently joined Blue Seal as a dairy feed sales representative. He is based out of Blue Seal's Arcade, New York mill.

A graduate of Purdue University with a B.S. in agriculture, Ford brings 18 years of feed industry experience to his new position. He has served in a sales capacity with several feed companies in Michigan and most recently ran his own nutrition consulting business.

John Deere 1565 Front Mower Is Versatile

JD 1565 front mower

TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. — Designed with commercial cutters, municipal landscapers and estate owners in mind, the John Deere 1565 front mower delivers more durability, versatility and performance to the Company's line of front mowers.

Equipped with heavy-duty components, this mower offers an unmatched level of power, traction, maneuverability and mowing productivity for several applications, such as city parks, golf courses, schools and universities, cemeteries, airports and apartment and industrial complexes.

The John Deere 1565 front mower is powered by a 36-hp, Yanmar diesel engine that features maximum torque for tough mowing conditions. Advantages of this Carb certified engine's technology include providing a better fuel economy, quieter operation, quicker starting and lower emissions levels. Full-pressure lubrication protects the engine even with frequent operation on slopes and hillsides.

The mower's power is enhanced with a 55-amp alternator. For added productivity, the 1565 is outfitted with a 14.5-U.S. gallon fuel tank that provides enough capacity for all-day mowing.

Engineered for operator comfort and safety, the 1565 is outfitted with a deluxe, Grammer seat that adjusts to accommodate operators of different heights and weights. Armrests are standard. The mower is also equipped with power steering (two turns lock-to-lock), reducing operator fatigue and increasing machine response and maneuverability. Tilt steering allows the operator to adjust the steering wheel to a desired position and provides additional clearance for entering and exiting the operator stand. The mower's patented two-pedal foot control system eases speed and direction control for the operator. In addition, the park brake is conveniently located above the forward and reverse pedals.

For increased safety, the 1565 features Heads-up indicator lights that are located on the steering column. And the machine's two-post ROPS can be folded down for mowing under trees.

Hereford Association Grasstime Sale Results

SALUNGA (Lancaster Co.) — On Saturday, June 8, Colonel Harry Bachman sold 41 Hereford lots at C.J. Furlong's Ranch with a sale average of $1,490.

The high-selling consignment, a cow-calf pair consigned by Mountain View Cattle (Tom Kurcharski), was sold for $2,850.

The high-selling heifer was consigned by Slayton's Beardance (Paul and Betty Slayton) and sold for $1,850.

The high-selling bull sold for $2,100 and was consigned by Maple Springs Farm and C.J. Cattle Co.

The sale average for two bulls sold was $2,050, the sale average for 18 heifers sold was $1,186, the sale average for 21 cow-calf pairs was $1,741, and the sale average for two lots of four embryos was $155.

Plans are now being made for the Pennsylvania Hereford Association Hereford Showcase Sale to be conducted at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition on Oct. 5.

Hytest Seeds Introduces Three New Alfalfa Varieties

JOHNSTON, Iowa — Three new alfalfa varieties from Hytest Seeds combine high yield, exceptional forage quality and superior pest resistance.

Hytest 410 alfalfa features a late fall dormancy rating of 3.9 and a superior winter survival rating of 1.0. Highly resistant to the most damaging crown and root rot diseases, including Bacterial Wilt, Fusarium Wilt, Verticillium Wilt, Anthracnose — Race 1, Phytopthora Root Rot, and Aphanomyces — Race 1, Hytest 410 earns a perfect "30 of 30" cumulative score on the Wisconsin Disease Index.

Hytest 520 alfalfa combines the exceptionally fast recovery and high yield potential of a fall dormancy five variety with the winterhardiness and superior persistence to survive in northern climates including the High Plains and Mid-Atlantic regions. Highly resistant to all major crown and root rot diseases, Hytest 520 outyields other widely planted alfalfa varieties to maximize yields and profits for beef, dairy and commercial hay producers.

Hytest 340PLH is a high-yielding variety that offers superior resistance to the most challenging diseases and insect pests, including the latest advances in potato leafhopper resistance. Even in the absence of leafhopper pressure, Hytest 340PLH has shown equal or higher yields and higher forage quality than many top-selling conventional varieties.

Hytest Seeds offers a diverse portfolio of genetics for high-quality, top-performing forage and row crop products, including corn for silage or grain, alfalfa, sorghum for forage or grain, forage legumes and grasses, and soybeans. Research trials show that the company's "Built to Feed" forage products not only deliver high yields but can significantly increase daily rate of gain for beef cattle, and increase milk production from dairy herds.

Spurrier Contracted To Promote Maryland Grain

EDGEWATER, Md. — The Maryland Grain Producers Association (MGPA) has announced that Debra Spurrier of Union Bridge has been contracted to conduct public relation activities to promote the value and importance of the grain grown by its membership.

"Debra brings enthusiasm for agriculture to the organization and over five years of experience communicating agriculture's message," said Lynne Hoot, executive director for MGPA. "We are looking forward to utilizing her abilities to enhance our media relations, consumer awareness and agriculture education efforts throughout the state."

A graduate of the University of Florida's agriculture communications program, Spurrier moved to Maryland in 1998 to serve as the agriculture reporter for the Frederick News-Post. In addition, she spent two years promoting the dairy industry as an industry relations manager for the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Mid-East.

Spurrier continues to be active in Maryland's agriculture industry through working with the Maryland Dairy Youth Weekend, Maryland Dairy Princess Program and the Frederick County Farm Bureau.

She is married to Mark Spurrier and currently resides on his family's dairy farm in Frederick County. The farm produces corn and barley for use in animal feeds, as well as mixed grass hay and straw.

Ag Engineers Meeting To Focus On Global Food Issues

ST. JOSEPH, Mich. — Dennis Avery, director of global food issues for the Hudson Institute, will deliver the keynote address at the 2002 Annual International Meeting of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers.

Avery's address, "The High and Rising Sustainability of the Modern World and Agriculture's Contribution to It," will be given Monday, July 29, at 8:30 a.m. in the Chicago Hyatt Regency Grand Ballroom.

The speech will emphasize the many ways in which engineering has made human society more sustainable, from the no-till drills that help disarm soil erosion and the computer-controlled low-evaporation center-pivot irrigation systems that stretch scarce water supplies, to confinement livestock systems, which save pasture land and raise feed conversion rates to save cropland, too. Such gains will be even more important as the world triples farm output to serve nine billion affluent people in 2050.

Avery has earned recognition for his work in economic efficiency and environmental conservation and for his efforts in heightening awareness of the connection between agricultural productivity and environmental conservation.

Raised on a U.S. dairy farm, Avery studied agricultural economics at Michigan State University and the University of Wisconsin He has conducted agricultural policy analysis for the USDA and the U.S. President Lyndon Johnson's National Advisory Commission on Food and Fiber. Avery also served for nearly a decade as the senior agricultural analyst for the U.S. State Department, where he won the National Intelligence medal of Achievement.

The American Society of Agricultural Engineers is an international professional and technical organization dedicated to the advancement of engineering applicable to agricultural, food, and biological systems. Founded in 1907 and headquartered in St. Joseph, Michigan, ASAE comprises 9,000 members representing more than 90 countries. For further information, contact ASAE, 2950 Niles Rd., St. Joseph, MI 49085; (616) 429-0300; e-mail hq@asae.org. Details can also be found at http://www.asae.org/.

Role Of Ag Engineering Topic Of Special Conference

ST. JOSEPH, Mich. — The role of engineering in international development — in narrowing the economic chasms often associated with acts of extremism — will be the topic of a unique day-long conference at the Chicago Hyatt Regency on July 30.

Engineering has been one of the most effective and powerful tools of development in the last 100 years, particularly in the area of food production and natural resources management. Yet the events of Sept. 11 are a reminder that improved quality of life remains a pressing need throughout large portions of the world

To address this issue, "Agricultural Engineering and International Development in the Third Millennium" will bring together a distinguished panel of international speakers whose careers have been spent improving the quality and availability of human necessities: safe and plentiful food, pure water, clean fuel and energy sources, and a healthy environment in which to live.

Among the 14 participants is Lawrence Clarke, chief agricultural engineer for the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization, Rome. Others include Jose Reyes Sanchez, president of Universidad Autonoma Chapingo, Mexico; Takashi Takakura, Nagasaki University College of Environmental Studies; Akrum Tamimi, Hebron University, Palestine Authority, and Yoav Sarig, The Volcani Center, Israel. Speakers from the United States include Curt Reynolds, USDA, and Donald Slack, University of Arizona Department of Agricultural and Biosystems Engineering.

Topics will cover numerous issues related to agriculture, natural resources, and economic stability, including chronic food insecurity, food production, the environment, economic aid food safety, education, and sustainable irrigated agriculture

The program will begin at 9 a.m. and will consist of a series of individual presentations that will conclude with a 90-minute panel discussion starting at 3 30 p.m.

The event is sponsored by the American Society of Agricultural Engineers (ASAE) and the International Commission on Agricultural Engineering (CIGR) and is one highlight of a joint meeting of the two organizations being conducted July 28-31 in Chicago More than 1,600 engineers and are expected to attend the joint meeting, including numerous international attendees

CLUTCHES/GEAR REDUCTION ASSEMBLIES

Our Specialty

We stock them, stock the parts, pinions, gears, bearings, seals & gaskets, splined out puts, shafts, housing adaptors/reducers, and pilot bearing holders. With little or no changes, these new clutch/gear reduction assemblies could fit your gas or diesel engine - 50-100hp. Five different gear ratios A valuable link between your engine and power take-off shaft equipment.

CLUTCH / 5.8:1 Planetary Gear Reduction Assemblies

For 8-30 HP Engines
Fits most — Honda, Robin, Kohler, Kawasaki, others (1–2 cyl.)

- Fits most standard crankshafts – 1", 1⅛", 1⁷⁄₁₆"
- Aluminum Castings/Housings
- Ball & roller bearings, hardened gears

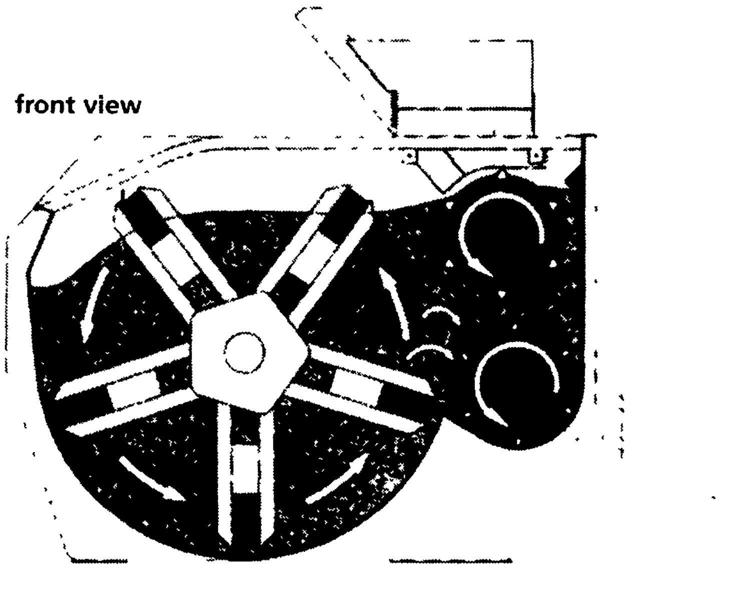
KNIGHT . . . the REEL Advantage

A Faster, More Thorough Mix



The large-diameter reel provides a gentle tumbling action and the two side augers produce an end-to-end blending action. This unique combination ensures faster mixing and unloading times, and a very thorough mix, even when mixing small batches.

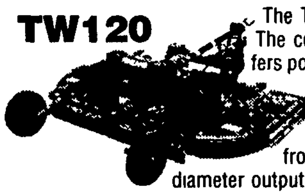
100" Wide

TW120



The TW120 cuts a 120" swath of material The center gearbox, rated at 120 HP, transfers power to the 100 HP outboard gearboxes Torque dampeners on both sides of the center gearbox help prevent driveline and gearbox damage caused from sudden shockloads Massive 2-3/8" diameter output shafts in the outboard gearboxes help provide optimum service The pull-type and semi-mount units require a 50 HP (min) tractor and the lift-type unit requires a 60 HP (min) tractor (with adequate front weights)

TW120 - 10' Cut • TW84 - 7' Cut • TW72 - 6' Cut

SE15 Rhino Batwing Cutter With 160 HP Gear Boxes

A Better Machine... It's That Simple

5 Fundamentals of the Axial-Flow Combine

SIMPLICITY

GRAIN SAVINGS
Thorough threshing and efficient separation put more grain in the tank.. and more profits in your pocket.

GRAIN QUALITY

ADAPTABILITY
The Axial-Flow combine is designed to handle many crops and field conditions.

MATCHED CAPACITY
The rotary design of a Case-IH combine is engineered from front to back for optimum performance.

New Case IH 2200 Series Cornheads

- Hydraulic adjustable stripper plates allow on the-go adjustments in varying crop conditions
- Low profile poly hoods and dividers effectively "hug" the ground, moving more ears into the header to increase efficiency
- Larger diameter auger (16") moves more crop into the feeding area, increasing the feeding capacity of the cornhead

McCormick CX

McCORMICK
INTERNATIONAL USA INC

The workhorse McCormick CX Series tractors (73 hp-102 hp) are some of the most rugged in the field today. The CX features lean-burning, high-torque 4-cylinder Perkins diesel and a synchromesh shuttle transmission. It's the ideal choice if you're looking for a well built, dependable chore tractor for hay, loader, field application, livestock or medium-duty field work.

And - with optional powershift and creep speed, and your choice of base, platform or deluxe cab - it's comfortable for both you and your wallet.

Stop in for a test drive today, then drive away in a new McCormick.

WARNING, ALL SILO OWNERS

Check your silo now for rotten staves. If you have been using your silo for 10 to 15 years for either corn silage or haylage, it is time to SHOTCRETE

RESURFACES INTERIORS:

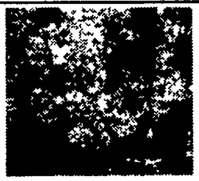
- Coats the silo's interior
- Protects feed in storage
- Durable, tough, acid-resistant
- Increase useful life
- Economical

Before The silo s interior with plaster damage and stave exposed

After The surface is reconditioned and a new thick tough surface will protect stored feed

REPAIRS HOLES:

- Repairs even large holes
- Up to twice the strength of the original stave
- Rapid application
- Durable surface



Before A hole is worn completely through the silo wall

After With the hole repaired by ShotCrete and a new surface applied the silo is ready for years of use

EXTENDS USEFUL LIFE:

- Support for old foundations
- Special repairs can be made quickly and economically
- Little or no forming needed
- Stronger than the original

Before The bottom part of the staves are completely worn away

Having Problems Getting Milk Cold?

Consider a Mueller precooler. It's an excellent way to lower the cost of cooling milk. It reduces milk temperature with water pumped straight out of your well. Mueller® precoolers are available in sizes to work with any system. If lower electric bills would make your life easier, call us and ask for more information on Mueller precoolers.

ALFALFA SEED $1.55/Lb.

from the Dakota's Trask Family Seeds

- Features grower to grower direct seed sales
- S D S U tested and researched
- Distributed from Parkesburg PA
- $1 55/per lb in 60 lb bags
- Varieties S D Common Vernal and Rhyzoma
- Dakota alfalfas are dormancy rated at 2 and proven to excel in winter hardiness and production!
- Trask Seed is American grown and priced to reflect no corporate monopolies!

PA farmers have great hay crops with South Dakota alfalfa seed Painterland Farms, Westfield, PA, John Painter said "The Trask's seed grew extremely well We recommend it to anyone It is real leafy and yielded as well as any of the high priced name brand seeds It cost 40% as much. We planted 294 acres We intend to plant more this spring. It was exceptionally winter hardy and resisted frost damage We are very pleased

Join the numerous farmers in the PA/NY area harvesting superb alfalfa from South Dakota seed

SWEETCAKE 16NU

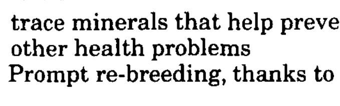
FEED SUPPLEMENT BLOCKS FOR THE LIVESTOCK INDUSTRY

• High Natural Protein • No Urea • Fat Enhanced
• Balanced Supplementation • Safe For All Livestock Classes

Sweetcake Advantages

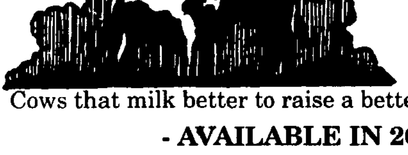
- Aids in making the best use of your available forage
- Promotes a more even herd consumption, with 24-hour availability to all cattle
- Reduces labor to save you money and give you more time to make important management decisions
- Supplies much-needed vitamins and minerals that forage lacks to help your cattle perform to their genetic potential
- Supplies fat in most formulations to enhance energy intake

For Dairy



- Replacement heifers that grow out soundly and economically
- Body condition on dry cows so they can return to lactation, producing at the maximum potential
- Healthier herds, with essential trace minerals that help prevent metritis, retained placenta and other health problems
- Prompt re-breeding, thanks to essential nutrients

For Beef



- Stronger, healthier calves at birth
- Heavier Calves at weaning
- Cows that cycle better for improved conception rates
- Cows that milk better to raise a better calf

- AVAILABLE IN 200 LB. SIZE -

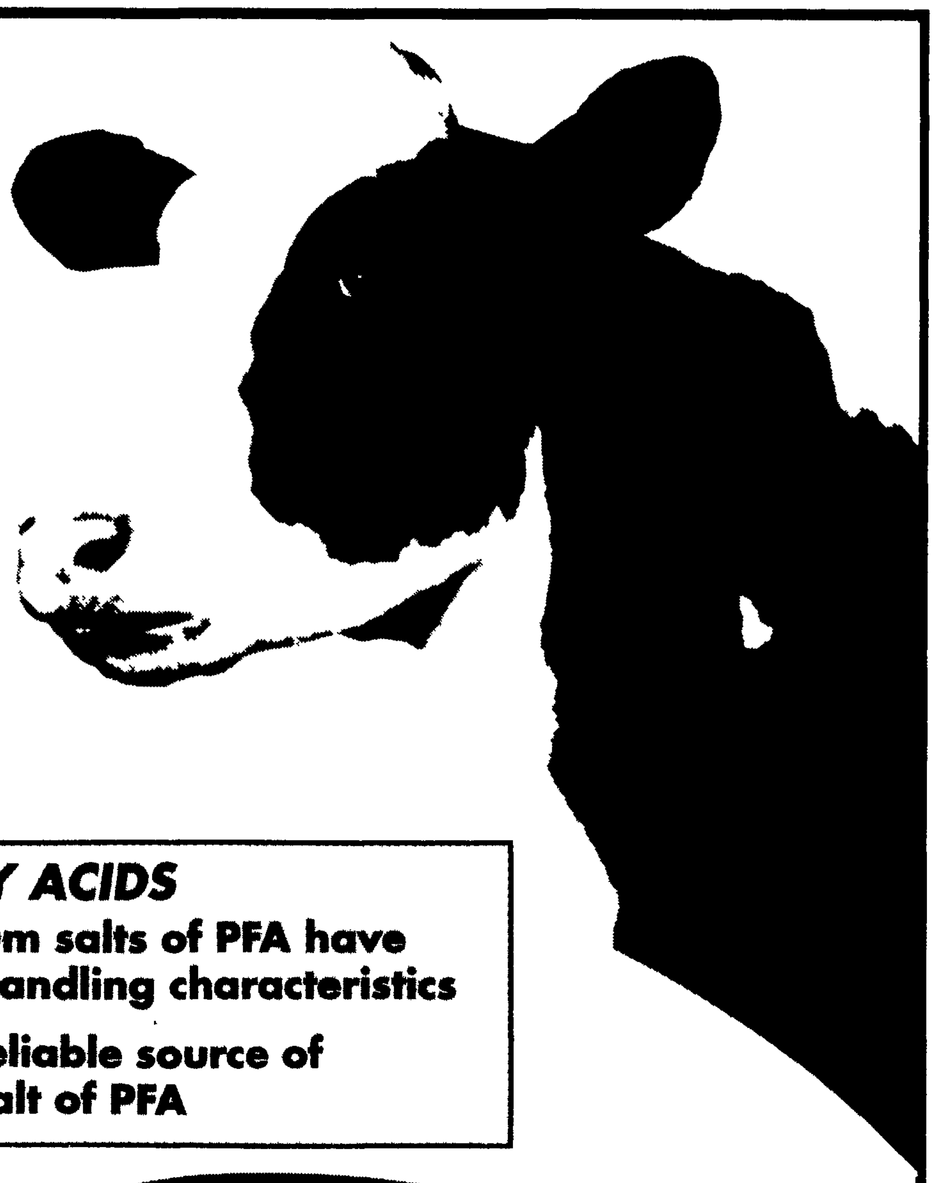
Enertia PFA™



SUSTAINED ENERGY FOR SUSTAINED PROFITABILITY

THE POWER OF PALM FATTY ACIDS

- One of nature's richest energy sources for dairy cattle
- Calcium salts of PFA have superior handling characteristics
- The dairy industry's most tested and reliable source of rumen bypass fat is the calcium salt of PFA

Features and Benefits

- Calcium Salt of Palm Oil Fatty Acids
  Provides a high-energy source which is highly digestible in the small intestine. This energy source does not interfere with rumen function and provides an optimum fatty acid profile.
- Consistent Quality
  Because ADM is directly involved in palm oil processing, procurement of consistent, high-quality palm oil at competitive pricing is ensured.
- Exceptional Energy Density
  The inclusion of ENERTIA^{PFA} in lactation rations provides a high level of energy to support body condition, higher peak milk production, and reproductive efficiency. ENERTIA^{PFA} provides 2.3 Mcal/lb NE_L.
- Excellent Handling Properties
  ENERTIA^{PFA}'s flowable, granular form mixes well with feed ingredients typically used in dairy rations. Weather fluctuations (hot and cold temperature extremes) and standard feed processing procedures do not affect ENERTIA^{PFA}.

Feeding Recommendations

- Feed at the rate of 0.25 to 1 lb/hd/day to supplement the energy needs of high-producing dairy cows. ENERTIA^{PFA}.
- Although ENERTIA^{PFA} is a palatable rumen inert fat source, it should be fed to cows in a diluted form and gradually introduced to cows that have not previously been fed calcium salts of palm oil fatty acids.
